

No Waste of Heat In the "Bison" Hot Water Heater

The "Bison" has two drafts—a center draft to burn quickly, and a side draft to heat quickly.

The side draft carries the heat up a side flue passing up and down, and up again through a center flue, always in contact with water surfaces, trapping the heat and burning the gases. See illustration.

The draft is continuous, syphon-like in action, but always under easy control.

Not a particle of heat is lost—the sections get it all, the water heats quickly—the effect on the radiators is almost instantaneous. The "Bison" has more good heating points than all other heaters combined.

THE CROSS FAD.

New Jewelry Fancies and Fashions of Smart Dressers.

The heart, worn not on the sleeve, but dangling from a long chain, and the round locket containing a miniature are passing into a romantic memory.

Whether it is the beckoning hand of Easter or merely one of fashion's mysterious and untraceable ripples that has revived the cross as an ornament does not matter. With whatever sentiment its use may be viewed, the cross it is to be.

Many a woman other than the fast Lenten penitent will now grope deep into her box of cherished old-fashioned jewels and bring to light one of those huge jet crosses that were the fashionable accompaniment of the black gown some years ago.

Jet, however, is by no means the preferred material today. The cross of the best turned out dresser will be of polished silver or gold in the flat style represented in the sketch and of large size, running up to four inches in length. This is the plain article. Others, also large and in the Roman shape, are enameled or composed entirely of some one kind of stone set in gold wire. The amethyst, sapphire, topaz and opal represent the usual stones for this purpose. These crosses are all worn on a plain and rather light locket chain of gold.

Less pronounced and appealing to quainter tastes are the small and dainty versions of this object in either the Roman or the Greek form. A favorite is in gold with a single stone in the center, as here sketched. This less aggressive presentation of the new accessory will better act as a pendant on the dog collar, which is largely supplanting the slender necklace that has had so phenomenal a run for the past two seasons.

The quite young and the sentimental contingent of society will rejoice in another new notion in jewelry. It is straight from Paris and a very neat thing, by the way, to mention to the one who is endeavoring to discover what you'd like for Easter. This is a pendant made up of stones the initials of which spell the wearer's name. Should the name be Hope, for instance, the stones called for would be hyacinth, opal, pearl and emerald, and it longer the name the more jewels.

Amethysts, with their rich, velvety, lovely tint, are undoubtedly very much in fashion again, and it is said to be the exquisite taste of Queen Alexandra that first launched them upon another period of popularity.

Gold beads will this season find use not so much as a single strand, but as broad collars of many rows with gold or jeweled bars or slides.

What, Indeed!

A man who had been half starved during the ministrations of an incompetent maid and a trained (?) nurse during his wife's illness decided to do a little cooking himself. After an ominous rattling of pots and pans he appeared at the convalescent's bedside and asked what a fellow was to do when the cookbook said "break six eggs separately into bowls" and there were only five bowls in the kitchen. Wiser heads than his might easily find the average cookbook formulas a trifle bewildering.—Exchange.

The buttons are made of white linen neatly stretched over metal rings and closely covered over with lace stitches and are both strong and extremely pretty. "When I commenced taking your medicine, eighteen months ago, my health was completely broken down," writes Mrs. Cora L. Sunderland, of Chantilly, Calvert Co., Md. "At times I could not even walk across the room without pain in my chest. The doctor who attended me said I had lung trouble, and that I would never be well again. At last I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's medicine. I bought a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' took it, and soon commenced to feel a little better, then you directed me to take both the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the 'Favorite Prescription,' which I did. Altogether I have taken eighteen bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' twelve of the 'Favorite Prescription,' and five vials of 'Pellets.' I am now almost entirely well, and do all my work without any pain whatever, and can run with more ease than I could formerly walk."

BEAUTIFUL TEETH.

They Redden a Plain and Enhance a Good Looking Face.

I have often thought that regular white teeth redeem even a plain face from absolute ugliness. They certainly enhance the charm of one which is good looking. I remember going to the lecture of a well known American lady on economics. Her face was sweet, but rather sad in repose. In one instant her mood changed. Her mouth, parting in a smile, showed a flash of the most perfectly white and dazzling teeth, like rows of pearls, that I have ever seen. That instant made me realize the charm of beautiful teeth as I had never realized it before.

The way in which some children's mouths are neglected seems too cruel, for very often the neglect can never be remedied. A visit to a dentist every six months should be considered imperative and will obviate much suffering later. As for cleaning the teeth, the same rules should hold good for children and adults. The only really hygienic method is to clean the teeth in the morning and then after each meal, but few people will take this trouble, and one can only urge a thorough cleansing of the mouth at the morning toilet and the last thing at night. A few drops of a good antiseptic lotion should be used in a glass of warm water, and care must be taken that the tooth powder is not gritty or it will injure the enamel covering of the teeth. The toothbrush should be used up and down the teeth, not across them, an ordinary brush being used for the front and one with a very short head for the back, for penetrating into all the corners. An excellent plan to insure perfect cleanliness and to avoid the formation of tartar is once a day at least to pass a piece of fine dental silk, specially prepared for the purpose, through the interstices between the teeth, as by this means all foreign matter is dislodged.—London Queen.

A GREAT MAN'S DEATH.

An English Correspondent Recalls W. E. Gladstone's Last Days.

Seven years ago writes an English correspondent, I was at Hawarden, where the man who had kept the soul of England alive was passing gently into rest. "His family all kneeling around the bed on which he lay in the stupor of coming death, without a struggle he ceased to breathe. Nature outside—wood and wide lawn and cloudless far-off sky—shone at her fairest." I have quoted the words in which with solemn music Mr. Morley records the death of William Ewart Gladstone. Beneath the window of the room where he lay dying I saw on the previous day a gardener with a scythe mowing the grass in the Castle garden—it was a type of that reaper whose scythe was in his hand ready to rob us of our hero.

The world had been watching round Mr. Gladstone's deathbed, and surely never was the majesty of death illumined with nobler pathos. The little village hummed with the advent of strangers eager to chronicle the small events of the moment, but all was still and diffused within the home of the dying statesman. Six days before the end, Lord Rosebery and Mr. Morley had taken their last farewell of their leader and friend "in the large upper chamber looking to the sunrise where the aged pilgrim lay." Youth, happily only partially conscious of its coming loss, in the person of sweet little Dorothy Drew, reminded us of the Grand Old Man's own heart of childlike faith. The last time I had seen Mr. Gladstone, his little granddaughter was by his side; now she was losing her best playmate, and the world its most strenuous fighter, and the two were one.

After this lapse of time I think I may reveal the authorship of one of the most touching articles which appeared during Mr. Gladstone's illness. It gave the invalid and his family much satisfaction when they learned who had written it. The article was published in the "Outlook," and Mr. Gladstone had uttered as he was leaving Bournemouth on his way home to the land you love, was the benediction which gave the theme to the "Outlook" article. Mr. George Wyndham wrote the article, and a finer piece of unaffected eulogy of a great man I do not wish to read. Coming from the pen of one who was on the opposite side of politics it was all the more generous.

I had seen Hawarden twice before, and had had the privilege of entering several of the rooms where Mr. Gladstone's active spirit seemed still pervading the Castle. I had seen over his desk a little illuminated text which gave the keynote to his sublime quietness in the midst of the whirl of politics: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee." But on that last day of his life there was a Henry Gladstone, the son of the land you love, who was the benediction which gave the theme to the "Outlook" article. Mr. George Wyndham wrote the article, and a finer piece of unaffected eulogy of a great man I do not wish to read. Coming from the pen of one who was on the opposite side of politics it was all the more generous.

Pursued by Sharks.

The master of the Newfoundland schooner Kandahar, who, with his crew, was landed at Liverpool the other day, told a thrilling story of escape from the perils of the sea.

The Kandahar left St. John for Oporto with a cargo of codfish on March 9. Five days later a furious gale was encountered. Rudder and masts were carried away, and the stern of the vessel was seriously damaged.

For two days the ship, now a helpless hulk, was swept before the hurricane, and a great part of the cargo was washed overboard. This attracted a large school of sharks of immense length and insatiable voracity.

Oil was poured over the ship's side, and this, declares the captain, had a marvelous effect in stilling the raging waters, though "mountainous billows" rolled beyond its sphere of influence.

At length the German steamer Mannheim was sighted, and in response to flares made with a burning barrel, a life-boat was sent to the assistance of the distressed sailors.

"We got into the boat," said the captain, "with the utmost difficulty, for we were unnerved by the consciousness that a shoal of hungry sharks haunted the waters, waiting for possible human prey."

The shipwrecked crew were subsequently landed at Rotterdam, whence they journeyed to Liverpool. They speak in the highest terms of the kindness shown to them on board the Mannheim.

Japan's New Island.

Will Japan's new island that appeared recently from the depths of the sea cause? Scientists have been asking this question. Graham Island popped up in much the same way as the Mediterranean sea in 1831 and was at once decorated with an English flag. But the action of the waves demolished the island in a short time. On the other hand, the island of Bogosloff, in the Bering sea, appeared with equal suddenness in 1796 and, together with a second island formed in 1883, has stood the test of time to the present day.

Dusters have an irritating faculty of wearing out rapidly or of getting lost. An abundance of clean dusters becomes an essential feature if the house is to be kept spick and span. Those who can afford to buy plenty of large pieces of chamol skins are fortunate, but even chamol skins wear out, and comparatively few can afford to indulge in them. Merino makes the very best dusters. These should be made as large as practicable, and for many purposes they are even better than chamol skins. A couple of such pieces made into bags can be drawn over the broom, making an excellent means for cleaning the ceilings and walls of rooms. Many "wall sweepers" are sold at a high price, but they are not nearly so desirable as an ordinary broom provided with a bag. A draw string is run in the top of the bag, then fastened securely around the handle of the broom.

Pain Across the Kidneys For Three Years.

Suffered Great Agony.
Could Not Stoop or Bend.

No disease is so quiet and stealthy in its approach as kidney disease. That is why it is so dangerous. It may become deep-seated before you realize the danger. It is therefore of great importance to recognize the early warning symptoms, because in its early stage kidney disease is easily curable. Pain or dull ache in the back is one of the first signs. So are bladder pains, bearing-down pains, smarting sensation when urinating, frequent or suppressed urination, and gravel or sediment in the urine, etc. You cannot be well if your kidneys are not performing their functions properly. In all ordinary cases of any derangement of the kidneys, a few doses of will put the patient right; in old or chronic cases, the treatment should be persisted in.

Mr. Michael A. McNamara, Woodbine, Marion Bridge, N.S., tells of his experience: "For the last three years I suffered great agony with pain across my kidneys, and was so bad that I could not stoop or bend. I consulted and had several doctors treat me, but I got none the better. On the advice of a friend I procured a box of that valuable life-giving remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, and to my surprise and benefit I immediately became better. In my opinion, Doan's Kidney Pills have no equal as a cure for any form of kidney disease."
