CHINESE FANMAKING

The Industry Carried on in One District for Centuries

The fanmaking industry in China was started centuries ago in the village of Pengchow, at Ampow, about three miles from Swatow. It was formerly confined to women in various households, but for many years past every family in the village has been devoted to the work, all the members of the families being occupied in the manufacture. Only the open fan is manufactured in this district.
For the frame the split bamboo is resolutely rivet until each piece is sufficiently slender and flexible. Three thread-like pieces of bamboo are arranged in a row, attached to each other by a thread passed crosswise through the middle. This thread is fastened to a semicircular strip of bamboo, giving the fan its shape. The ribs are then slightly bent and bent at the ends. The fan has now the peculiar and characteristic shell-like shape at the top.
Very fine silk gauze is then pasted on the face and a kind of tissue-like paper on the back.
After the handle is attached the border of the fan is coated with a chalk and water mixture. The handles are made of bamboo, various kinds of hard wood, bone and ivory. The hand painting on the fans is cleverly done, in some instances being works of art—Exchanges.

BALD-HEADED MEN

Every bald-headed man has Acronia, which means absence of hair. The cause—Dandruff.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

LET FROM A SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS WOMAN TO HER NIECE.

LITTLE JOAN: I have been wondering for the past month just when that letter would come.
So you happened to go down in the elevator together and got to sitting, and he said you had better come along to lunch with him and wash the subject, and you made up a little fib about having an errand to do up, and declined.
Now you are wondering if you were silly and prudish.
No girl, you were just as wise and fine and good-combensible as I knew little Joan would be when that phase of a business woman's life presented itself to her.

I suspect St. Peter chuckled when he heard that fib, and made haste to jot it down on the credit side of the ledger right under your staying at home last summer so your merit could take that trip.

Dear child, it isn't just from doing a thing like that once that harm comes. It's from doing it the second and third and fourth and fifth time. And the very best way I know to make sure that you don't do a thing the second and third and fourth and fifth time is not to do it the first time.

The going to lunch once in a while wouldn't necessarily be wrong at all. It would be foolish, however, because it might give evil-minded people a chance to suspect harsh things. But it would only be wrong if it became a link in a chain of intimacy and mutual necessity for each other's company that bound you two together.

Can't anyone who is married have friends of the opposite sex who cannot marry become necessary for your happiness you are headed straight a terrible Seyla and Charybdis, with unhappiness on one side and disgrace the other.

Case, you haven't the faintest idea there would ever be a chain of necessity between you and this man.

Isn't either. I have too much faith in your common sense.
Kindly listen to this extract from one of your letters.
"He is such an interesting man in the department next to ours. He does not have to talk to me very often but he is very fond of music and reads the same books and occasionally he comes into talk things over." "He is really much superior to me I ever met at a dance."

Isn't the man I spoke of before, brought me up in the last century, as there a very interesting article he wanted me to read.
Now, if you had told me that this man was uninteresting and uninteresting I wouldn't have any objection to your going to lunch with him.
These very tastes that attract you to each other are what should warn you keep apart.

Isn't he the man I foolishly mixed with all this talk about a chain of necessity, Joan, I've been a business woman fifteen years now, and I've seen a goodly cases where that chain weighed heavily enough to drag some pretty strong and women down into the mire of failure and disgrace.
I've seen dear, the best way to be sure you'll never chafe under such a chain is to forge the first link.

As ever,
Your fussy, but well-meaning Old Aunt.

Daily Hints for the Cook

FUDGE.

One cup confectioner's sugar, one cup granulated sugar, two squares chocolate, 34 cup milk, butter size of small egg, 14 tablespoon vanilla, pinch of salt. Cook until it turns a soft ball; then beat until very light and add two tablespoons of milk.
If you wish to add two tablespoons of milk, add a little of the batter one rounded teaspoonful of baking powder. Fill well butter cups two-thirds full and steam for 30 minutes. Roll in powdered sugar and eat.

KNOW BALL PUDDINGS.

Beat yolks of three eggs until light, then gradually one cup of granulated sugar, beating until very light.
Add a little of the batter one rounded
butter cups two-thirds full and steam
and eat.

JELLY AND BLANC MANGE MOLE.

Thinly may be made with oranges, lemon or white. The blanc mange is made with milk and gelatin and flavored with two bananas mashed to a pulp.
The jelly is first poured into the wetted mold and placed on ice or in the refrigerator until the liquid sets, then take care of the blanc mange, just beginning to thicken, is added and the mold again set aside.
When turned out on the serving dish the mold is to be garnished with sliced bananas if with it is passed a pitcher of sweetened cream or a chilled soft custard.

CHOCOLATE CREAM PIE.

Put in your sieve 1 cup pastry flour, 1 cup sugar, 12 teaspoon salt. Sift and add 2 eggs, 12 cup of hot milk, in which 1 teaspoon of butter has been melted and 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Bake in layer pans, and then done all with the following: Filling—One cup boiling water, 1 cup sugar, 1 dessertspoon butter, 2 dessertspoon of grated chocolate, 1 tablespoon of each starch wet with a little water.
Cook until thick. When taken from stove add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Bake the cake in a hot oven.

CREAM OF MACARONI.

Boil a tablespoonful each of flour and butter. Add two cups of cold milk gradually. When smoothly blended add a cup of grated macaroni, broken into small bits, add extra cup of milk and season with minced parsley and grated Parmesan cheese.

POTATO SALAD.

Four boiled potatoes cut into dice, 1 small beet cut into dice, 1 hard-boiled egg in rings, arrange on top, garnish with lettuce or celery.

EMPIRE PAGEANT GORGEOUS

ally Americans are accustomed to become enthusiastic about the picturesque features of streets associated with Little Dorrit and others of Dickens' books, and when they look on Tabard street and are told here Chaucer's Canterbury Pilgrims 600 years ago started to the shrine at Canterbury, they become ecstatic. It is all very romantic, from the American's point of view, but in these days the decayed and insanitary Tabard street is foul and insanitary. The death rate in this quarter is 36 per 1000 as compared with 14 per 1000 in London as a whole. It is time these slums were thoroughly swept away, as they will be before long, when nearly 5-600 people will be displaced.

Labourer's Bereavement.

The death of the wife of Henry Labouchere, in Florence, recalls the brilliant career of her distinguished husband, who married her when she was a notable actress half a century ago. She was a successful manager of a west end theatre when Henry Irving, Ellen Terry and Chas.
Wyndham were of the company. Soon after her marriage she retired from the stage. During the siege of Paris in 1870, she and her husband, who was then correspondent of the Daily News, were among the besieged English residents.
Nowadays, Labouchere, so long M. P. for Northampton, was a force in English social life. As owner and editor of such he was the dread of swindlers and evil-doers, whom he ruthlessly exposed. Till late years he was a brilliant critic and a witty cynical radical, the friend of Chamberlain and Dilke and Parnell, who nearly missed being a member of Gladstone's government. Today, "having" warned both hands at the fire of life," he is tired of politics. All England shares the sorrow of the once familiar "Labby," in his old age. He is a disappointed and lonely man in his villa in Florence.

The death of Sir William Agnew recalls the fact that he has had an interesting career as the greatest English dealer of his day, and at the same time one of the proprietors of "Punch," which became an English institution. In his long and honored career as art dealer, Sir William was not able for the bold purchase of many celebrated pictures—the most famous being Gainsborough's "Duchess of Devonshire," for which he paid £10,000, and which thirty odd years ago was stolen by a mysterious robber.

The question of a worthy London memorial of the late King Edward is on the point of being settled, and it is believed it will take the form of a London Historical Museum. The history of the city is so interesting, and so long and varied, that it is thought that every citizen of the empire, as well as foreign visitors, would most appreciate a collection of art and historical memorials of its storied past, which is nowhere available now.

A Tribute to Marys.

One of the interesting suggestions of the coronation year is that Queen Mary shall be the recipient of a souvenir subscribed for in every part of the empire by all the women who share the honor of bearing the name Mary. Seeing how many Marys may subscribe, it is safe to say it will be a success. The coming of a popular Queen Mary will have an amusing effect on the new names of female babies who chance to be christened in coronation year. The fashionable and romantic names which have ceased to give distinction to the girls of England are likely to be less in vogue, and Gertrude and Maude and some of the names of a new generation of Marys.

In the various Canadian emigration official centres this is an "off season," but although little is happening there are signs of success waiting the well organized plans for next year. One of the most interesting events in Canadian circles in London was the recent annual dinner of the British Passengers Agents' Association, an association which will do good work in the future, as it expects to maintain the highest status of well-informed and disinterested responsible passenger agents. We may look to them to prevent emigration "scandals," which in the past were caused by adventurous speculators, without any sense of their responsibility.
Agents general were present, and the opinion was expressed that responsible passenger agents should be backed by the British and colonial governments, that emigration should be a government enterprise.

Mr. Bowler, on behalf of New Brunswick, recommended passenger agents to push sport and tourist traffic in New Brunswick which, being a holiday ground so convenient to the old country, should be quickly made popular. He referred to the importance of the railway conveniences and dock improvements being made at St.
John by the G. T. P. Among the assembled passenger agents he awakened renewed interest in the very attractive province he represents.
