OUT FOR RED FLAG DOCTRINES

Liberals May Use New Force in Its Coming Battle With the House

London, Jan. 27.-In all the political movements of England, possibly no such sudden and remarkable swing of the pendulum of public opinion has ever been witnessed as that recorded last week, when in a conference at Hull the representatives of millions of British workingmen forming the Labor party hoisted the red flag of socialism. The party put itself on record as accepting the socialistic doctrine that production, distribution and exchange should be controlled by a democratic state in the interest of the entire community, and as favoring the establishment of social and economic equality between the sexes.

Persons who professed astonishment and fear when the lonesome figure of John Burns—since raised to a seat in the cabinet—entered Parliament as a representative of a Labor constituency many years ago have now a real reason to fear for the traditional conservative trend of British legislative institutions ters declare that the middle and upper classes of England, who have such good ground to fear the present socialistic movement, have only themselves to blame for the Labor party's sudden change of front.
