Willie's Long Pants

He holds his head up in the air and whistles as he goes;
There's not a prouder boy to-day in this land, I suppose.
He's grown two inches over night; you'd know it at a glance;
Yes, Willie's quite important now that he is in long pants.

For months he had been teasing to appear in grown man's style, but mother wanted him a boy, and made him wait awhile;
But now her baby's disappeared, he's taken an advance;
To man's estate he's grown at last. Yes, Willie's in long pants.

How Willie holds his head up as he travels down the street, ignoring all the joshing of the playmates he may meet,
He's complimented by the girls, his uncles and his aunts,
They say that Willie's quite a lad since he has donned long pants.

He struts about with haughty mien, as lofty as you please;
He doesn't seem to care a bit if we start in to tease,
But out the door he calmly goes in blissful ignorance,
Of what the world may say or do, since he has donned long pants.

Then let come trouble, pestilence, disease or anything,
Our Willie boy won't worry; he's as happy as a king;
He's always sighed to be a man, and now he has the chance,
The trail to Boyland's disappeared, since Willie's donned long pants.

A Smile or Two

The new minister in a Georgia church was delivering his first sermon. The negro janitor was a critical listener from a back corner of the church. The minister's sermon was eloquent, and his prayers seemed to cover the whole category of human wants.

After the services one of the deacons asked the old negro what he thought of the new minister.

"Don't you think he offers up a good prayer, Joe?"

"Ah mos' sustainly does, boss. Why dat man axed de Lord fo' tings dat de udder preacher didn't even know he had?"—Christian Herald.

Woman (excitedly): "Have you filed my application for a divorce yet?"

Lawyer: "No, ma'am, but I am at work at the papers now."

Woman: "Thank fortune! I am not too late. Destroy all papers and evidence at once, please."

Lawyer: "A reconciliation has been brought about between you and your husband, I infer?"

Woman: "Gracious, no! He was run over and killed by a train this morning, and I want to retain you in my suit against the company for damages."

It was during the dinner hour and Mike and Pat were playing seven-up while waiting for the whistle to blow. In the midst of the game Pat paused.

"O'll bet you twenty-fove cints, Moike," said he, "hot Oi kin cut th' ace of diamonds th' furthest shot."

"O'i, wid yez, Pat," promptly replied Mike, producing the coin.

Whereat Pat carefully shuffled the cards, and then, going to another part of the building and getting an adz, he cleanly cut the deck in two.

"O'll take the twenty-fove cints, Moike," he happily remarked. "O'i guess Oi cut th' ace of diamonds, all right!"

"Begorra, an' Oi don't think yez will," responded Mike, taking the card from his pocket. "O'i slipped it from the deck whin yez wint afther th' adz."

An Irishman was in the habit of getting drunk. His wife told him that he must not come home when he was drunk. One night he became intoxicated, and remembered his wife's command. To appease her he bought some chrysanthemums. When he reached the bottom of the stairs he called out: "Have you been drinking?" "No," he answered, "I have been buying you some chrysanthemums." "Oh," he murmured, "why didn't I get roses?"

Electricity Makes the Chickens Grow

London, Aug. 19.—A long succession of ingenious experiments have been privately made in the effect of electricity upon the growth both of plants and animals, and, according to The London Daily Mail to-day, it is now possible to say, with some approach of confidence, that startling results have been reached in one direction. Beyond all question, young poultry respond to electric stimulus applied in a particular way, with astounding rapidity. They surpass the best on record in the speed of growth at this time of the year, and they keep their health in crowded conditions.

In the south of England, on the biggest poultry farm in the world, an experiment of this nature has just been completed. Of eight hundred chickens in two equal groups, 400 were nurtured on the intensive system—that is, in flats, almost trays, one above the other. One group of 400 was treated by this electric system and so charged were the chickens with electricity that the shock could be distinctly felt if the finger was placed to the beak of the chicken. The chickens in the group grew to remarkable size, that is as petit poussins, in five weeks, and of the 400 only six, and those weaklings in the beginning, died off.

Of the other 400 nearly one-half died, it being late in the year for healthy growth, and the survivors took three months to reach a marketable size. This experiment was followed by other experiments in which similar, though not so striking, results were obtained. Trials on a yet larger scale are being prepared, and there is at any time reasonable hope that an instrument of real value in the intensive production of food has been found.

Musical Humor

(From Woman's World.)

A famous musician called Bottesini was in New York and folks were in raptures over his playing. A Fifth avenue hostess, famous for her social gatherings, turned to a young man beside her and said, "Oh, don't you love Bottesini?" The young man tugged at his moustache. "Well," he said, "to tell the truth, I have always preferred red wines." Then the "wise" man came along, gripped his young friend by the arm, pulling him forcefully away from the hostess, and muttering in his ear: "My dear fellow, don't make an ass of yourself. Bottesini isn't a wine; it's a cheese."

SIX MORE DEATHS TO-DAY

Consumption the Cause

Six people die every day in Ontario from Tuberculosis—at the rate of one person every four hours—a total of over 2300 deaths every year—equivalent to the wiping out and loss to the community of a good sized town.

An appalling loss of life. The dreadfulness of this continual sacrifice is quite unnecessary. These lives, or most of them, might be saved.

Pioneering work in the Crusade against Consumption has been done by the National Sanitarium Association. The hospitals at Muskoka and Weston are to-day standing evidence of the magnificent achievements of the Association.

One branch of the Association work—a free illustrated Lecture with one hundred lantern views—is delivered by Mr. J. B. Watson, the Field Secretary of the Association.

This lecture will be given on Tuesday evening, September 2nd, at 8 o'clock, in the Methodist Church. A collection will be taken up at the close.

"The amount of information which Mr. Watson was able to convey to his hearers in a short time was marvellous. His style of delivery was excellent."

"Those who heard Mr. Watson's lecture were interested, informed and pleased."

"The wonderful lecturer gave most valuable information in a manner most thoroughly entertaining."

"Admirably practical and instructive."

"A speaker of unusual ability."

"A most thrilling lecturer."

Such is the chorus of praise, without any note of dissent, which has greeted Mr. Watson's lecture during the past eighteen months.

The lecture explains in a simple, interesting, and complete way exactly what the disease is, how to avoid it, and how to treat it.

Parents especially should know how to protect themselves and their children. Every private individual—man, woman, and child—is in danger and should know how to combat it.

It is not too much to say that this lecture has been the means of saving many lives. It answers questions everybody is anxious to know. It is simplicity itself—a child can understand.

To attend the lecture is a privilege. We heartily commend it to our readers.

Sarnia Man Beats Wife

Sarnia, Aug. 21.—Albert Williamson, a well-known resident, beat his wife and family last night, it is alleged, and is locked up in jail. Williamson started on the warpath in the approved style, and succeeded so well that he drove the family out into the street in a terror-stricken condition. One of the daughters ran all the way down to the police station and notified the officers, who hastened to the scene and placed the man under arrest. Williamson is an elderly man, and this is the first time he has been brought to the attention of the police. It is believed he was intoxicated at the time. He was given two months in jail.

In 1863

The Liverpool ship Harold, 1,200 tons, with a cargo of wheat, arrived at Queenstown recently from Decree Bay, Australia, in command of Captain Charleton, who performed the extraordinary feat of navigating his vessel a distance of 15,000 miles to Queenstown without the aid of a single officer.

The voyage occupied 108 days. Captain Charleton endeavored to get officers for his ship at Adelaide, Melbourne and Sydney, but without avail.

He went for stretches of six weeks without removing his clothes, and slept on the poop of the ship on a cabin chair during most of the 108 days. His crew, with the exception of two men, were all foreigners.

Advertising Pointers

No one lies awake thinking of your business; out of print out of mind.

Advertising is an insurance policy against forgetfulness. It compels people to think of you.

The time to advertise is all the time. The man who fishes longest has the largest basket of fish.

Advertising does three things: It informs the public who you are, where you are, and what you have to sell, thus backing your salespeople.

Like eating, advertising should be continuous. When to-day's breakfast will answer for to-morrow's, you can advertise on the same principle.

Advertising is the silent drummer that tells the public what the business man wants it to know about the goods he has for sale—an injection of advertising into the veins of trade grows the business heart.
