

and eight hundred
ture, Ottawa.

PREFACE.

In the following pages an attempt is made to give the principal ligaments and skeletal muscles of the horse in a condensed and simplified form. Consequently, the smaller ligaments of the complex joints have been entirely omitted. The muscles of the eye, ear, larynx, etc., have also been omitted, as belonging more properly to the description of the special organs with which they are connected.