TUNNEL TOWN TERRORS MEET WESTERN TONIGHT

Local Northern League Season Opens With Promising Battle Between Students and Sailors-Rueter Will Be in Nets for Locals.

The Northern League will open its season in this city tonight, when the Sarnia and Western University teams meet in the University Arena, out in East London. This will be the Sarnia team's first appearance here in a league game since that eventful night last winter, when London's O. H. A. hopes went glimmering, when the locals falled to score one more goal and tie the round up. So far, Western has not won a game in the Northern League series but this delay to score one more goal and tie the round up. So far, Western has not won a game in the Northern League series but this delay to score one more goal and tie the round up. So far, Western has not won a game in the Northern League the round up. So far, Western has not won a game in the Northern League series, but this does not put the team out of the running. Both games lost have been away from home, and by winning the games here the team can keep in the race for the honors. A double schedule is being played in this district, so that there are plenty more games before the championship is decided.

Should Use Ritchie at Centre.

Just what line-up will be used gainst Sarnia tonight is uncertain. The management of the team hints at surprise, and the fans can look for good game, with an even chance of he locals coming out on top. A slight hange in the make-up of the team light give it added effectiveness. This hange would be putting Arthurs at might give it added effectiveness. This change would be putting Arthurs at left wing and letting Ritchie play centre. The Port Arthur boy should make a good centre player. He likes lots of ce, and his stick-handling ability would make him doubly effective. He also likes to loaf around the nets, and that is one of the main qualifications as a centre man. Arthurs has played the wing position a good deal and works well there.

The "Bad Man of Hockey;" Reputation Clouds His Ability and Gameness

Joe Hall, Famous Quebec Star, Is One of N. H. A. Greatest Players, But His Reputation for Dirty Hockey Makes Him Little Appreciated.

"You might as well hang a dog as give it a bad name," is the old saw which some newspapers and some alleged students of hockey are trying always to apply to Joe Hall, the famous defence player of the Quebec N. H. A. team. Joe Hall is the proud possessor of the unique title "The Bad Man of Hockey." But he has gone along for years with the name. He is still playing a strenuous, effective article of the game, and drawing his money regularly. Each December the fans begin to ask where that man Hall is, and whether he is going to turn up for the season again. Meanwhile, Joe takes a last look at his farm near Brandon, Man.

on top twice, in 1911 and again in 1912, Joe was recognized as one of the most effective players in hockey. Strenuous is the word which characterized his work. He checked the men, and kept them from getting goals, which is one of the grievances against him. When he rushed he went for all that was in him, and his shot was wicked. He did everything too hard, the critics said

But what really got him his repustation was his ability to "call" a player who squealed when hurt, and to pay his respects to referees. He came to feel that the referees were heeding the clamor of critics, and were paying him more than one-twelfth of their attention. This did not make him more gentle or polite, and most people have forgotten all about Hall's great ability and his samenes. and his gameness. and his gameness.

The Quebec fans have stood by the lanky defence man. They know that when Quebec needs a goal or two badly, and chances are slim, it is likely to be Hall who makes the spurt that pute the team back in the running. They also admire his frankness when he says, "I do not pretend to be an angel," I get them hard, but there are others who do worse, and why should I be the goat?"
