THE SEAS'S TOLL.

In spite of modern methods of navigation, in spite of all the charts and all the buoys and lighthouses, in spite of the steady improvement in naval architecture, the grim old sea continues to take its toll of ships and of men who sail in them. Last year, according speaker and as editor of . Canada's to Lloyd's register, it seized $2 steam-transformers, aggregating 527,978 tons and 501 for clean and homorable politics and his sailing vessels, making up 264.376 tons.
