"Her Spirit Lives."

Seldom have we read anything more inspiring than the story of Miss Edith Cavell. She appears to have been the head of a Nurses training school at Brussels, and although she knew she was spied upon by the Germans and under suspicion of aiding British soldiers who escaped from the Germans, she resolutely determined to remain at her post as long as there were British soldiers to relieve in the coats under her care. In pursuance of the policy of "fraternalism," by which they imagine they can cow their foes, she was charged with succoring escaped British soldiers, taken before a military tribunal, condemned to death, and sentenced to be shot. Invited to sign a petition to the Kaiser to reprieve her of the death sentence, she shrugged her shoulders, and walked out with the dignity of a pure English lady, too proud to supplicate a Herod, and too peerless in spirit to succumb to the deeds of an Attila. Face to face with the muskets of the Hunns, she refused to allow them to bandage her eyes, but fearlessly looked them in the face, and proudly pinned a Union Jack on her breast. In life, she defied the "fraternalism" and in death testifying to the spirit that Britons prefer death to degradation.

Stimulated by such a glorious example of British intrepidity in a British nurse, the appeal of His Majesty the King for more men and still more men to aid the gallant men in the firing line and the gallant women behind the line, must galvanize the whole Empire into greater activity. The unconquerable spirit of Miss Edith Cavell will send a thrill through the heart of the Empire that must have its effect in calling to the colours hundreds of thousands of men of fighting age and fitness, who have not been able to respond in the past. In Newfoundland we are proud of the three thousand men who have responded without any very special appeal, to the call for men for the Newfoundland Regiment and the Newfoundland Naval Reserve, and we are no less proud of the six or seven hundred Newfoundlanders who have joined the colours in Canada and elsewhere. It is an assurance that the spirit of Miss Edith Cavell lives among Newfoundlanders and that as long as there is fighting to be done for the Flag, more and more men will flock to it.

Amusements.

ATLANTIS, FISK AND JACK TO PLEASE THE CHILDREN.

At the matinee to-day those clever artists will appear in their great novelty act with the electrical spectacular closing scene. Last night the crowd was positively delighted. On Monday those artists have another great offering. The contest was a huge success, Miss Conlin 1st prize, Mr. Cogdon, 2nd prize, and Mr. Power, 3rd prize. It was a very interesting contest and before the close of the show Mr. Rossley received three names for next Friday. Don't miss seeing the great act to-night. The pictures, too, are delightful. Mr. Rossley has some of the finest ever seen in St. John's. Send the children to the matinee to-day. Give them a chance to see an act that will delight them same as yourself; they might never have the chance to witness this particular act again.

AT THE CRESCENT PALACE.

Perhaps the best week-end program the Crescent has ever shown is on to-day, as the large audiences yesterday were greatly impressed with the excellence of every picture on the bill. "The Intriguer" being the first interest and the staging of this feature is perfect, the ball room scene being especially good. "A Tale of Old Tuscon" is one of the most dramatic western features filmed. The railroad drama: "The Engineer's Peril" is also a thrilling picture, while the comedy reel: "A Study in Tramps" is a very fine comedy that affords much laughter. Mr. Delmar's song: "He Kept on Saying-Good Night" is in the comedy vein also and made a great hit. On Monday a great mystery drama in 3 reels: "A Siren of Corsica" will be shown.

"THE TREY O' HEARTS" AT TRACTS CROWDS.

Delighted audiences attended the Nickel Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night. The pictures were about the finest ever seen in St. John's. Interest in the "Trey O' Hearts" is now very keen and all are charmed with it. The Vitagraph Co.'s social drama: "The Millionaire's Hundred Dollar Bill" is an attractive story, too. The "Hazard of Helen" proved popular and the comedy caused much laughter. Messrs. Huskins and Cairns sang splendidly and were warmly applauded. The entire programme will be repeated and it will no doubt attract large audiences.

The Mystery of Stonehedge.

Stonehenge, which has just been sold by auction, was at one time counted among the four wonders of England.

As long ago as the twelfth century Henry of Huntingdon classed it, and even in these days of marvels it still ranks as one of our greatest "show places" and one of the unsolved riddles of the world.

Who and how it was erected has always been a matter of dispute and puzzle among historians, geologists, and archaeologists. No one knows when it came into being or what people built it.

It has been attributed to the Phoenicians, the Druids, the Saxons, and the Danes by various authorities, while the object of it is equally uncertain. It has been recognized as a temple of the sun, a temple of serpent-worship, a shrine of Buddha, a gallow, and a calendar in stone for the measurement of the solar year. The general belief nowadays is that it was a place of burial during the bronze age.

How these huge masses of stone—the largest stands about twenty-three feet out of the ground—were in primitive times placed in position or brought the many miles which are between Salisbury Plain and the nearest seashore has never been satisfactorily explained. The labour involved must have been stupendous. Stonehenge apparently possesses a particular interest for American tourists; and it is a recognized spot with many people from which to see the sun rise on midsummer day morning.

HUGE ROLL OF HONOR.

Very few people are aware that the names of the 20,000 heroes who died for the Empire in the South African War are preserved in a special book in Cape Town.

It is a beautiful book of nearly 450 pages, and contains a complete and classified record of the officers and men, including Colonial contingents, and nurses, who died in the name of duty.

It took three years to prepare, and cost over £800. The leaves of the book consist of selected lambskins, and the ink is composed of pure carbon. These materials were selected by experts as being the best obtainable to last in the climate of South Africa.

The men are placed under the names of their regiments, and the regiments are arranged according to their historical order or precedence; while the forces of the overseas colonies are placed in alphabetical order.

All the names are in plain black, but honours such as the "V.C." and so on are "writ in letters of gold." The gold leaf used was the purest gold without the slightest trace of alloy.

The idea was conceived by the late Archbishop of Cape Town, who also had a special wing built to his cathedral as a memorial.

What will be the dimensions of the Empire's Roll of Honour in the present titanic struggle?

Cable Ship Arrives

Had Bolsterous Weather and Sustains Damage.—Two of the Crew who are Badly Injured are Landed Here.

The two-funnel cable steamer Farady entered port last midnight for cable supplies and to land two members of her crew who are suffering from severe injuries. After coaling at Sydney, C.B., the ship left there on September 1st for Mid-Atlantic where she was engaged cable repairing. The ship reported having had bolsterous weather, especially during this month. Recently a succession of heavy storms were encountered and as a result a lot of the ship's cables and buoys were carried away and other damage sustained. While the ship was being tossed about by the huge waves Jas. Barry, leading stoker on board, and Walter Jordan, boatswain, received heavy falls. Barry had both legs broken in two places, while Jordan who was dashed into the hold of the ship received a broken thigh and was otherwise bruised about the body. The victims were landed here this morning at the King's wharf and conveyed to the General Hospital in the ambulance. The Farady was here 14 years ago. She is 5028 tons gross and 2934 net, built in 1874 and owned by Siemens Brothers, of London. As soon as she gets cable supplies and provisions the Farady will go to sea again. Messrs. Bowring Bros. are agents for the ship.
