the case of other petitions against Conservative candidates in this Province. They want no trials to take place, because, they say, the petitions were lodged with the wrong clerk.

The impression seems to have got into the heads of some people that the titions filed against the election of Conservatives were in this regard careless, but as a matter of fact, the question of the appropriate officer was carefully discussed some days before any petitions were filed, and by the most eminent counsel in Toronto. On the advice of these counsel, the petitions were filed in the office of Court of Justice.

It does not appear that there is any the exposure of wrongdoing by the then to different telephones to summon Conservative candidates or their doctors, while the others did all they agents. It looks very much like a technical quibble. The court of trial ployer asked at the house if the work painters in Canada, and the same for election petitions is a Dominion count, fixed by a Dominion statute, the not leave the house to call for help, judges of the High Court of Judica- nor did the men need to be called a ture in Ontario being selected by the Dominion Parliament, and created a court for the trial of election petitions. No rules have been passed prescribing any other officer for the purpose of election petititons than thus designated under the act, consequently the registrar of the High Court of Justice is, as heretofore, clerk of the court for the purpose of receiving election petitions under the act. The rules of practice in the Ontario courts. passed under the authority of the Judicature Act, have no bearing in proceedings under the elections act. Although he had been born with the right to vote, he was a member of the Anti-Corn Law League, movement. Since he arrived in Canada, he was a consistent supporter of the Reform cause, and many of our older citizens will remember the active part which he took in the elections in this city in years gone by. He was very well read, and possessed a most retentive memory. His mind was stored with most interesting personal recollections of the great recollections of the great political struggles during the first half of this century, and of the great men who took part in them.

The deceased took a very active part in starting the Western School of Art at his home awaiting removal to the and Design, at which he was a director at the time of his death. On the forming of the Royal Canadian Academy in 1880 he was one of the sixteen painters selected from the Dominion of Canada to be a Royal Canadian academician. He exhibited a number of his pictures in the Canadian depart-ment of the World's Fair at Chicago in 1892, when the art critic of the Chicago Herald, on reviewing the Canadian picture exhibit, declared that Mr. R. L. O'Brien and Mr. James Griffith, of London, were the best water color worried Hayes, and they said he did critic, finishing a three months' survey of the fair, pointed out what "everyone should see," included Mr. James Griffith's picture of Canadian roses among the 50 best pictures to be found in the entire art building.

During the many years of his occupation in the court house he was on the most friendly terms with the degal profession, especially with the younger members and students, all of whom were wont to regard him as their "guide, counsellor and friend."
Many lawyers practicing in this Province look back with gratitude to the ever ready assistance and advice which they received from James Grif-fith. Seven Persons Killed Injured.

Brakes Failed to Work and the Car Dashed Down the Grade.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 10.—A runaway trolley car on the Columbia and Done-gal Railway last night killed seven persons and injured 50 more.
The car was returning to Columbia from Chickies Park, when the wrake rigging broke while descending a steep at his residence, "Bleak House," Brick grade. There were about 90 passengers aboard, who became panic-stricken when they saw the car was beyond control. The hill was a long one, and every moment the runaway gathered by those on board that it was running fully a mile a minute when it struck a sharp curve and left the track. ran across the turnpipe running parallel with the trolley road and struck against a tree, and then toppled over The subject of this notice was born
