Saturday morning Mr. Brine was at the Police Station and when he heard that the victim of the accident had not been identified, he at once went to the Hospital and was able to identify her as his wife. Mrs. Brine's condition remained the same all day Saturday and she passed away about midnight.

On Saturday aftergoon, Stipendiary Fielding issued a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Pride, charging her with causing grievous bodily harm to Mrs. Brine, by not driving her auto in' a reasonable manner. His military fame has arisen chiefly since the South African war of ten years ago, when, despite a sensational controversy with Major General Hutton which defied all British military conventions, he did very useful work for Lord Kitchener in the latter's cleaning up operations which were in some degree performed by irregular forces. A native of Durham county, he has been a military officer since 1873, when he was gazetted a lieutenant-colonel in 1897. He has been many other things. Like his brother, James L. 3. C.'s First Government House Is Fast Disappearing.

Scarcely twenty miles from Victoria, British Columbia, as the crow flies, but almost as far removed as the Pole for all the acquaintance which residents of this Provincial Capital have with it, or with the circumstances of its greation and occupancy one of with it, or with the circumstances of its erection and occupancy, one of the truly historic buildings of British Columbia is fast crumbling with decay. Unless action is soon directed toward the preservation of this landmark of pioneering days and of the infancy of popular Government on Vancouver island, the obliteration of the first Government House erected and occupied as such in this westernmost colony of the British Empire must within a few short succeeding years be made complete.

years be made complete.

At present the strong, rough-hewn, low walls still stand staunchly, low walls still stand staunchly, though many gaping wounds bear testimony to the severity of Time's assaults. Doorways and windows yawn vacantly; the roof and the main chimney, of country-rock, have fallen in; and moss and creeping vines strive with a pitiful bravery to veil and even make beautiful the hideousness of ruin and forgetfulness. In one end of the abiding place in time long past of gubernatorial dignity and splendor, a couple of alien miners have, with a patchwork of coal-oil tins, evolved a nondescript and grotesque habitation; while what was once the governor's garden humbly bears tribute to the productiveness of the soil in the thrift garden humbly bears tribute to the productiveness of the soil in the thrift of the Chinese squatters in yearly dividends of onions, beans, and potatoes. Two or three times a season, perhaps, some hunter, ranging far afield, pauses for a moment either to look at the crumbling threshold or to take toll of the two neglected apple trees which sentinel the portals, planted by the governor's winsome daughters in the long ago.

Gone are the stalwart miners with their high hopes, and abiding faith in nature's bounty—the campers of the argonaut army—the sights and sounds of exuberant and optimistic mining exuberant and optimistic minin camp activity. What was in 1864 and 1865 the busiest community in West-

1865 the busiest community in Western America, just such a typical camp as Bret Harte pictures in his Nevada classics, has once again reverted to the wild. The ruins of the Government House, fragments of slowly decaying flume, worm-eaten rockers, crumbling cabins, and an occasional Chinese miner,—the vulture of the mining camp whose day is over,—these remain to mark the brief but spectacular chapter in Vancouver island's history when all eyes were turned toward the confluence of the Leech River and the Sooke, and Leechtown, at the junction, was for Epoch-Making Saskatoon. made a big program and large excitement. With twelve of the bylaws the citizens agreed; especially one which has taken them two years to smooth out the wrinkles. This proposition was to allow a corporation called the Saskatchewan Power Co. the right of harnessing the river near Saskatoon, handing over to them the job of turning the factory wheels of the town. The power plant will go up—cost one million dollars; guaranteed to sell the juice at the rate of between thirty and thirty-five dollars. Altogether, this power scheme is quite the most metropolitan feature which has developed in Saskatoon during its history. Which is saying a great deal. Seven years ago, Saskatoon was a hundred people in shacks connected with the cutside by a very shaky and erratic stub railroad. In 1903, there were seven thousand people in the town—double what there were in 1906. In three years the assessment jumped from $750,000 to seven million.

What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."
