SHARKEY'S BUILDING,

OPP. OFFICERS' BARRACKS, QUEEN ST.,

FREDERICTON, N. B.

T. E. FOSTER, - Proprietor

THIS HALL has been newly fitted up and handsomely furnished, and room, light, ventilation and neatness, compares most favorably with any Billiard Hall in the Dominion. The Billiard and Pool Tables are pronounced by players to be superior to any now in use in this Province.

They are the BRILLIANT NOVELTY, size, 41 x 9 feet.

The main object in the construction of the Billiard Novelty, and the one most noticeable, is that it embodies all the more salient or most important features that have rendered popular all the other styles of tables of the J. M. Brunswick & Sons Co.'s make. The Brilliant Novelty has all the advantages and good points, including the respective inlays claimed by the "Nonpareil" and "Exposition," "Novelty," "Acme" and "American"

Tables. The "Brilliant" is a happy combination of all those celebrated tables, and has rapidly taken the foremost place in the estimation of all players of Billiard and Pool Tables. The "Novelty" is finished and handsomely inlaid in many different colors, made up from California Laurel, Pearl Ash, French Walnut, Birds Eye Maple, Mahogany, Rose Wood, Tulip Wood and Ebony. It is supplied with the finest of Vermont State bed, Simeon Cloth, and a first-class outfit of everything necessary.

A call is respectfully solicited from lovers of the game.

Hall.

GRANT & WARD.

Galt tells how the Ex-President was Implicated in his Affairs.

New York, May 27.—The great talk of the town is Grant's implication by James D. Fish, saying that he was willing to give his whole influence for the firm of Grant & Ward to make money. This subject is being muddled by people who insist that Fish is as bad a man as Ward. Knowing the parties, and particularly Fish, whom I have talked with at some length since the failure, I have no doubt myself that Fish's standpoint is perfectly correct as far as himself is concerned. An old in-chant, never very original, he was able to become president of a small bank by reason of his economy and affability.

That bank was finally drawn into the general banking business of Wall street, which was based on security lending

Ward, with a penchant to become rich, found Fish agreeable, timid and made to his hand. In the boom of six years ago

Ward made money on the outside for Fish. He did so well that Fish assented to his making a firm of Grant & Ward, these two being the only spirits, namely,

"Buck" Grant, his father's namesake, and Ward. Fish was a special, and did not look into the business. He had not the ability, perhaps, to follow Ward's lightening mind. Young Grant was as indifferent about the means of making money as Ward. This can be proved by his attempts to get money everywhere. He offered a friend of mine 3 per cent. a month, who forthwith became afraid of him and would have no more business of any kind with him. This firm broke, and Ward undertook to conceal it from young Grant, whom he sent out to bring in money. Meantime General Grant had himself asked to come into the firm. He waited till he found the Chicago Convention would not nominate him for president, and then said he wanted to come in. Fish, with his old-fashioned closeness, was opposed to Grant's coming, because it would make too many men to divide the profits among Soon after Grant did come in I heard ru-mers about the solvency of the firm, and went to Fish as an old friend and told him. It may have been those very inquiries which made him write the letter to Grant. I know that a week or two after I told him some of these things he said to me that he had satisfied himself that the firm was all right. Fish knew nothing about government business, contracts or supplies. He evidently became surprised at the expansion of Ward's loans from his bank, and thought he would write a private letter to Grant to know whether there were contracts. That letter reassured him. At the same time I have no doubt that General Grant knew nothing on the subject. He had been in the habit of asking results to be the best kind of means for life. When a general brought him victory he promoted him over the heads of more scientific soldiers. When a financier brought him advantages, he reasoned: "The man is a fool who gets suspicious at a time like this." Thus, from their different standpoints, General

Grant and Fish were

In no sense secondaries, but as financiers and patriots they were both credulous and inseparable. Fish does not believe General Grant a bad man, but he merely says: "I am old and ruined, and have sons, and public opinion is trying to drive me into Ferdinand Ward's cell, and accuses me of having put up a scheme on General Grant. I gave Gen.

Grant notice two years ago, and he sat
