COLLECTIONS OF THE HERO OF WATERLOO.

The late Goldwin Smith, from whose pen a most charming account appears in the December Canadian Magazine of his early life in England gives the following insight into the character of the great Duke of Wellington.

We were in the near parish to Stratfieldsaye, the country seat of the Duke of Wellington. The old Duke performed all the duties of life and among them, when he could, that of country gentleman. When his work in town permitted, he came down, called upon them, entertained them and showed himself to the people. I turned up one of his visiting cards with his "E. M." the other day.

There was a farm which ran into his estate and which he wished to buy; but it was held at too high a price.

One day on his arrival at Stratfieldsaye he was greeted by his bailiff with the glad tidings that the owner of the farm was in difficulties and was forced to sell at a low price. "I don't want to take advantage of any man's difficulties," he replied, "go and give him the fair price of his land."

He rode with hounds, but had a military seat and was sometimes thrown. He did not like this to be noticed, and was far from pleased when a farmer said to him, "I see your grace often parted from your saddle. You should take oop your stirrups and ride as I do." He was as tenacious and his character as sportsman, and was greatly hurt when on account of his age he ceased to be invited to the Prince Consort's shooting parties.

He kept a hunting stud to the last though he could ride no farther than the cover-side. He had not much taste, and when a Korean villa was opened on his estate and drew visi-naval officers, one a Congressman and the other a Balmacedista, were discussing politics aboard vessel of the fleet.

In the heat of the argument one struck the other. Other officers joined in the fray. The sailors, too, took sides. By nightfall the fleet was in revolt, and the great Chilian war had begun. That single blow cost the lives of more than twenty thousand men.

Inflamed with wine at a village fiesta a Macedonian peasant named Nicholas Martinovitch, engaged in a rough-and-tumble fight with a compatriot whom he suspected of being his rival in love, and killed him. Chased by the police, to evade arrest he crossed the frontier into Thessaly, where he quickly gathered round him a rabble rout of desperadoes, and started raiding the Turkish villages. This was in March 1897, and it was the last straw that broke the back of the Sultan's patience. Within a month the Greece-Turkish war had begun.

The Christian war between the Venetians and the Turks was to have been settled by the rival commanders, who agreed to meet one another in single combat in front of their respective armies. But neither was victorious, for each succeeded in killing the other during a duel of only about ten minutes duration.

Thereupon the two armies, frantic with rage, rushed at each other, intent upon avenging the death of their leaders. The war that followed was one of the most dreadful recorded in history. The Turks lost one hundred and twenty thousand men, the Christians more than thirty thousand.

When a man climbs up to rob his neighbors he often uses a ladder labeled patriotism.

A Bad Sign. If Your Hair Falls Out When Combing the Hat.

Falling hair means that the roots of the hair need strengthening; they need a tonic and they ought to have it nightly quick.

If you will go to J. Sutton Clark he will sell you a large bottle of hair tonic for 50 cents, that is guaranteed to stop falling hair and itching of scalp and cure dandruff in two weeks or money back.

The name of this almost magical preparation is Parisian Sage, and it now can be obtained in nearly every town of importance in Canada.

Beautiful women in the metropolis are large users of Parisian Sage, because they have learned that it makes and keeps the hair soft, beautiful, lustrous and luxuriant. Parisian Sage is not sticky or greasy, and is the most delightful hair dressing in the world. Fifty cents at J. Sutton Clark's or direct, all charges prepaid, by the Canadian makers, the Gironx Mfg Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

"Granny" Larabee is Dead

An interesting figure connected with the early life of Essex county passed away recently in the person of Mrs. Charles Larabee, commonly called "Granny," at the age of one hundred.

Mrs. Larabee was born in Essex November 12, 1810, was a child of five when Waterloo was fought, and remembered the close of the war of 1812, and her life spanned the period of all the great modern achievements of railway, telegraph, telephone, steamboat, and many others.

On the evening of her death she ate her supper as usual, enjoyed her smoke—a fact which may be interesting to students of the tobacco habit—and a little later passed away quietly and unexpectedly.

The quickest way to convince a girl that you have good taste is to tell her she is good looking.

Led to Killing 20,000

It is curious, when one comes to reflect upon the matter, how frequently a comparatively harmless bout of fisticuffs between two individuals has led directly to a great war in which thousands of lives have been lost, says Pearson's Weekly.

A noble case in point, for example, occurred so late as 1891. Two Chilian
