Keep Women in Austria From Teaching Staffs

Barred Temporarily from Positions in Public Schools of Vienna.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY SCHOOLS MAY HELP

Inrush of Women into Different Professions Necessitates Some Action, and Domestic Science Schools May Offset Consequence.

Vienna, March 10.—Women have been shut out, temporarily at least, from any new place in the teaching staffs of the Vienna public schools. The cry of unjust discrimination has been raised, and the whole question of women's employment in Austria is under review.

The exclusion of women candidates for teachers in the public schools is taken by the Vienna city council on the ground that "too few vacancies exist that no further applications for employment of women teachers will be received until further notice."

Nothing is said, however, about men teachers.

Since the population is increasing steadily and new schools are constantly required, the council's action is regarded as extraordinary. Some trace it to the agitation among women teachers for pay on equal terms with men.

At present women teachers are paid on a far lower scale than their male colleagues, although they perform the same work, and have been required to go through exactly the same course of preparation and to take the same examination as the men. For some time past they have been making their complaints at this treatment, alleging that nearly all the best positions in the schools are reserved for men.

The Christian Socialists, however, argue that as women are not heads of families with children dependent upon them for support, they have no claim to be paid as high salaries as men. The women deny that this has anything to do with the case, and say that even if it had they too are often called upon to support aged parents or younger brothers and sisters.

Throughout Austria the employment of women in professional and commercial occupations is increasing steadily. Young women are generally willing to work for lower wages and they are constantly crowding out the men.

Many of the teachers are women, and government offices and banks are constantly adding women to their staff.

So serious is the inrush of women into these fields of labor heretofore regarded as exclusively masculine because that the Austrian Ministry of Public Works is trying to establish a number of high schools for instruction in household economy. The first of these will be opened at the beginning of the next school year in September.

The curriculum will be especially directed towards training women in domestic sciences to enable them to occupy administrative positions as superintendents or heads of public institutions, such as hospitals, sanatoriums, asylums, orphanages, schools, hotels and boarding houses.

The course of instruction will extend over three years and will include all kinds of special classes as well as evening classes for young women who are unable to attend day classes.

It is claimed that there will not be a single subject in the plan of instruction which will not be of service to future wives and mothers.

The women's employment question has also been engaging the attention of the Ministry of Education and the Vienna educational authorities. Efforts are being made to keep the children leaving school from entering upon "blind alley" occupations as so many of them are doing at the present time.

An Employment Council has been organized in Vienna which will keep the public school teachers informed regarding the conditions of labor in various branches, and it will be the duty of the teachers to advise the pupils, and also the parents, of the facts, and to urge that they be taken into account in selecting the future occupation of the child. It is hoped that this will not only benefit the individual children but will also tend to improve the whole national economic situation.

URGES NEED OF Y.W.C.A.

Miss Lane, of Toronto, Tells of Work Carried on by Organization—King Daughters' Guild.

At a regular meeting of the King's Daughters' Guild last evening, the speaker was Miss Lane, secretary of the Y. W. C. A. of Toronto, who in an interesting address dealt with the work carried on by that society and outlined the prospects for the opening of a Y. W. C. A. in this city. After hearing the remarks of the speaker, the general impression was that the establishment of such an institution in Saint John was very desirable, and the society members were unanimous in pledging support.

While the work which will be undertaken in the city by this new organization will correspond largely to the work which they have been doing in the past, at present the King's Daughters have more work than they can properly attend to and the establishment of a branch of the Y. W. C. A. in the city will give them an opportunity of confining their work to that which was originally undertaken by them.

The servants and working girls of the city would be the most benefited by the Y. W. C. A. The idea as carried out in other cities is to open a home where the girls can go to lodge and to get a small charge, and where they are able to enjoy a sort of home life. The big sister movement is also carried on in connection with the work of the society.

It is keenly felt by those interested that a branch of the Y. W. C. A. is much needed in St. John, and support is promised to the campaign to open such an institution here. Before leaving the city Miss Lane will speak before the Women's Council.

At the meeting of the King's Daughters last evening there was further discussion as to carrying on the food and fuel campaign, which has been undertaken. Other business was also taken up before Miss Lane was introduced.

R.K.Y.C. SMOKER WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Fine Entertainment in City Club Rooms, Last Evening—Royal George Troupe Present.

There was a most enjoyable entertainment in the city club rooms of the Royal Kennecott Yacht Club last evening when the members of the concert troupe from the R. M. S. Royal George were heard to the best advantage.

The largest crowd that has ever assembled in the club rooms for some time was present and all enjoyed the entertainment very much. L. H. C. Wetmore, the vice-commodore of the club, presided and in a brief address welcomed the visitors.

There was an orchestra present with the veteran Howard Holder in command. The greater part of the programme was of the happy assortment and all present enjoyed the evening's entertainment.

In addition to the speech by the vice-president, Irving George Ludwig, the well known traveler, was present and made a brief and interesting address.

Spoke of the pleasure that it gave him to come to St. John and of the kind of work that he had been shown on board the Royal George when last he made a voyage on her, which was last Christmas week.

Frank Chandler, the chief steward of the Royal George, was called on and spoke of the good that the Royal George Social and Athletic Club had done on board the ship as over 230 had been paid out for sickness alone since the ship had started to run in June last.

Among those who took part in the programme were Messrs. McPherson, Austin, Allard, Mulholland, Punter, Bragall, Bond, Jones, Both and Fidler.

Refreshments were served during the evening and all present expressed themselves as being extremely pleased with the programme. The entertainers from the Royal George showed great cleverness and responded to many encores.

JEWS, TODAY, CELEBRATE THE PURIM

Observance of Feast One of Most Ancient Custom of Race—Day of Rejoicing for Local Colony.

In keeping with the ancient customs of their race, the ceremonial practices which have been handed down through generations, the Hebrews of the city in conformity with their fellow countrymen all over the world will today begin the celebration of the festival of Purim. The religious ceremonies in connection with the feast will be commenced this evening at seven o'clock in the Synagogue when Rev. B. L. Amdur, ex-Rabbi, will read the story of Esther, which is one of the main ceremonies performed in celebrating the feast of Purim. According to the custom of the Jewish people, the celebration of the feast will commence at sunset today and will continue all day Thursday. Religious ceremonies will be conducted in the synagogue also on Friday morning with Rev. Mr. Amdur officiating. The feast is supposed to be a time of rejoicing, and it is the custom during these two days to exchange gifts. In European centers and in the large cities throughout the United States where there are many of the story of Esther is produced in many theatres to commemorate the occasion.

At the setting of the sun tonight the Jews of the world will begin the celebration of the festival of Purim, which has been called "the Hebrew Mardi Gras," because of the carnival spirit which marks its observance. Purim, according to Jewish tradition, is produced in the month of Adar, which corresponds this year to the twelfth of March. As the Jewish people count days from sunset to sunset, however, Purim commences this evening.

Purim, or the Festival of Lots, was instituted by Mordecai and commemorates the deliverance of the Jews from the clutches of Haman. It is a day of joy and gladness and in some Jewish centers of population it is marked by masquerading, processions and the lighting of bonfires. The burning of Haman in effigy, the singing of comic songs and other manifestations of the carnival spirit.

Haman, who was hanged so high that he gained a permanent place in history, was a favorite of King Ahasuerus of Persia. He was a villain of the deepest dye, and in order to revenge himself on the Jews he plotted the extermination of all the Jews in the kingdom. He was thwarted by Esther, fell into disgrace with the monarch, and wrought his own ruin and the upbuilding of the Jews. The story is told in the book of Esther, and it is so remarkable for its dramatic unity and in the past has been made into a Shakespearean play. Its dramatic qualities are such that many higher critics have refused to believe that it is a record of real history and attribute it to some early playwright. Many Jewish scholars accept this view of the book of Esther, for the reason that the author makes no mention of the name of Jehovah.

Do Long Breaths Hurt?

Speediest Cure is Nerviline. Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs! Probably got overheated—cooled too fast—now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

This is the beginning of Pleurisy. Pleurisy is far too serious to neglect a single instant.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. Johns of Stamford, who says:—"In the course of a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side felt so full of pain and my breathing hurt so much that I thought I had pneumonia. I always carry Nerviline with me and at my destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c. family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at dealers everywhere.
