QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Miscellaneous.

CHICKEN CHANGES COMPLEXION.

I have a hen which has been subject to the odd turns of nature. The hen in question was jet black. We had it ever since it was a little chick, and every time it feathered off it had black feathers. Last year, or the year before, when it feathered off, a few white feathers appeared around the neck. Next time it feathered it lost its black feathers, and turned all white. There was not a single black feather on her. Now she is losing her feathers, black ones peeping from under her plumage. What is the cause of that? I have never heard of a freak in nature like that before.

J. F.

Ans.—If you are absolutely sure these facts are correctly observed and reported, yours is indeed a remarkable case.

ORDERING NURSERY STOCK.

1. I wish to set out an apple orchard. I have seen some advertisements in "The Farmer's Advocate," but am not posted as to what locality to order my trees from in order to secure a successful growth in the eastern part of Ontario where I live. Would you kindly advise?

2. What is the best time to order?

E. E. H.

Ans.—It does not seem to matter so much where the trees are purchased so long as the hardy varieties are procured. Any of the reliable Canadian nurseries advertising in these columns should be able to supply you with trees which would do well in your locality. Of course, you should not purchase the more tender varieties.

2. It is always best to order nursery stock early. For next spring's planting, orders placed now, or early in the winter, receive first attention. By ordering early, the grower is more likely to obtain just what is wanted.

BEE ESCAPE.

Seeing an article in "The Farmer's Advocate," issue of October 5th, by A. Klugh, re bee escape, and as I am interested in bees, I would like to have full particulars regarding bee escape, as my difficulty has been in getting the bees removed from surplus chambers.

J. G.

Ans.—Bee escape boards are furnished by bee supply houses, and are used as follows: First lift all the supers from the hive and slip the bee escape board on top of the brood nest and place the supers on top of the escape board. In 24 hours all the bees will have passed out below, and, being unable to get back again through the trap, the supers will be completely emptied without the aid of smoke. The bee escape board should be put on late in the afternoon, after the bees have ceased flying, and then the supers can be removed the following evening. This is the most satisfactory way of taking off comb-honey. The escape itself is known as the Porter bee escape.

NEW BRUNSWICK OATS FOR SEED.

As the past summer was very dry and oats are very light they will not make very good seed. I understand oats are good in New Brunswick. Would oats from there be suitable for the climate in the Niagara district?

W. W. M.

Ans.—The oat crop on the heavy moist soils in the Province of Ontario has produced a fairly satisfactory quality of grain for seed, and it would probably be safer for farmers located on the lighter soils, whose oat crop was prematurely ripened by the hot dry weather, to procure their supply of seed oats from good seed-growers on farms which they know to be clean in the district where they live. The advantage of changing seed grain from one soil and climate to another is a moot question; but with an inferior quality of home-grown seed, the advisability of using good clean imported stocks, true to kind, cannot be questioned. The Province of Prince Edward Island, the north of England and Scotland are excellent sources of supply for high-class seed oats grown in a cool, moist climate.
