

Junior High School movement in the United States, that they shall be differently trained teachers.

DEAN HENDEL: So there would not be question of some schools taking on part of the Junior High School extent, with limitations that a great deal of the scientific or rather technical work is not under our control?

DR. PERCIVAL: It does mean that, that is, as I know the 6-6-3 plan in the States, and I endorse, to a large extent, that principle that there is there; that is to say, with regard to its principle, not with regard to our system of 6-3-3.

THE PRINCIPAL: There is one question, Dr. Percival, and it is this: Conceding the difficulties here of applying this recommendation, do you think, on the whole, the general substance of these conclusions and recommendations of the Survey

Committee are desirable? it is not an absolutely

DR. PERCIVAL: Well, that is a specific question, but takes the place of the Minister of Education. Our Council does not function as in Nova Scotia or British Columbia. in Quebec.

DR. PERCIVAL: No. In this respect: in British Columbia, particularly in British Columbia, the University is under the control of the Department of Education, Protestant Education to proceed on?

DR. PERCIVAL: It is my contention that we are proceeding along many of these lines. That is just the
