SUMMER HOMES.

(No. 3.) THE CHALET AND ITS NEIGHBOR-HOOD.

Torryburn does not set up to be a summer place. Most of the nest cottages west of the new station are occupied by the people who live in them all the year round, though there are exceptions such as the beautiful residence of C. J. Milligan of the Telegraph.

building lots have been purchased, and at least half the number of new houses will be pocupied next year.

The Chalet is now in its fourth and most successful season, Up to this week it has been occupied by boarders to its fullest capacity. Besides transient guests the following have been residents during some part of the summer: The Misses Esson, Miss Helen Frink, Miss Mabel Barbour, W. F. Fowler, Fred Barbour, Frank Harrigen, A. L. Weeks of Boston, J. Day, Dr. and Mrs Hannah, Mr. Langstroth, S. D. Scott, Mrs. Scott, Sydney and Morley Scott, Miss Roberta Christie of River Hebert, N. S., Mrs. Dodds, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Dodds, Mrs. Coulthard of Fredericton, Miss Fannie Henderson, William Harrison of Sackville.

A few years ago F. A. Dykeman, Isaac Northrup and George A. Henderson bought from the Diocesan Church Society the whole remainder of the property whereof a portion had been purchased by the Chalet Joint Stock Company.

This was laid off into building lots. Mr. Henderson and Mr. Dykeman set the property whereof a portion had been purchased by the Chalet Joint Stock Company.

This was laid off into building lots. Mr. Henderson and Mr. Dykeman set the example by building on the lots selected for themselves between the railway and the water. Mr. Dykeman's fine cottage stands in a position conspicuous from the lake and affords a fine view of that charming sheet of water. It is a double house, now occupied by himself end Mr. Stamers. Mr. Henderson chose a spot on the south side of the old madway. He goes in for artistic effect, and one sitting room window is an interesting collection of local scenes photographed on glass. The third cottage in this group, a double house, is occupied by Alexander Watson, and George Williams. Mr. Watson's rooms give evidence of his taste and skill as an artist. On the shore next west of Mr. Dykeman George E. Fali weather purchased a lot which has been sold to two others who propose to pit up a double house or separate residences. On the "syndicate" land acress the main road W. Carey Hatfield has this year creeted a good sized cottage, and Mr. Noble is just finishing a smaller one. Other lots are secured for residence by Dr. Hannah and J. N. Wetinore. Mr. Isaac Northrup has laid out his lots nearly opposite the Chalet. And is clearing them up ready to build. A group of young men have secured a lot fatther west and are residing there.

out his lots nearly opposite the Chalet. and is clearing them up ready to build. A roup of young men have secured a lot farther west and are residing there in a summer camp.

"he east corner of the syndicate propert; above the main highway was can ured by Harry A. Doherty, of the Re'al Hotel, who made some progress in clearing up the ground, but it is said that he has negotiated a sale to Captain E. C. Elkin, who will build this autumn.

The next property to the syndicate land toward Riverside is that of Mrs. Hazen, which has also been cut up into puilding lots. Fred Murray and Mr. Belyea bought lots facing the road and have built thereon attractive cottages, which are closely hedged about with the native cedars. On the hill above and behind them Ephriam Chapman and Charles Jones have established themselves. Next to Mr. Belyea eastward is the spot where R. Morton Smith is about to build. The next quarter of a mile is unoccupied territory. Then come lots purchased by Mr. Mains, of Rothesay, who proposes to erect four cottages just west of the little chapel of St. James the Less. This chapel, which opened a few weeks ago, is the only place of worship between the hall at Brookville and the Rothesay village. It is attended on Sunday afternoons by residents of all faiths, who seem quite content to be Anglicans for the purpose of worship during the summer months. The ground for the church was given by Mr. Hazen. A non-denominational Sunday school is conducted in the chapel Sunday after-moons.

score of season tlokets are already issued.

Life on the shores of the Kennebeccasis has many attractions. There is no finer sheet of water in Canada than the Kennebeccasis as seen from the hillisides from the Chalet to Rothesay. The line of coast is broken by projecting points and deep inlets. The island two miles away, with its little clearings, and its abrupt cliffs at the upperend, the glimpses of the main channel that are afforded above and below the island, are a delight to the eye. Behind the summer dweller rises the forest clad hills, giving him the opportunity by a five minute walk to bury himself in the solitude of the forest. Here the cedars grow into more perfect cones than the garden artists of Louis Quatorse could fashion. Here the white birch shows its straightest stems and cleanest bark and the yellow birch its widest reach. The wood flowers are a joy to the botanist. Here may be had boating in perfection, and there are sandy beaches which are a perpetual temptation to the swimmer.

The Clairmont House is a summer hotel, but also does a good business in winter.

Once a year, on the day of the Bishop's pionic, Torryburn is thronged with tourists. These days recall the glories of the time when all sporting St. John went to see the races on the old Torryburn Pleasure Ground which preceded the Moosepath course, or the still greater time when the chief oarsmen of the world met and rowed it out on the smilling Kennebeccasis. Old residents will never forget those days when the reads were througed day and night during the period of the often postgened Parls and Tyne crew race, and especially the historic morning when Renforth was borne dying toward his inn at Torryburn, while the thousands of spectators along the water front who went to cheer the St. John boys found their gloy of victory effaced by their sympathy for the brave strangers whose leader had fallen in the struggle. Men of still older memories tell of Poverty Hall, the once notable hostelity down by the road to the river, where many a dance was held on winter evenings, and where travellers were entertained in a style that made the name of the place a ridiculous missomer. Another hotel stood near the place where the old road which runs by the Chalet leaves the present highway and passes under the railway track. Five years ago here were many old cellars and other traces of former settlement, but only one dwelling houses completed, whereof three are also some summer camps. About a dozen other building lots have been purchased, and at least half the number of new houses will be pocupied next year. The Chalet is now in its fourth and most successful season. "Their real reason for declining the invitation Saturday was that they did not consider their attire quite suitable for a ceremonious visit, and the necessarily short notice conveyed to them did not give them the time for necessary preparations. But they were glad of the opportunity of paying their respects to the King on the following day, after they had made the necessary purchases, and they are gratified at the kind manner in which they were received by the King."

DIDN'T DRINK OR SMOKE. Boy Receives $2,100 From a Stranger For His Virtues.

For His Virtues:

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 16.— Frank Prevost, nineteen years old, the driver of a delivery wagon in Mount Clement, a few days ago gave a stranger a ride about town. After an agreeable trip the stranger asked Prevost to go to a saloon and have a drink. The boy declined, saying he did not drink liquor. He was asked if he chewed tobacco and upon replying in the negative the stranger offered him a box of cigars, which he aiso declined. Before leaving the town yesterday the stranger, who was none other than Mr. Higginson, a San Francisco millionaire, went to the boy and presented him with $3,100 in bank notes. The boy will start in business when he reaches his majority.

GRIM SCOTCH WIT.

GRIM SCOTCH WIT.

The People's Friend cites the following as a sample of "characteristic Scottish with-keen, grim and caustic:"
A certain parishioner dealt in old horses, alternating his spells of labor with heavy sprees. During the period of depression which followed each everindulgence Joha habitually took to bed and there diligently studied the family Bible. During one of these fits of attempted reformation his condition prompted his wife to call in the Rev. Mr. Wallace, the parish minister, who at the time happened to be passing.

"Oh, Maister Wallace, come in and see our John; he's rale bad!"

"What's wrang wi' him?"

"He's feart to meet his Makker," said Mrs. John.

Quick as fire came the crushing reply: "Humph! Fell'm he need na he feart for that; he'il never see'm."
