

CANADA AND UNITED STATES FURNISH EXAMPLE OF WHAT CAN BE DONE IN LIMITING ARMS

Sir Robert Borden, in speaking before Sulgrave Institute, says Washington Conference may well afford to copy after the two countries that have lived side by side for a century without a fort glistening on its great stretch of border line.

New York, Nov. 3.—There can be no greater example of what can be done in limiting armaments laid before the Washington Conference than the common history of the United States and Canada, declared Sir Robert Borden, speaking tonight at a dinner given in honor of himself and Lady Borden by the governors of the Sulgrave Institute. The dinner was at the home of Robert Fulton Oatling, New York financier, a director of the Institute.

Earlier in the day, at a luncheon of the lawyer's club, Sir Robert emphasized the responsibility which rested on the British Empire and the United States in preserving the peace of the world.

There are no two nations of the world under separate systems of Government that are so closely united, socially, economically and politically as the people of Canada and the United States, asserted Sir Robert tonight.

There are no two nations with boundaries of miles of boundary so unguarded, no nations bordering on great inland seas whose waters are so untroubled by armed navies. It is almost commonplace to speak of the disarmament agreement of 1917, but it is always timely to recall the fulfillment of the promise that it bore.

Good Omen For Future. "May we not in this retrospect find good omen of what may be accomplished at the great Conference that your President has summoned, and high hope that glad tidings of disarmament and of peace may be borne to a weary waiting world."

Present Dogs To Jack Dempsey

Two beautiful young husky dog pups arrived at the O. K. Kennels, Wainwright, last week, a present from Capt. Anderson of Oshawa, who supplied the names of "masses" for the big apple picture. Walter Fogg, manager of the Pantagos, placed them in the care of Dave Hutchison until the arrival of the World's Champion fight Dempsey. They were presented to the great fight champion last Monday evening. They are Jack's favorite.

Wild Beasts Kill Six At Methodist Mission In India

Calcutta, Nov. 3.—The question, "What do missionaries do?" is answered in somewhat surprising fashion by a woman visitor to one of the stations to the Methodist Episcopal Mission (Women's Foreign Missionary Society), whose headquarters is in Oregon, U. S. A. The mission in question is that of Sirocha, situated in a wild jungle district at the junction of the Godavary and Panhala rivers, in the Indian Central Provinces. As in the case with all the Methodist Episcopal mission stations, the staff at Sirocha is composed wholly of women. There are four of them, and they look after 170 girls, 100 boys, 4000 sheep and 45 widows, many of them famine victims.

Every day lately brings the tale of visitation, attack and loss of some kind. The villagers, and their children especially, are never safe. The beasts tear down the zinc doors of the village houses and get inside before the occupants are even aware of their presence. They are so stealthy.

One night a little boy of six years old was carried away from his mother's side in the middle of the night. The following morning the only traces left were a few holes in the ground. A man who had left his house and gone into the undergrowth was killed when he ate before he was found. Another man, a leper who lives alone, has been attacked by one of these beasts on three separate occasions since his own house.

That there were several panthers prowling the district is certain, for one was killed in a trap in the mission compound, after a most exciting and anxious hunt. The same evening the men who stay out in the fields all night to guard the peanut crop, which is one of the mission industries, were in it. It just skirted the huge firs that they always keep alert to scare off the wild animals. Two others were seen in the police lines on the same night.

On the night of August 3 a girl 12 years old was dragged from her bed, as is the custom (which, however, is the veridical) of one of the missionaries had her bed with hand's reach of the girl; a lantern was burning close at hand in the doorway of the chamber, which was several feet from the girl's bed. She was in bed, and her mother was in the room. That girl undoubtedly would have been killed and eaten on the spot if the beast had not been disturbed by the sudden movement of the missionary, who awoke and immediately jumped from her bed, feeling that something was wrong. The girl says the beast was sitting on her when Miss Pates cried out, and it moved away at the sound of her voice. The child's throat and chest were badly injured by tooth and claw, and her recovery is considered wonderful.

Another night a little girl was carried away during dinner. It was playing about on the veranda one moonlight night, and a little cry and it was gone. The servant moving to and fro had seen nothing. The sub-assistant surgeon at the mission hospital at Sirocha could tell of many instances of this kind, who contributes particulars to The Statesman. He has had as many as nine patients at one time in the hospital who had been attacked. Many of his patients are mothers who have been defending their children. The people never all sleep at the same time—they dare not—and at intervals through the night sounds of shouting, beating of tom-toms and shrill calls tell the whole district that danger is abroad.

Liquor Cases In The Police Court

Charles Dupplias and Edward Sullivan Remanded—Saul Aranoff Fined $200. Charles Dupplias charged with selling liquor to Edward Sullivan, and Edward Sullivan charged with being drunk, were both remanded to jail by Magistrate Ritchie in the police court yesterday afternoon, who at the same time remanded the pair that they were each liable to a fine of $200 and six months in jail.

In the morning Sullivan in answer to the drunkenness charge stated he had obtained his liquor in Dupplias's home, where he paid 75 cents for three drinks, and later had to be taken to the hospital. He said he had no other liquor on the day he was arrested.

Dupplias pleaded not guilty. His wife took the stand in the afternoon and stated that Sullivan came to her home in a drunken condition and ugly mood, and although she sold him to go away, he insisted on coming into the house to see her husband. She said she went out and on returning found Sullivan on the floor and in such a condition as to frighten the children, so she had him arrested.

Dupplias said that Sullivan after coming into the house insisted on his drinking with him and that he put a bottle of gin which Sullivan handed to him to his lips, as the man was in an ugly condition and he thought it better to please him. His wife asked him to put Sullivan out, but as he did not like to tackle him, an officer, Sam Aranoff, charged with selling liquor to Wallace Stevens withdrew his plea of not guilty, and entered one of guilty, on the advice of his counsel, J. A. Barry, following the evidence of Stevens in the case yesterday afternoon. A deposit of $200 was accepted as a fine.

Stevens said he went into the defendant's meat shop on Mal street and obtained a bottle of gin from him for $4, after which he proceeded to the inspector's office and laid the charge. To Mr. Barry he said he was not in the employ of the inspectors. Basil Clark, held on the charge of vagrancy, said that he lived at Pokok and had been unable to get work. He was remanded to jail.

Domino Doucette pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing whisky from his wife, Mrs. Doucette gave evidence and the accused was remanded to jail.

NO ONE "LIES" IN RUSSIAN JAILS

Everyone "Sits," for That Sounds Much Better, and Eats This Soup. Moscow, Nov. 3.—Folks "sit" in jail in Russia. Even Americans don't "lie" in jail. That is not done this far east.

All the Americans who have emerged from Russian jails in accordance with the Hoover agreement say: "When I was sitting in Biatyka, or 'Yes, I know Ivan Ivanovich. I sat with him for two months last year." Stos and Plick and Kilpatrick and all the rest of the Americans who fall abeam the Soviet authorities explained their conversation with Russian terms which are conventional in Biatyka and will sound very strange to their friends in the United States.

Magpie-speaking persons in Russia never think of calling the food ration by its English name. It is always "pork." Fish is never fish but "riba." And the foreigners who were unfortunate enough to get into Bolshevik prisons will probably never eat "riba" again if they can avoid it, for the dried and smoked fish served to them in this soup isn't a pleasant memory.

When the Norwegians made a gift of smoked herrings to the Russian famine-sufferers, an American who has been in Russia ever since the war was over turned remarked: "The Norwegians are so blooming tired of eating wooden fish that they are probably glad to hand it over to the poor Russians. It's like giving a stone to those who ask for bread. But the Russians can't protest."

"Narkomdel" and scores of other contractions of names for various government departments have found their way into English as it is spoken. It is a contraction of a long agglomeration of Russian words which mean the peoples' Commissariat for Foreign Affairs.

Water Extension Enquiry Resumed

The second session of the inquiry into the charges made by J. P. Ryan that had been made and laid on the Spruce Lake water extension and that certain of the civic officials had been remiss in their duties in connection with this job, was resumed last evening and after hearing some evidence presented by Ryan, the witnesses called will be present tonight, when some witnesses Mr. Ryan wants called will be present. Two of the witnesses asked for by Ryan failed to show up last night. Mr. Ryan himself under cross-examination failed to add anything to his evidence at the first session and admitted that most of his charges were based on hearsay. He claimed that one man had said he saw broken pipes going into the trench and another had said that the trench had been sealed by concrete. The foreman of the pipe laying gang stated that the man who said he saw broken pieces of pipe in the trench had never been on his time book and therefore could not see what was laid.

Commissioner Jones presided over all the members of the council were present. Lieut.-Col. W. H. Harrison represented the city; Lieut.-Col. E. C. Weyman the Canada Lock Joint Pipe Co. and Daniel Mullin, Mr. Ryan, Mr. G. Chace, president of the company, and C. J. Bruce, the local manager, were present. C. C. Kirby, F. E. Vaughan, G. Waring and James Gilchrist, of the Engineering Institute, were among the spectators.

Tender Gums - A Warning

Beware of gum tenderness that warns of Pyorrhea. Four out of five people over forty have Pyorrhea—many under forty, also. Loosening teeth indicate Pyorrhea. Bleeding gums, too. Remember—these are warning signs. Bleeding gums set so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting the joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Pyorrhea positively prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. As it hardens the gums the teeth become firmer.

Brush your teeth with Forhan's. It cleans the teeth scientifically—keeps them white and clean.

When Commissioner Jones presided over the inquiry Mr. Mullin announced that he appeared for Mr. Ryan and asked to have the gentleman recalled. He asked what the witness knew about the relations of Mr. Terry to the investigation. [This was objected to by Mr. Jones who contended this was a matter which the witness was not concerned. Col. Weyman said there was no secret about the relations of Mr. Terry and the company. Mr. Terry had acted as chief agent here for many years, and whatever money he had received was simply for services rendered in that capacity. Mr. Ryan himself stated that in a previous hearing that he did not charge any graft in this connection. It was decided to allow the question and Mr. Ryan stated the witness would add to his previous testimony. Mr. Weyman then began his cross-examination of the witness in answer to questions the witness asked the specifications called for ten bags of cement to the yard and later eight and there was one and a half yards of concrete in a finished pipe. In answer to Mr. Harrison he said the gravel used was all beach gravel and was passed through a screen with 14 inch mesh. It was stated though the mesh might have been 14 inch. With regard to his statement that "the inspector was a joke," he said he meant the inspector was a pipe line. He had made the statement from reports, he did not know anything about it himself. With regard to the amount of concrete used he would not say that 13 bags of cement to a joint was not enough to make the pipe up to specification. Mr. Chace said the company would furnish a statement of the concrete used each day.

Charles Kingston

Thomas Sharkey and Herbert Nairn were then called, but neither answered and Charles Kingston took the stand. He had been 17 years of age and had worked at the pipe line from July of the present year until about a month ago. His duty was to mix the mud and put it in the trench. The mud came in teams and six mixed concrete was being poured into each trench. In answer to Mr. Harrison the witness said there was nothing secret about the putting of the mud into the trench.

Percy Warrington

Percy Warrington, foreman of the pipe laying gang was the next witness. He had been with the company since last March, and had been in charge of the laying of all the pipe. He knew nothing about the way the pipes were mixed. He had experience in concrete work and had often heard of the use of clay to add to the density of concrete, especially where it was to hold water. He had seen the clay used and considered it good clay. To hold water, there were twelve leaks in the pipes and these had been repaired by pouring a collar of concrete around the hole and in his opinion the joints so treated were as good or better than those without it. Each class of pipe had been tested before going into the ground, and he would say the leaks were caused by careless handling. He had seen Mr. Hare, the city engineer, around the works quite frequently and knew he had been present at all the tests made.

Completed Evidence

This completed the evidence for the evening and Mr. Mullin asked that Thomas Sharkey and Harry Smith be brought to give evidence. Mr. Ryan said that Sharkey had said he saw broken pipes going into the trench. Mr. Warrington wanted to know how this could be when Sharkey had never been in the pipe laying gang. Mayor Schofield expressed the opinion that these witnesses should be compelled to attend and give their evidence. A very serious charge has been made and it should be proved. Adjournment was then made until this evening at 7.30.
