

EXCHANGES.

The Missionary Herald provides profitable and interesting reading for all who are interested in mission work, as it is full of missionary news from all quarters. The January number contains an article on the Parsis, which the readers of the Herald will enjoy.

In speaking of periodicals devoted to missionary work, we cannot pass by the Illustrated Missionary News, which is published in London, England, and is of a more popular character than many missionary papers.

If a man wants to keep up with the thought of the time let him read the Literary Digest, published in New York. This magazine is "a weekly compendium of the contemporary thought of the world," containing comprehensive condensations of papers and magazine-articles on all the leading questions of the day. No one knows better than the student the value of digests.

There is none of our exchanges more welcome than Grip, none more eagerly sought after. Although it deals with political and social questions it is non-partizan, its morality is pure and healthy, and its influence cannot but be for good. Its cartoons are volumes in themselves. Grip is a paper which should be found in every Canadian household.

The reviving sentiment of kindness to dumb animals has many advocates in our own day and generation. Among our exchanges Our Animal Friends and Our Dumb Animals, the former published in New York and the latter in Boston, are devoted to this worthy cause. The former is very suitable for children but the latter has much that the wisest might read with advantage.

Evangelical Christendom, a monthly pamphlet, published by J. S. Phillips, 121 Fleet St, London, Eng., is the organ of the Evangelical Alliance, and advocates that all evangelical Christians should sink their minor differences, and devote their common energies to the extension of Christ's kingdom in the world. The January number contains articles from the pens of eminent writers.

One of our most valued exchanges is the Theologue, published by the undergraduates of the Presbyterian College of Halifax. It sets up no great pretensions, claiming its right to exist only as an exponent of college thought and life. Its editors are modest. The Theologue is really well edited and is a credit to Pine Hill. We wish you abundant success, Bro. Theologue!
