observe the laws of heraldry. If, for instance, you want to have yellow in a flag, you must, to be in order, have black also. The correct combination appears in the Belgian flag. But the new Belgian Royal Standard sets tradition and usage at defiance. It is purple, with a gold shield in the middle, surmounted by a crown. Some of the new national flags, moreover, are distinctive without being indicative. They have been created in nearly as haphazard a fashion as were many house flags in our mer-

A good instance is the "duster" of a certain firm. Originally this was the Red Flag of St. George, which is identical with the flag of an admiral in the navy. One day the admiral commanding a certain station saw in the harbor one of the firm's ships fixing its house flag, whereupon he sent a message to the captain, ordering him to remove it immediately. The skipper had to obey, but he was not defeated. Twenty minutes after the flag had been down, it was run up again, with a blue silk handkerchief sewn in the middle, and this was afterwards the louse flag of the firm as long as it existed.

Wel-known national flags were not created in this casual manner. When Napoleon made Italy a kingdom, he decided to have a flag which, while distinctive, should indicate, by its close resemblance to that of France. the source to which it owed exist green, white, and red. This flag, hough suppressed on the downfall of Napoleon, was revived by the Italian Nationalists, in 1848, and, with the addition of the arms of Savoy, accepted by the King of Sardinia as the ensign of New Italy

Perhaps the most elaborate, and therefore most perplexing, national flag is that of Tibet, because, apart from the main design, which is curiously complex, the spaces in it are filled up with alternate triangles of

The Canadian Government is considering the most suitable design for the Canadian national flag for use ashore. The Canadian flag now authorized is used by the Governmentowned vessels and other vesels on the Canadian registry. In the former case the flag is the Blue ensign with the Canadian arms in the fly, while merchant vessels on the Canadian registry use a similar Red Ensign. Some years ago it was provided that the Red Ensign, with the Canadian arms in the fly, be flown over the office of the High Commissioner in London as well as over Canadian offices abroad, but the flag was never authorized.

A Generous Job

A Holyoke, Massachusetts, man in Worcester found that he had spent all his money, and began looking about for a chance to earn some. Seeing a group of men digging for the foundation of a new building, he asked the foreman if he could go to work. "Sure" a shovel." Picking up an idle shovel. the newcomer worked away for a couple of hours. Finally, when he paused for a rest, one of the men who was working beside him said:

"What are you doing here?" asked
