many months with an awful skin disease, sores covering my ears, neck and cheeks. Scabs would form and they would swell, and itch day and night. Then they would break open and blood and matter run out. I had tried many different remedies, but use of them did me any good. I was growing worse when I tried the Cuticura Remedies. The first application helped me, and when I had used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, three boxes of Cuticura Cinical, and three bottles of Cuticura Resoivent, I was completely cured."

LORD CARLINGFORD'S LETTERS FROM THE OTHER WORLD.

Talk of the Earl From the Grave Stirs Up Comment In Occult Circles In London-Converted After Death-Lord Carlingford, Whose Earthly Existence Ended 8 Years Ago, Recommends the Strenuous Life.

It must be uncommonly interesting for a dead statesman, who from the other world is able to read the minds of living ones, to watch the course of political events here on earth. That is what the late Lord Carlingford is doing, if we may believe the letters to mankind which a woman cousin of his declares that she and a professional medium have written from time to time at his dictation. Some of these letters have just appeared in London in Broad Views, a monthly publication devoted to ghosts and occultism, and owing to the emin-ence of their reputed author the at-tention which the documents have at-tracted is not confined to those who believe that the dead can communicate

It may be recalled that Lord Carlingford, who died eight years ago, was an associate of Gladstone's and a big figure generally in the political world. As Chichester Fortescue he was chief secretary for Ireland in the administration which Gladstone formed in 1868; he was raised to the perage in recognition of his services in that office, and was made a Cabinet Minister in the Gladstonian Government of 1880. A. P. Sinnett, who edits Broad Views, declares there is not the slight-est doubt that the deceased statesman inspired the remarkable letters which nett, "Lord Carlingford began to communicate, from the other world, with his cousin, Mrs. Arthur Nugent, whose own psychic faculties enabled her to advertising is of comparatively modern invention, but a very slight study of the subject will be sufficient to con-vince the inquirer that it is, in point of fact, one of the most ancient of all civilized arts. Indeed, the first advertisement was probably coeval with the first man who had something to dispose first man who had something to dispose of or with the first woman who wanted something she had not got. It seems not impossible that the serpent tempted Eve to partake of the apple by means of a "puff paragraph," setting forth the merits of the fruit as a complexion beautifier. on Washing Day. Lace if ironed while wet will not need to be stiffened with starch or gum. A three gallons of water when boiling white clothes will help to get out the stains.

Handkerchiefs should have a little borax added to the rinsing water. This will give them the least suspicion of stiffness. Hot starch, if made with slightly soapy water, will give a nice gloss, and the flatiron will not stick to the clothes when ironing.

Powdered starch, if applied at once, will take out any fruit stain from table linen. If the stain has dried, moisten with whisky before sending to the

HOME ANNIVERSARIES

Encourage These Festivals and the Sentiments They Awake. The happiest households are those that do not let die out the sentiment connected with various anniversaries Although gift giving or recognition of such events in a suitable way may be out of the question owing to the straitened circumstances of those "within the gates," there can yet be a little air of festivity when mother's or father's birthday comes round or some wedding anniversary is to be celebrated, says the Indianapolis News.

An extra dish, a little bunch of flowers or some special music prepared for the occasion will show the kindly spirit and the loving remembrance that count for more than the money value of any gift. As the children grow up, if these festivals are encouraged, they will have much to look forward to and much more to remember in the years to come when they go out to do battle with the world and find that sentiment is crushed underfoot and affection is regarded only as a side issue.

An element that works for destruction in the average house plan is one's pet odds and ends of bric-a-brac. The smaller the pieces the greater the dan-ger of cheapening the effect as a whole. Nothing is more belittling to a room than a host of trifles scattered here and there. Yet we cling most naturally to our treasures. There are two ways of disposing of them so as not to mar the dignity of line and arrangement. One all favor the Canadian trade, if advan narrow shelf around the walls of the room, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The cabinet is almost always a wise plan and if carefully selected to correspond with the style of the other furnishings is an unobtrusive note in When the shelf is substituted, if it is to be high at all, let it come comfortably above the heads of standing persons, yet at the same time within easy reach.

Taking Care of Medicines. You can't be too careful about placmg poison bottles so that there's no danger of some one getting hold of them by mistake. If you have many such bottles—and some families have a hundred and one liniments, each carefully marked with its poison label -it is a good plan to set one small shelf aside in your medicine closet. If space is too valuable a thing to do this or your bottles too few, put everything of a poisonous nature in a box, marking the box as "Poison" in big let-ters. Being shut away from every other medicine makes you safe, especially if every member of the family is forbidden to touch that box. You're safer still if you can have it locked up.

Another plan is to add to the sea salt a grain of musk, a little essence of violet and finally about a teaspoonful of alcohol; set the bottle away for three days, turning it twice a day.

The appointment of a commission along the lines announced is condemned in many quarters here. The concensus of public opinion is that the only satisfactory way to remove all doubt would be to have a public Parliamentary enquiry. The appointment of a commission is regarded merely as a plan to burk such an investigation, and pull Senator Cox has with the powers that be in the Federal Government.
