Mr. Crawley, in his service at the Baptist church on Sunday night; referred to the case which had terminated so favorably for him, and expressed his thanks to the congregation who had so faithfully supported him, as well as to those not connected with the church, for their kindness. He was very thankful also to the press of this city and province for kindness evinced towards him.

HEDGE HOG COURTESY .- Mayor Drysdale and the new board of councillors for Woodstock have already got at sword's points over the appointment of committees. The mayor was told that he could follow the usual custom and appoint committees if he left out the name of Mr. Vanwart. He replied that he did not want any hedge hog courtesy, and would place Mr. Vanwart on the road committee where he was last year. And now there is more or less friction.

Stipendiary Magistrate Gollon, of Pictou has an investigation of a bigamy case on hand. A man by the name of Daniel Hendriquin was arrested there on Thursday, 12th inst., charged with having married one Emma Connell at Pictou, in the month of September last, a former wife Cecil, to whom he was previously married at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, on July 17th, 1890, being then alive. The information was given by the former wife, who, on being interviewed gives her maiden name as Cecil White, a French lady, but speaks English quite intelligibly. She says that when she was coming home from her work by the way of Charlottetown, she agreed to marry this man. She furnished him with $16 to Dairymen and Farmers.

The meeting of the dairymen and farmers of the province in the city council chamber beginning on Wednesday, should be attended by all our farmer readers as many matters of importance to them particularly will be dealt with. As the progress of the province is in the hands of the agriculturists, and as the government has held out liberal inducements in their behalf, they should find it incumbent on them to be very active jury to bring in a true bill for murder in the matter. No better school can be found than this meeting offers, and all questions will be dealt with in a practical and exhaustive manner. The papers to be read are by authorities on the different subjects, and opportunities will be afforded for questions and discussion. Butter making, which is now taking a stride and is becoming one of our most important exports, will receive the fullest attention. What has been done in this regard has been of great benefit to farmers, and there is still chance for great improvement. All should attend.

Liberal Convention The convention called by the liberals of Queens and Sunbury counties at Gagetown, on the 18th, was one of the most representative gatherings of the kind ever held in that town. The Nashwaak Bridge

R. Foster with his crew has made good progress at the bridge across the mouth of the Nashwaak. Some of the piers have been torn down, and in a short time the work of construction will begin. It amuses the men to see the trio of mischief makers who furnish the opposition press with news about this work, cross the river each evening to retail it to the editors, especially as the workmen stuff them with "prepared copy" each afternoon. It is hardly fair to the bridge men to give them away in this manner, but it is unkind to the said editors to allow them to be "crammed" in this way. "Taking refuse bridge timber to build houses." and such chaff is prepared by the workmen for the packets who are the laughing stock of the whole village.

Bangor and Aroostook.

The Bangor and Aroostook railway is rapidly approaching completion. Contracts are let for the whole route, and a short time will see the line in operation. This road will very much effect the lumber business on this river, as mills will be erected in Maine to cut much of the lumber which is now sawn in St. John. It can then be carried on the cars to the large American markets at a much lower price than if driven from Aroostook by water, then sawn and carried to New York or Portland. What effect it will have on the boom company can not be said at present, but it must have some, and indirectly on this city.

SO SAYS THE COURT,

The McMichaels Sent to Dorchester for Two Years.

Geo. A. Hughes Complimented by the Chief Justice.

Older Prisoner Thanks the Court.

The trial of the prisoners Odber and Chas. McMichael, which has been one of the chief topics of discussion for the past three months began on Tuesday morning before his honor, chief justice Allen. Attorney General Blair appeared for the crown and G. A. Hughes for the prisoners. A grand jury composed

as follows was sworn: Ben Everett, foreman

The chief justice in a very clear and forcible manner detailed the evidence upon which the prisoners were held, dealing particularly with evidence respecting the shooting and the words used by the older prisoner on the occasion, "Let him lie there and die." He believed it was the duty of the against both prisoners. The jury then retired and having hear several witnessees, taking up most of the afternoon, they returned a bill for wilful murder against the prisoners. On Wednesday morning the prisoner were placed on trial before a jury composed jury said that they would have very lirect evidence as to how Titus came by his death, and that the evidence was conclusive that the prisoners Charles and Odber Mc-Michael being annoyed by Titus and Atkinson, fired the shot. It was for the jury to decide whether the case was one of murder or manslaughter.

Ran. Staples, the first witness sworn, gave similar testimony to that given by him at the preliminary investigation. He detailed the wrestling in McMichael's shop, the quarrel that arose and of the older prisone attempting to tear Titus' eye out. Tha about seven o'clock he heard a shot and on gamate the counties and laws were enacted going out doors he saw Titus lying on the bearing on this, fairly adjusted to the people street; that when he asked Odber Mcof both. Some rousing addresses were Michael "who did it," he replied, "my son made. When G. G. King began his address | Charles and I told him to do so, let him lie there and die, damn him ; I would shoot the Queen; I would shoot anybody." Cross examined by Mr. Hughes - He said that Titus was quarrelsome when drinking. Alex. Atkinson, who had been with Titus in the quarrel, testified that he with Titus had yisited McMichael's shop and that Titus and Charles McMichael had a wrestling match; he said that stones were thrown by both Titus and McMichael when the second row took place. The cross examination did not produce any material facts.

William Blane, sworn - Remember the 5th October: heard the row at McMichael's shop and went towards the shop; saw the man with Atkinson crouching down beside McMichael's window and throw something at the window; saw Odber McMichae throw a bottle out through the window saw Titus and Atkinson go away and return heard Odber say "bring out the gun" and saw Charles bring it out to the street. Titus then approached from the alley with his hand drawn back as though he had something to throw; he was almost in front of Staples shop when Charles fired the rifle treatment prescribed in such cases. Ad- and Titus fell.

Peter Hughes told about the wrestling in the shop; had helped to quell the row and then had gone away; went back in the evening and heard the shot; saw Titus on the street; heard Odber say he would shoot the Queen if she interfered with him.

Henry Flemming sworn — Described the throwing of the stone through the window by Titus; that Odber came out with bottles and threw them at Titus and Atkinson that Charles came out with the gun and fired holding the rifle to his shoulder. Odber said, "I did not do it, my boy did it and I told him to." To a juror he said, did not see Charles take aim, saw him put the rifle up and fire, could have taken aim himself

W. E. Vickery sworn - Was in a hous when heard the report of a gun; going out saw a man lying on his back on the street; heard Odber say "we went for him and got him. I'd shoot anybody, I'd shoot the Queen if she interferred.

H. F. Dayton sworn — Saw Odber shake out made an able and eloquent plea for deserved encore the gun at Atkinson; saw how Titus was stooped over just before the shot was fired: saw Charles come out with the gun after the shot was fired; heard Odber say, "let him lie there and die." Isaac Winn said that he was present whe the prisoners were arrested by Phillips and had brought the rifle to the police court. Paul Phillips told as to the arrest of the prisoners; that he found the gun loaded and other cartridges in the shop.

Wm. Atkinson sworn—said between six and seven o'clock heard Atkinson say "you struck me and I've got it in for you"; saw Titus go towards McMichael; was on the opposite side of the street; heard the report of the rifle and saw Titus fall; heard Odber say "my boy did it"; he said he would shoot the Queen if she interfered Cross examined - Said he did not see any bottles thrown. Mr. Estabrooks testimony was similar to

The severest construction would reduce the crime to self defence. who took part:

Miss Allen

The words of the old man after the shooting could not be taken as an indication of malice (cites authorities). They were rather the ravings of an unduly excited negro, who in his frenzy did not know what he said or did. A murderer with malice in his heart would not talk that way. He would keep his thoughts to himself and be very careful not to publish to the world what he had done or would do. The old man's actions instead of showing malice proved the reverse, and sustained the conention that at the time of the shooting he was excited beyond all reason.

In closing Mr. Hughes placed the case in the hands of the jury with the prayer that if they expected mercy themselves whencalled before the judgment bar at the last great day, they would show mercy to the prisoners in the verdict they would give. The attorney general followed on behalf of the crown in a calm and able address He felt that he must pay a just compliment to the young counsel for the prisoners in the way he had fought the case, and particularly in his address to the jury. He had represented the crown in many important cases and he could truly say that he had never heard a more able, logical and eloquent summoning up of the defence than he had heard this afternoon. He then reviewed the evidence and contended that the argument of the prisoners counsel that the hooting was justifiable was not substantiated by the evidence. He dwelt on the cirsumstances of the shooting at some length and left it to the jury to say whether they onsidered the evidence construed in the light of the law, as it would be explained to them by the judge, justified the higher slaughter. He had every confidence that the twelve men he saw before him would do their duty fearlessly and conscientiously. The chief justice charged the jury at some length explaining to them the difference between murder and manslaughter and justifiable homicide. If they thought sufficient provocation had been made out to rebut the idea of malice they should find manslaughter. If not it would be murder. In either case the father was equally guilty with the son. He warmly complimented the prisoner's counsel in the remarkably able way he had conducted the case for the defence. He had done everything he thought that mortal man could do, and had made the best out of whiat looked like a very hard case. He had never seen any McMichael. The judge said he agreed entirely with the verdict and sentenced the prisoners to two

The elder McMichael then arose and briefly addressed the judge, expressing sorrow at the position he was in, but said he was willing to defer to the sentence. He had had a fair trial and his honor had treated him as an honest and upright judge. He thanked his counsel for his efforts in his behalf. On his representing to the judge that he was suffering from heart disease his honor took off that part of the sentence requiring hard labor.

Deputy sheriff Hawthorn will take the risoners to Dorchester on Monday. Everybody who was present at the served compliments paid him by the judge and the attorney general. It was the first important criminal case in which Mr. Hughes had appeared, and it is not too much to say that by a single stroke he has established for himself a reputation that might be the envy of much older and crying duet with Miss Harrison more experienced practitioners. Mr. Hughes' handling of the case all through leserves the warmest commendation. He had small ground for his defence apparently, but with the materials at hand ne presented a chain of evidence, and supported it by an able argument that carried conviction to the minds of the jury. Mr. Hughes' address lasted over an hour and was delivered with a clearness, force and decision that delighted the audience which thronged the court house. He clearly dissected the testimony put in by the crown; showed its weak points; dwelt on the provocation to which the dwelt on the provocation to which the "Merry Monarch") was sung with spirit prisoners had been subjected, and throughhis clients. Both the learned chief justice and the attorney general warmly complimented Mr. Hughes on his effort, and his friends present took the earliest opportunity of expressing their delight at his triumph. While Mr. Hughes has rapidly come to the front in civil cases as an industrious and successful advocate, he has in the conduct of his first important criminal suit shown that he has in him the material that will undoubtedly command a leading position as a criminal lawyer at the bar of this province at no the stage management by L. It was one of the most enjoyable treats given here for years and the audience showed that they fully appreciated the performance. The entertainment is to be repeated on Monday evening when the price of admission will be twenty-five cents to all parts of the hall. Reserved seats at no extra charge may be secured at McMurray & Co's. There will be a slight change of program, some special features not before troduced will be put on. The proceeds etted the handsome sum of $307, and Monday's receipts should cast this into the shade It may be of passing interest to those who attended the Operetta, who read the criticism thereon in the Gleaner, on the day following, to know that the report was written by Harry McLeod. It is only fair to state, however, that the ill-bred remarks concerning one of those taking part was not handed in by Mr. McLeod, but subsequently inserted by that vindictive little man, who self styles himself "editor" and who it is perhaps unnecessary to say did not witness the performance. It is quite evident that editor Jimmy Crocket has not yet forgiven Mr. Racey for keeping him on the jail limits so long. Further comment is left to our readers.

The second part on the program was the much-talked-of operetta, "The Gipsy Pedlar." This is the first attempt ever made in Fredericton to produce opera by local talent, and the success that attended the initial performance reflects the highest credit upon Miss Annie Louise Lugrin who has trained the company with great care - soloists and chorus included — teaching them the music, besides stage action and all minor details. The music and dialogue by Herbert Harraden, was originally composed for parlor use, and limited to five persons only; but Miss Lugrin, with great care and study, granged

t with chorus and adapted it for a full acting company.

The ladies and gentlemen who compose the company are all well and favorably known in the province and their popularity would insure them large houses in any town outside of Fredericton. Urgent invitations have been extended to the management to repeat the performance of Tuesday evening, from St. John, St. Stephen and Woodstock, many friends from these towns being present on Tuesday evening.
