RICHESON DROWNED BREAST TUBERCULOSIS

Planned Death of His Victim Earlier

Avis Linnell Couldn't Meet Him and Had Two Days' Respite

Condemned Man's Spiritual Adviser Says Confession Was Horrible, But Refuses to Give Details—Governor Foss and Council Not Likely to Save His Life.

Boston, Jan. 16.—What is to be done with Rev. Clarence V. Richeson, sentenced to die for the murder of Avis Linnell, depends in a large measure upon the action the governor's council takes tomorrow upon the petition for clemency of Silas N. Phelps, also sentenced for murder.

Should the council commute Phelps' sentence to life imprisonment, it is argued by some that Richeson would have some chance of spending the rest of his life in jail, instead of going to the chair.

There was a conference lasting five hours at the office of William A. Morse yesterday. The counsel for Richeson said that he had not heard from Richeson's people since the pastor confessed the murder, but he does not think the convicted clergyman's family has completely deserted him.

After the conference Mr. Morse visited Richeson in his cell at the Charles street jail.

First Confessed to Minister.
Boston, Jan. 15.—A flood of letters have been sent to the jail addressed to Rev. Mr. Richeson since he was condemned. Some of them are of a sympathetic nature, but the others, most of which are from women, never reach the prisoner.

Denials are made by William A. Morse, counsel for Richeson, that Miss Grace Edmonds has abandoned the man who was to have married his daughter Violet. It is understood that following his confession of a week ago, Miss Edmonds ceased to write to Richeson and has not communicated with him in any way.

He received a letter from her on Jan. 8, the day after he penned his confession, but the correspondence ceased abruptly when the guilt of the clergyman was acknowledged. Mrs. Edmonds' letters sent to Richeson have been postmarked New York city, but it is thought that they were sent to relatives there and regarded as so to prevent the pastor from knowing whereabout from becoming known by the public.

Governor Foss has not yet said what he will do in case a plea for commutation of Richeson's sentence is sent to him. He has the privilege of placing such an appeal before the executive council or of refusing to do so, as Governor Gould did in the case of Tucker. On the other hand, if he desires to pardon a prisoner or commute a death sentence, he must get the approval of the council. With a significant statement was made by the governor's secretary last night and would seem to indicate that Richeson will not be saved from the electric chair. The statement said:

"The governor personally does not believe in capital punishment. Nevertheless, the death sentence is imposed by the courts in this commonwealth in conformity with law.

"Such being the case, Governor Foss has never sought to go beyond the clearly defined duty of his office and he directs me to state that under no conditions whatever will he either seek to exceed the power vested in him or to evade the responsibilities fixed upon him by the constitution and statutes of the commonwealth."

Richeson's first confession was made to the Rev. Edgar J. Helms, pastor of Moravian Memorial church in this city. He is a Methodist, but the confession was made in the privacy of his study. Helms, Richeson's spiritual adviser, Mr. Helms admits that he could tell a harrowing narrative, but with word and hand the distressed confessor was so much that he believed as best he could to soothe the distressed confessor's mind.

Richeson's lawyers were consulted with the prisoner's consent. He had made it clear that it was not to be accepted as a mere confession to a spiritual adviser, which would have remained inviolate as are the details now. The written acknowledgment followed several days later.

"I'm sorry not to be in a position to discuss the matter," said Mr. Helms. "It is out of the question. I used to run a newspaper before entering the ministry and I fully appreciate the news value. It would make absorbing reading. I have been carrying many weighty things in my mind, but they are too sacred to discuss."

"I could not possibly say anything without violating solemn pledges and responsibilities," he said.

Planned Her Murder Earlier.
If Richeson had had his way Avis Linnell would have been dead forty-eight hours before she swallowed poison on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 14. It has just now learned that Richeson telephoned to Miss Linnell at the headquarters of the Young Women's Christian Association on the evening of Thursday, Oct. 12, and urged her to meet him that night. The police say if she had consented she would have received the fatal capsule then instead of the following Saturday afternoon. Richeson's friends and attaches of the institution heard of the confession.

There is a party here and I cannot leave. I shall have to let it go until Saturday. It was learned today that the Pinkerton were employed to send down from their agencies in various parts of the country to gather information about Richeson. The government had no men available for such a search. The agent of Superintendent Leith, whose office is here, went to Kansas City to direct the search in the cities and towns where Richeson had lived for every scrap of information.

Beginning with Richeson's antecedents in Amherst (Va.) until he settled down in the pastorate of the Baptist church in Hyannis, the detective traced the man. Reports of his associations with women were investigated and the women found and the rumors either proved or disproved. As a result volumes of testimony were compiled and were ready for use at the trial.

All the information gathered the story of Miss Patsy Felix, now dying in Salt Lake City of consumption, aroused the greatest interest. Richeson became engaged to her in 1903. She lent him money when he was a student at William Jewell College, at Liberty (Mo.), of which her father was one of the faculty, helped him out with cash when he was studying at the Newton Theological Seminary, and stood by him to the very end. She advanced him a total of about $700 and his obligation was not discharged until after Richeson was arrested for the murder of the Linnell girl, when she received a check for $167.08 from his counsel and a receipt for the same.

He also sent her a promissory note she had and such letters from Richeson as she had kept.

Miss Felix was probably Richeson's first sweetheart after he passed beyond the age of "calf love." There were other women encountered in the countrywide search, but all seemed to be the one whom he constantly held out promises of marriage as soon as he had secured a church. Even on the day after the death of Avis Linnell he wrote a letter at the house of Miss Violet Edmonds and told Miss Felix that soon, in that very month of October, he would be on his way west, where he had secured a church that he might call thousands instead of to hundreds.

The deception of the man was such that it was believed in the case that Patsy Felix was elderly pastor who had befriended Richeson because of his evident desire to become a clergyman. Instead, she is said to be a year or two the junior of Richeson and has been in Salt Lake City for two years at a sanitarium seeking to recover from tuberculosis. Now her condition is such that she will be coming west within the next few weeks.

30,000 Eligible for Pensions.
Mr. Burnham maintained that Canada must not consider herself exempt from the rule that scientific treatment of economic problems was the right one. There were some 30,000 in this country who would come within the purview of the act, and the decrease in outside relief by the adoption of the pension system would be tremendous.

Mr. White said that the real question was whether Canadian conditions were such as required advanced legislation of this sort and whether public opinion in yet ripe for it. The social and economic conditions of Canada and Britain were not similar.

Much was to be said in favor of the British legislation but there was little or no employment in Canada. While the government was ready to grant the committee's advice, the committee was of the opinion that the department was sufficient to meet Canadian requirements.

Verville's Hot Shot.
Mr. Verville, labor member for Maison-neuve combated the finance minister's position. "He may not come in contact with the people with the people who are in the front line, but I do," he declared. Legislation was required and had been asked for by labor.

"Some receive pensions who don't need them," quoth Mr. Verville, taking a shot at the minister of justice. "We pension our judges and civil servants. The labor party is not in the front line, but I do," he declared. Legislation was required and had been asked for by labor.

Mr. Clark withdrew the minister on his assurance that there was no unemployment in Canada. "I was told that there were no less than 2,000 men in Ottawa seeking government jobs," he said. "If Canada were to adopt a pension system, the people who are in the front line, but I do," he declared. Legislation was required and had been asked for by labor.

Mr. Bradbury brought up the matter of lack of accommodation at the Canadian offices in London, and urged the desirability of the creation of new and suitable buildings for the high commissioner and his staff and the immigration branch.

Premier Borden said he was aware that Australia proposed to build upon the Strand. It was true that the present accommodation was neither sufficient nor thoroughgoing, but the present building branch was lodged some distance away. It would be necessary, however, to have more information before any definite step in that direction was taken.

The house adjourned at 6 o'clock.
Rev. J. J. McCall will go to Chatham for Jan. 23 to deliver an address on Robert Burns.

No Need of Them, Says Hon. Mr. White

Verville Declares Poor Need Them More Than Judges and Civil Servants—Dr. Clark Pokes Fun at Minister of Finance About the Army of Tory Office Seekers.

SOME MORE FACTS ABOUT THE WEST

Financial Post Presents Conditions That New Brunswickers Will Do Well to Consider—Contrast These Conditions With Those at Home.

Referring to a letter in yesterday's Telegraph headed "Why Should New Brunswickers Go West?" a correspondent calls the Telegraph's attention to a Winnipeg dispatch which appeared in the Financial Post of Canada (Toronto) on January 6.

Mr. Mackenzie accurately states the position from the standpoint of the organized farmers. They are in a serious position. But individual farmers in many cases have before them a still more dreary outlook. When with wheat threshed and ready for delivery, hauled from twenty to forty miles to a railroad point they find no storage available and no buyers, the circumstances are indeed as grievous as they are common.

Particular attention is being paid at the present time to Saskatchewan. It is estimated that 20,000,000 bushels of such wheat as Mr. Mackenzie refers to, is awaiting shipment. It would grade "tough," but has its value. What appears to be the difficulty is that the rate for shipping to a local rate from the shipping point to the boundary which makes the carriage charges prohibitive on all grains with the exception of barley, for which the price at Minneapolis is so very much higher than in Winnipeg.

There are other aspects of this question that are well worth looking into. If the grain is not marketed before springtime it will be exposed to further damage or to destruction. With transportation facilities and markets at the present time it would be turned into cash, which the farmers need to meet their loan and interest payments as well as their store bills.

CIVIL LAW SUPREME IRISH MARRIAGES

MORE IMPLICATED BY McMANGAL

Names a Man Who Showed Where to Carry Out an Omaha "Job"

Indianapolis, Jan. 16.—"When you arrive in Omaha to blow up the power house you will be met by somebody who will show you where it is."

That statement, said by Orrie E. McMangal, the confessed dynamiter, to have been made to him by John J. McNamara, the convicted secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, was inquired into at the federal grand jury investigation of the dynamite conspiracy today.

McMangal said, in response to the instructions from McNamara he went to Omaha in July 1910 to blow up the power plant of an "open shop" contractor and was met by a man whose name he gave.

McMangal said the man told him he had communicated with McNamara about the job to be blown up, that the man himself could not do it because he was not experienced, and so McMangal was chosen.

The evidence was in line with that being gathered by the government to ascertain who, if any, besides those already known were implicated in the hundred or more explosions scattered over the country in the last five years.

It was about the time of the Omaha job, according to McMangal, that McNamara said to him: "I am going to get six or eight good fellows and station them about the country so that explosions will take place in different cities all in one night and they won't know who is doing it."

McMangal is to be kept continuously before the grand jury for the next three days.

TELLS OF GREAT GROWTH OF APPLE INDUSTRY IN CANADA

Commissioner Riddick, at Albany Meeting, Says "Fruits Marks Act" is Responsible.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 17.—The stimulus which fruit growing in Canada has received during recent years resulted largely from the passage of a satisfactory working "fruits marks act" according to J. A. Riddick, dairy and cold storage commissioner of Canada, who spoke tonight before a joint meeting of the New York State Agricultural Society and the New York State Fruit Traders Association.

"Ten years ago when this law was enacted," said Mr. Riddick, "the apple industry of Canada seemed doomed. It was in a declining condition. The packing was so bad that no person would purchase apples without seeing them, even though they were offered as marked with a dozen 'X's, a mark of superiority," as they sometimes were.

"It took years of educational work and some of the old time irresponsible packers had to be eliminated before we began to reap the benefit of this legislation, but of the whole the marketing of fruit, especially of apples, has been almost revolutionized. Brokers will now purchase on the grade with a reasonable assurance of getting what they bargain for, because if they do not they have good solid ground to stand on in obtaining redress."

St. Andrews, N. B., Jan. 17.—The Charlotte county council, now in session here, has elected E. A. McNeill, of West Isles, as warden for the ensuing two years. Mr. N. Coakburn was re-elected auditor and R. E. Armstrong official reporter.

Dr. Lawson, of St. Stephen, representing the medical society, was heard in behalf of a scheme for the benefit of advanced tuberculosis patients. A committee will be appointed to act in conjunction with the anti-tuberculosis league the child of a scheme for the benefit of advanced tuberculosis patients. Important Decision Rendered

Judge Holds Violation of Church Rules Has No Effect

Dublin, Jan. 17.—In the matrimonial court today judgment was given in the case where Mr. Usher, a Galway landlady, was married late in a bedroom to a housemaid by a Roman Catholic priest before only one witness.

Mr. Justice Kenny, in delivering judgment, said that though the marriage was invalid in the eyes of the Roman Catholic church, yet it was capable of being validated at any time. It was, however, already absolutely valid according to the marriage laws of Ireland.

It would have been invalid by the penal law up to 1870, because Mr. Usher had been a Protestant within the previous twelve months, but the law was repealed in 1870. The petition, therefore, was dismissed with costs.

The judge found nothing in the common law or church law nullifying a marriage between Catholics by a Catholic priest, because of the absence of witnesses, except the decree of the Council of Trent which had no legal effect in Ireland.

The
