The Clerks Saw the Procession.

New York, July 30.—A traveling circus arrived in Sag Harbor, L. I, to-day, and there was the usual procession. While this was passing through the streets at about 11 o'clock, people crowded on the sidewalk to see it and among the spectators were the clerks of the Pecunic Bank. One clerk was left in charge of the banking room but he was looking out of the window and a cool thief sauntered into the bank by a back door and succeeded in seizing a package of money, said to contain $3,500, going out the way he came to and making his escape in the crowd.
