

Weak, Run Down, Worn-Out Men!

Why will you be weak? Why do you go on from day to day when you know you are losing your nerve force—your manhood—when you see a cure within your grasp? Do not delay a matter which is the key to your future happiness. Whatever your condition to-day, you will not improve as you grow older. Age calls for greater vital force, and the older you get the more pronounced will be your weakness.

I have the grandest invention of the age for weak, run-down, worn-out men; the surest and easiest cure for all nervous and chronic diseases. Its wonderful power is directed to the seat of the nervous system, through which its vitalized strength penetrates into all parts of the body, carrying new life to every function which has been weakened by disease or dissipation, restoring energy to the brain and power to the system. No weak man will regret a fair trial of the invigorator.

DR. McLAUGHLIN'S ELECTRIC BELT

will make you strong. It will send the life blood dancing through your veins. You will feel the exhilarating spark warm your frame, the bright flash will come to your eye, and a firm grip to your hand, and you will be able to grasp your fellow-countryman and feel that what others are capable of doing is not impossible for you. This grand appliance has brought strength, ambition and happiness to thousands of men in the past year.

It is the one sure remedy for the cure of Rheumatism, Weak Back, Weak Kidneys, Weak Stomach, Varicocele, loss of power in young or old, and similar ailments, as well as Dyspepsia, Constipation, etc. How can anyone remain in doubt as to the value of this grand remedy when you see so many cures by it?

To prove to you the confidence I have in the curative power of my Belt I am willing to accept your case, and after I have cured you, then pay me. All I ask is reasonable security. You may then use my Belt at my risk, and

IF I DON'T CURE YOU MY BELT COMES BACK TO ME

You are out the time you spent on it—wearing it while you sleep—nothing more.

Dear Sir,—I am getting along nicely now. My nervous system is getting stronger all the time. Your Electric Belt has certainly worked wonders for me and I will have great pleasure in recommending it to any one who may wish to use one. I would not be without it now for far more than it cost me. You may use this as you wish. I beg to remain,

B. H. DOHERTY, Frohisher, Sask.

Dear Sir,—I am very pleased with your Belt. It has done me good. I have no more sick headaches or indigestion. Everything seems to have disappeared and I certainly feel like a new man. I am greatly obliged for your help and feel sure there are others who will benefit by wearing your Belt if they use it properly. I remain,

GEORGE PIERCE,

The next time you don't feel just right, let us buy a 50-cent bottle of Psychine from your druggist to give you to cure your indisposition and prevent worse ailments.

This being ill is curious business. It usually commences in a subtle fashion, almost unconsciously.

Yet if you do not check your illness, it grows and grows.

And one fine day you find you're sick.

* * *

The greatest scavengers of the body are the white corpuscles, or phagocytes in the blood.

These white corpuscles attack and eat up every germ of disease that invades the body.

That is when they are strong enough and in sufficient numbers.

If they're not strong enough, then they wage an unequal warfare until they are finally overcome by their more powerful enemies.

The body becomes steadily sicker and sicker until actual disease sets in.

* * *

Now, we have had all sorts of so-called cures.

And a great many people have seriously endangered their health experimenting with them.

But years ago—before even science was able to tell we had the right treatment for disease—viz., herbs, nature's own remedies.

Now that science can tell to an absolute certainty, we know why certain herbs cure disease.

Because they strengthen and increase the white corpuscles or phagocytes.

A third of a century ago Psychine made remarkable cures.

To-day it is making remarkable cures.

In the interim, millions of bottles of Psychine have been sold.

Hundreds of thousands of people made well and kept well.

Why?

Because Psychine is largely made up of those herbs that scientists now know increase and strengthen the white corpuscles, the phagocytes.

That's why we have received hundreds of thousands of unsolicited testimonials, that's why we can afford to buy and give away hundreds of thousands of 50-cent bottles of Psychine, that's why Psychine benefits these diseases:

orcas, Spanish, etc.) as the best laying breeds. They, however, lay a white egg, and would not be the best where a brown egg patronage is to be served.

The American class (Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds, etc.) are excellent winter layers, and as broilers and small-sized roasters are strictly first-class. But they lay an egg that varies in color from a tint to a dark brown. Such eggs would not suit a market like New York. They, too, are yellow-skinned fowls, a condition that is not appreciated by the English, who call for white skins.

We look upon the Asiatics (Brahmas, Cochins, Langshans) as ideal fowls for large roasters, and in that class we have the Brahmas and the Cochins with yellow skin, and the Langshans with white skin.

Most of the foreign breeds are white-skinned birds, and for that reason do not command the attention of the marketmen as do breeds of the classes mentioned.

The best roasting fowl is not, as a rule, the largest fowl. It may have size and yet be deficient in quality of flesh; or, it may have excellent quality of flesh, have a breast full of juicy meat, but not be of large size, and, consequently, not the best where the market calls for a large roasting fowl.

Now when we talk of breeds that are the best layers we must refer to them only as a breed. For instance, we have seen it stated that the single comb White Leghorn is the best laying breed in existence, which might be so collectively, but in a trap-nest contest the writer had a Light Brahma pullet that beat the individual records of a whole flock of White Leghorn pullets. Yet who would be foolish enough to say that the Light Brahma is a better layer than the White Leghorn?

When it comes to laying, we believe, in fact we know, that judicious selection, trap-nesting the layers and breeding only from those having the best records, will bring any breed up to the point that they will be entitled to the front rank.

Our solution of the question, "Which is the best breed?" is to carefully select each year, using trap-nests for records, and in that way breed up to the desired qualifications. But before this is done the market must be consulted, so that color of skin, color of egg, or type of carcass will meet the requirements and thus secure the fancy prices.

Again, the best breed is the one that has been tested and tried, as the one most adapted to the section and the purpose. There is no best breed otherwise. Each individual farmer must solve for himself the problem of which is the best breed. And, to carry the selection further, he must decide which are the best hens of the best breed determined upon, for individuality of the hens is the most important factor of the whole. Each farmer or poultryman, however, should aim to reach perfection. He may never attain it, but he will secure something better from his efforts, as there is no limit to improvement. He must select the best males and the most prolific hens for breeding purposes. Any defects should be obliterated, if possible, so as to have the flock better each year. If he has succeeded in greatly increasing egg production he should not destroy his flock by aiming to combine market quality with egg production. If market fowls are desired, breed for the quality sought in another flock. The best egg producers are not always the best market fowls. A breed has only one dominant talent, and seldom excels in more than a single characteristic. Have some object in view. If eggs are your object, pay no attention to market quality. The egg producers and the choice table fowls differ as widely as the Jerseys and the Shorthorns among the cattle. The breeder of Shorthorns who would cross with a Jersey male would be put down on the list as inexperienced. Breeders of poultry have the same difficulties to encounter. A breed has its own peculiar merits and characteristics, excelling in those peculiarities only, and any attempt to combine the merits of all the breeds will only result in anarchy, and the time and labor so bestowed will be lost and wasted.
