Kidney Trouble

The proper functioning of the kidneys, above all other organs, is essential to the maintenance of normality in the body. This is because the kidneys are concerned with keeping the circulation of the body normal so far as the quality of fluid which they contain is concerned.

Importance of Kidney Function. As it is true that the blood is continually receiving new red cells, new white cells and new serum, it is equally true that it must continually discharge the old, wornout particles which are no longer of value. This it does very largely through the medium of the kidneys

These cells, however, are in themoly selves merely materia; things. Of their connex accord they could not conceive and consummate an intelligent and control of an intelligence which can and does direct their action. It has been scientifically proven that the only intelligence resident within the body is that which is derived from the brain. If the intelligence is derived from within the brain, and if it is expressed in the cells of the kidney, then there must be some means of communication between these two organs in order that the one may convey to the other the necessary mental energy to control its function. Scientists agree that this is done strongh the mechanism of the nervous system. The spinal cord is given off from the brain and this cord in turn gives off numerous nerve trunks. These trunks then divide and subdivide until very minute nerve filaments are formed. These filaments permeate every part of the body and supply every cell with the necessary mental energy.

Abnormal Function.

Let us consider for a moment the far reaching effect that abnormal functioning of the kidney will produce. First, such a condition dams back the waste products which should be excreted. These products are worse than useless. They are an actual poison to the tissues. Remaining as they do in the circulation, they are passed time after time through all parts of the body. Being poisonous, they naturally affect first those organs which possess the least resistance, and as this varies in different individuals, so the symptoms which arise from such a condition are Bourgeois and Peasant Together.

In this respect the kidneys are not different than are other organs. Their cells receive mental energy from the cells receive mental energy from the brain through the nervous tissue and it is because of this fact that they are able to carry on properly the function which is assigned to them. It is also true that the cells of the kidney must be supplied with this mental energy in order that they maintain life, keep healthy, and thus be in a condition to properly function. Thus we see that not only the condition of the kidney cells is dependent upon the nerve supply which reaches them, but also the very impulse which impels them to take from the circulations the distinct part of the little clipping was from the directuations.

A tiny clipping from a newspaper, mailed without comment from a secret band of terrorists in Zagreb, a capital of Croatia, to their comrades in Belgrade, was the torch which set the world afire with war in 1914. That bit of paper wrecked old, proud empires. It gave birth to new, free nations.

I was one of the members of the terrorist band in Belgrade which received it, and in those days I and my companions were regarded as disperate criminals. A price was on our heads. Today my little band is seen in a different light, as pioneer patriots. It is recognized that our secret plans, hatched in an obscure cafe in the capital of old Serbia, have led to the independence of the new Jugo-Slavia, the united nation set free from Austrian domination.

By October 12, the date of Princip's trial, his prison sufferings had worn trial, his prison sufferings had worn him to a skeleton. Though he knew he was not long for this world he bore himself calmly and proudly. He believed in the ultimate victory of Serbia in the war which had broken out and rejoiced in his part in bringing it about. He regretted only that the people he loved so greatly would have to suffer so much in a war. have to suffer so much in a war.

The trial began. Princip displayed absolute self-control. The Austrian prosecution tried in vain to force him schools in the occupied provinces and with revolutionary organizations which had their headquarters in Belgrade. He led student strikes, joined the secret organizations, distributed propaganda, and was ready for any dangerous enterprise.
