

CHAPTER III.

The probable future of Panama.—South American railroads projected.—Gold-seekers in Panama.—Large importation of fruit-trees into California.—American improvements in Panama.—Alleged ill-treatment of emigrants by ship-owners.—The green mountain Yankee.—The Indians and the damp gunpowder.—The government of New Granada.—Its recent policy 64

CHAPTER IV.

Arrival at Lima announced.—Embark on the "Bolivia."—View of Panama, from the sea.—Buenaventura.—The river and city of Guayaquil.—Horses' dread of alligators.—Native boats and their varied freight.—Parrots, macaws, and paroquets.—Ponchos.—The Guayaquil ladies.—Grass hats.—The five productions of Guayaquil.—Payta.—Its population.—Its salubrity.—Its market.—Scarcity of water at Payta.—Former wealth of that place 77

CHAPTER V.

Cherimoyas.—Lambayeque.—The Balsa.—Its use.—Numerous reptiles and insects at Lambayeque.—Curious mound-tombs.—Sepulchral curiosities found in them.—Alleged imitation of them in Birmingham.—Huanchaco.—The peremptory lady.—Description of Callao.—Its destruction a century ago.—The frozen apple 99

CHAPTER VI.

Site of old Callao.—The shouting inquirer.—Approach to Lima.—Absence of rain at that city.—The graceful Peruvian costume.—The Poncho.—Male and female