ENEMY HELD IN MAIN; SITUATION CRITICAL

Retirements to Previously Prepared Positions Make Losses Repairable.
London, March 23.—Commenting on the great battle in France, the Daily Graphic says:
'In the main the enemy is held. Nevertheless we are bound to recognize that the situation viewed as a whole is critical. The Germans have been able to bring to bear at certain points of the line an attacking force which vastly outnumbered the defenders. Practically all of the horses in the line involved no panic, but only a retirement to previously prepared positions, the loss is repairable.'

Twenty-seven Enemy Machines Demolished and Twenty Driven Down.

London, March 24.—An official statement of the aerial operations issued last night says:

The enemy's low-flying machines were particularly accurate, dropping bombs and range of bodies of hostile troops and transport were reported to our artillery and successfully engaged.
'Eight and a half tons of bombs were dropped on hostile railway stations in the rear of the battle front and also on the enemy's billets, high velocity guns, troops and transport. The fighting in the air was very heavy, almost all the combats taking place between Arras and St. Quentin. Twenty-seven enemy machines were brought down and twenty were driven down out of control. Two hostile machines were shot down in our lines by anti-aircraft guns, and another by the infantry. Eight of our machines are missing.
