THE GREAT 7-30 U. S. LOAN.

Advantages of this investment to Capitalists and Commercial men in Canada and Great Brition.

With gold at a premium of 40 per cent. (as at present) $71.44 Canadian Currency will purchase $100 of this loan, on which amount the U. S. Government pay $7.30 interest annually. Should U. S. Currency reach par in two years—and now that the war is over there is every reason to believe that it will do so much sooner—the hundred dollar bond, which to-day costs $71.44 in gold, will then be worth, interest included, $115.10 in gold, which would be equal to 30 per cent. per annum on the investment. And for the payment of this the whole lands and other property of the United States are pledged.

As an example of the large profit that has been made by investing in these securities take the former series of this loan, $100 of which in July, 1864, cost $40 in gold, and which now, owing to the increased value of U. S. Securities, is worth $76.70 in gold, showing a clear profit of $36.70, equal to [illegible] per cent per annum on the amount invested; and if this advance took place while the war was still in existence we may reasonably expect a similar advance now that the war is over.

Parties owing debts in the U. S. for goods, lands, or [illegible] are enabled to take advantage of the present premium on Canada currency; and if such debts are not due for some time to come they are daily gaining interest on the Bonds in addition to the premium on their money.
