Destroyed the Flagship. There is no dispute about the fact that the Japanese flagship was destroyed by the Russian fleet...

Perhaps the most dramatic incident of the battle was the sinking of the Russian cruiser Svyetlana on Sunday morning west of Chappan Bay.

The commander of the Svyetlana, and the having two ships of his own build against him and under a sinking condition, declined to surrender.

About 180 of the crew, numbering 418, were saved. About one hour later the two Japanese cruisers sighted a Russian ship of the Janting type two miles southward.

The Svyetlana was a modern cruiser built in Philadelphia in 1888. She was raised from Chemulpo harbor last August by the Japanese, and was used as a target ship and put into action for the first time last Saturday.
