

The change in this man's condition in one week was simply wonderful. All the unpleasant symptoms from which he had suffered so long were entirely relieved. The fermentation of the food and the resultant formation of gas was almost nil, and he began to think life worth living after all. He steadily improved day by day, and now, as I said at first, he has been four weeks without the Glyco-Thymoline or any other medicine, and considers himself a perfectly well man, although he is still fairly careful about his diet, and from present appearances it only remains for me to modestly receive the heartfelt thanks of his long-suffering wife, whose life for years he has made a perfect Hades upon earth; his own profuse thanks, and incidentally a little something on account, which by the way is not quite so profuse as the thanks.

Now, this is almost my first experience with Glyco-Thymoline internally, but if I get as good results in all cases I shall certainly ask for nothing better in this class of cases, and if the patients do any kicking they will surely be hard to please.—G. B. Murray, M.D., Greenwich, N.Y.

DERANGED UTERINE FUNCTION.—It is safe to say that to the average physician, who is confronted almost daily with the ordinary cases of suppressed and deranged uterine function, no other class of cases is so uniformly disappointing in results and yields so sparing a return for the care and time devoted to their conduct.

Patients suffering from disorders of this nature are usually drawn from the middle walk of life, and, by reason of the pressure of household duties or the performance of the daily tasks incidental to their vocation, are entirely unable, in the slightest degree, to assist, by proper rest or procedure, the action of the administered remedy. Many of these patients, too, suffer in silence for months, and even when forced by the extremity of their sufferings to the physician, shrink from relating a complete history of their condition and absolutely refuse to submit to an examination. Authoritative medical teaching and experience unite in forcing upon the attendant a most pessimistic view of his efforts in behalf of these sufferers under such conditions.

It is in this class of practice, where almost everything depends upon the remedy alone, that a peculiarly aggravating condition of affairs exists. A very limited list of remedies of demonstrated value is presented for selection, and I believe I
