THE METHODISTS AND THE PAS-TORAL TERM

The policy adopted should make it possible for congregations to retain their pastor for five years if he desires to stay, while it is not expected to work invidiously against those pastors who are not invited to remain beyond the three year term. Had the regular term been made five years it would have been difficult for a congregation desiring an earlier change to make it in three years without reflecting to some extent on the retiring pastor. By the regulation adopted it will be a compliment to a preacher to invite him to remain one or two years beyond the regular term, but there should be nothing invidious in allowing the connection to lapse in the regular course at the end of the old term. Three years seems to be a short period for a pastoral relation to continue. It ishardly long enough to allow a preacher to get well acquainted with the members of a large congregation. It is rather short a period to organize and carry through any QUEBEC. Quebec, Sept. 12 .- The case of the Queen v Larkin, Connolly & Co., in the exchequer court here, for the recovery of about three quarters of a million dollars, came to a sudden termination this afternoon, by the defendants, Larkin, Connolly & Co., allowing judgment to be entered against them for $45,000. It is understood that the government abandoned any charge of wrong doing in connection with the Quebec contract of the firm, but as certain charges were made in the British Columbia graving dock by the minister of public works and chief engineer without authority of parliament contractors, on advice of counsel, and in order to rid themselves of vexatious proceedings and enormous expense, allowed judgment to be entered for the above amount. At the conclusion of the proceedings, His Honor Judge Burbidge said that it must not be inferred that Messrs. Connolly or Mr. Larkin could be accused of any wrong-doing in connection with any of the contracts in qnestion.

The Albert Star of a recent date says: The seamanship displayed by Capt. Nicholson, of the bark Talisman last Friday, is the subject of comment. On Thursday night the captain weighed anchor and started on the homeward voyage. Friday at noon his vessel was aground on Herring Cove flats; on the evening of the same day she was in back of the Herring Cove breakwater, almost upon the rocks. At this juncture of affairs, Capt. John Shields was asked by the old skipper to aid him. Capt. Shields took charge and soon brought the vessel from her dangerous situation to a good anchorage with plenty of sea room. Schr. And yet while this has been the maximum period for a Methodist preacher to remain in one station some other churches, without being required by law to do so, make changes about as often as the Methodists. There are, for example, several churches in this city free from a constitutional three years' limit which have changed pastors as often as the local Methodist churches.
