

Englishmen Leaving the Old Country for Canada.

Will find it to their advantage to keep this journal in their possession. On pages 19 and 20 will be found the locality of the Lodges of the Sons of England, extend all over the Dominion. When you reach your destination look up the nearest lodge to your place of residence, and at once join your fellow countrymen. You will there meet brother Englishmen who have spent years in this country and who will gladly impart to you their knowledge and be happy to extend to you the right hand of fellowship. Not only will the Sons of England assist you but the members of St. George's society will do all in their power also.

The advantages of indentifying yourself with one of these societies are manifold, they foster a loving memory of old England, care for each other in sickness and adversity, and bring into organized union true Englishmen, to maintain the liberties and integrities of the British Empire.

These societies extend all over Canada, cast your lot in with them, thereby swelling the grand roll of those bound together in fraternal sympathies.

"A union of hearts and a union of hands,
A union none can sever;
A union of homes and a union of Lands,
And the flag, BRITISH UNION, forever."

The officers of any of these lodges will be pleased to give any information.
