predecessors had held them since early in the seventeenth century. Baron Capell the father of the first Earl of Essex, was beheaded in 1649 for his loyalty to the Royalist cause. The first earl was accused of plotting, and was committed to the Tower, where he was found with his throat cut.

The estate, under the name, "Caisson," figures in the Domesday Book. The house was then an abbey, constructed in 791 by the monks of Verulam, the Roman name for St. Albans, in honor of Saint Alban.
