

Muff's grave?' And he stood right up in the cradle and was going to say 'yes' only he had to yawn just then, so I took him into the garden and you can't think what trouble he took to pick the flowers all right, and dear mother, don't you think it will comfort Ailsie a little to know that dear Snobby was so sorry and so kind?"

"I think it will comfort her," said Mrs. Gray, "to know that some one was so sorry and so kind," but little Molly never thought for a minute that mother could mean her.
