EXPERIMENTAL UNION FIELD TESTS FOR 1901.

The members of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union are pleased to state that for 1901 they are again prepared to distribute into every township of Ontario material for experiments with fertilizers, fodder crops, roots, grains, grasses and clovers. Upwards of three thousand Ontario farmers conducted the co-operative experiments upon their own farms last year.

LIST OF EXPERIMENTS FOR 1901.

1. Three varieties of oats.
2. Three varieties of six-rowed barley.
3. Two varieties of buckwheat.
4. Spelt and two varieties of spring wheat.
5. Two varieties of buckwheat.
6. Three varieties of field peas for Northern Ontario.
7. Two varieties of bug-proof field peas.
8. Cow peas and two varieties of Soja or Japanese leuca.
9. Three varieties of hocking corn.
10. Three varieties of mangolds.
11. Two varieties of sugar beets for stock feeding.
12. Three varieties of Swedish turnips.
13. Kohl Rabi and two varieties of fall turnips.
14. Parsnips and two varieties of carrots.
15. Three varieties of fodder or silage corn.
16. Three varieties of millets.
17. Three varieties of sorghum.
18. Grass peas and two varieties of vetches.
19. Dwarf Essex rape and two varieties of Kale.
20. Three varieties of clover.
21. Sainfoin, Lucerne and Burdock.
22. Five varieties of grasses.
23. Three varieties of field beans.
24. Three varieties of sweet corn.
25. Fertilizers with and without lime.
26. Fertilizers with mangolds.
27. Growing potatoes on the level and in hills.
28. Planting potatoes the same day and five days after being out.
29. Planting out potatoes which have and which have not been coated over with land plaster.
30. Planting corn in rows and in square (an excellent variety of early corn will be used).

Material for either number twenty-five or number twenty-six experiment will be sent by express, and for each of the others it will be forwarded by mail.

Each person in Ontario who wishes to conduct an experiment and is willing to use greatest accuracy in the work and report the results of the test as soon as possible after harvest should select the exact experiment desired and apply for the same at an early date. The material will be forwarded in the order in which the applications are received until the limited supply is exhausted. It might be well for each applicant to make a second choice for fear the first could not be granted.

SIR ARTHUR'S DOG MELODY.

A Canine That Had an Educated Taste in Music.

It is not generally known that the late Sir Arthur Sullivan was not only passionately fond of music, but had made a special study of them in every way. The brilliant composer, whose loss is indeed a blow to the world at large, declared frequently to the writer of this article that in the dog is embodied all the necessary conditions for the appreciation of music of all kinds and that the organ of hearing in a dog is of marvelous delicacy. Sir Arthur bore out the truth of this statement by relating the following fascinating anecdotes of incidents which came directly under his notice:

Some years ago, when Sir Arthur was accustomed to go down to the theatre very regularly in order to conduct the rehearsals of his own operas, he was followed every morning by a dog, which entered the theatre the same time as he did, placed itself between the legs of the musicians and listened delightedly, eagerly to the music. This occurred day after day, until the constant appearance of the dog at the rehearsals excited the curiosity and admiration not only of Sir Arthur himself, but of all the musicians, who, not knowing its name, gave him that of Melody. Very soon he was petted by all, and each one in turn invited the dog to dinner. "Melody, will you dine with me to-day?" Thus the dog was invited to the dog followed his host, ate heartily and as soon as dinner was over rushed off again to the theatre, found its way to the orchestra, placed itself in a corner and never left until the evening performance was finished.

Nothing could be more amusing, more curious, than the attitude of Melody during the performance. If a new work was being performed, he found it out before the overture had been played many seconds. If the piece abounded in rich and original melodies, he testified his pleasure by his delighted barks and by creeping his feet rapidly on the ground. On the other hand, if the piece was only ordinary, insipid, Melody invariably gaped or yawned, turned his back upon the orchestra, gazed around the boxes and at last slunk away in a decidedly bad humor. This expressive pantomime was the most piquant criticism of the new opera.

When the work of some great master was played, Melody always knew the precise moment when an artist was going to sing some striking song or play some special part of the work, and then his movements, his gestures, were such as to almost plead for the audience to stop the work. "I do not know," said Sir Arthur not many weeks before his death, "what became of this dog later on, but his fame and his reputation are still fresh in the memories of several musicians who have frequently seen his singular antics."

RELATED, YET FOES.

Curious Bit of History About Macao and Campos.

In connection with Macao there is a curious bit of unpublished history well worth the telling. Marshal Martinez Campos and Antonio Macao bore the relationship of consanguinity of the blood in the second degree. Campos' father was a colonel in the Spanish army. The first department of the one time district of Mayari, Cuba, where Martinez was born. His mother was of Cuban Indian-African blood and first cousin to the mother of Antonio Macao. The fact that the infant Martinez in Spain, where under Spanish law a man takes his nationality from the place of his church confirmation or baptism, and there the child was legitimized and educated for military life.

Both Campos and Macao were aware of the relationship between them, and, although bitter contestants on the field of battle, they held each other in great personal esteem. Campos, being the highest admiration for the military genius of his cousin, for after the treaty of Zanjón, when even Gomez had accepted the peace terms, Campos wrote to the war department at Madrid that "while Antonio Macao is still in the field the war cannot be considered as ended." Later, after pursuing Macao for nine days, Campos captured the stretcher or hammock in which the revolutionary chief, with nine wounds in his body, had been carried for 36 hours. But the stretcher was empty. Macao had eluded his pursuers. But when the military force reached the place to retrace his steps to Santiago his troops were harassed by Macao's men all along the road, and before they got out of the mountains Macao in person led an attack upon them. Yet some weeks later when, through the British consul at Santiago, Campos solicited an interview with Macao, which was accorded him, such was his confidence in the latter's good personal character that he sent his cousin in La Sabana.

Macao, who came with his immediate personal staff, was much taken aback to find the commander in chief of the Spanish forces, who had been so long a foe, provided the British consul would come out for him and provide him with transportation to Jamaica under the British flag. Macao never surrendered to Spain. —Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

An Unaccepted Invitation.

The Rochester Post-Express says that when Edward VII., as Prince of Wales, was about to visit Niagara Falls Blondin had a rival, one Signor Farini, who was a character. He issued an advertisement urging that the prince make his initial entrance to the great and glorious United States in a striking manner. Accordingly he proposed that he should wheel the prince in a wheelbarrow over a tight rope across the gorge to the United States, an entrance that would be unparalleled. Then the notice adds: "Should any accident happen to his highness whereby he should happen to be precipitated to the gulf below (of which I assure you there is little danger), the money taken from the spectators shall be refunded."

DOMESTIC DIFFICULTIES

Judge Houston has Many of Them to Arbitrate Upon.

Two Mothers Appeal to the Court on Account of Alleged Theft From Them.

The police court frequently proves a public place for the airing of family troubles and domestic difficulties. This morning Judge Houston had two cases of stealing from mother to adjudicate upon. Mrs. Martha White, who so successfully cleans the city offices, charged Mrs. Ora Cribbs with stealing a dress pattern. Mrs. Cribbs is somewhat darker than Mrs. White, but, when the magistrate asked the former if she had anything to say, she pleaded not guilty and stated that "mother," meaning Mrs. White, had given her the dress pattern last spring. The judge remanded Mrs. Cribbs till Monday. Mrs. White told Judge Houston that she didn't wish the prisoner punished, but the judge said that the matter was out of her hands and would have to be dealt with by the court.

Leonard Faubert pleaded guilty to stealing a waterproof coat from his mother, Julia Faubert. He said he had given the coat to Alex. Jamieson as security for $1, on the understanding that the coat could be redeemed at any time, but now Jamieson didn't want to let his mother have the coat. Judge Houston—It seems to me that the man who would steal from his mother, who is worse than a widow, is deserving of the severest punishment. Parties when it is remembered that she has to work for her own living and has been keeping up half the time? Have you ever been up before? Prisoner—I should think so.

The Judge—You seem to take your position as a very good joke and feel very much at home.

The Chief—He has been up so often that he thinks you should know him, and shouldn't need to ask that question.

The Judge—How old are you?

The Prisoner—Nineteen past.

The Chief—He has been up six times.

The Judge—You must rather like being arrested.

The Chief—There has been a suspended sentence against Faubert since he was nine years old.

The Judge—Oh, you can mark that off, Chief. Now, addressing the prisoner, what do you think a man should get who would steal a coat from a woman as poor as your mother is?

The Prisoner—Don't know.

Faubert was remanded till Monday for sentence to see if the coat can be secured in the meantime.

Walter Herbert pleaded guilty to stabbing Herbert Merrifield last month. The military governor of the province and Herbert was released on suspended sentence. Merrifield is now in Winnipeg.

A young man was found guilty on the charge of lighting on the streets and was fined $1 and costs, $5.25 in all.

MILITIA DIRECTIONS

Text of the Regimental Orders Issued by Col. Rankin.

The Equipment Will Shortly be Handed Out and Non Coms. Appointed.

Headquarters, 24th Kent Regiment Chatham, March 20, 1901.

REGIMENTAL ORDERS NO. 2.

By Lt.-Col. J. B. Rankin, Commanding.

Captain of the day—Captain Bell; next for duty, Capt. Mowbray.

Subaltern of the day, Lieut. Watson; next for duty, Lieut. McDonald.

The Regiment will parade at drill on Thursday, March 21, at 7:45 o'clock p. m., and thereafter every Thursday evening at 7:45 p. m.

The band will parade with the company on Thursday, March 21, at the same hour and place. The bandmaster will report in writing to the adjutant without delay, the names of the entire strength of the band. He will also see that the band instruments are properly cleaned.

The quartermaster will be good enough to take into regimental stores, all arms, accoutrements and uniforms forwarded from the Department of Militia and Defence, and report to the C. O. the earliest possible date that he will be able to serve out the equipment.

The attention of officers commanding companies is directed to paragraphs 5 and 7, Regimental Orders, No. 1, and in addition thereto they will leave with the Adjutant at once, a nominal roll of all members of their respective companies.

All ranks are notified that application for admission to the Infantry School can only be made through the officer commanding the regiment. The proper forms may be had at the Orderly Room upon application.

By order,
DANIEL W. B. SPRY,
Captain and Adjutant.

IT IS THE WAY YOU USE IT.

It's the Method Employed Which Makes Success or Failure.

One man with pen, ink and paper can produce a landscape, another man with the same pen and ink may not be able to write his own name legibly. It is all in knowing how.

It is equally true in the use of medicines. The same remedies we have today have existed for thousands of years, but if their existence was known the knowledge of how to use them was lacking.

They became valuable to the human race only when experiment and science showed the way to use them to get results.

The grip is an old disease with a new name; it is really catarrh in character and the usual symptoms are those of acute catarrh, but the old time catarrh powders, salves and sprays do not cure it, neither does the application of antiseptics through an inhaler give anything more than relief for a short time.

The antiseptics are all right; they will kill the germs of catarrh and grip if they are applied rightly, but their local application to the nose and throat avail little, because the germs are in the blood and through the whole system.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets contain many of the same antiseptics, that are used in sprays and inhalers, but instead of applying them to the inflamed membranes of the nose and throat, they are taken into the stomach and thus reach the blood, the real seat of the disease and drive out the infectious germs through the natural channels of the bowels and kidneys.

In other words Stuart's Catarrh Tablets reach the cause of the mischief instead of merely local symptoms.

The remarkable success of these tablets in curing grip, catarrh and throat and lung troubles is because they drive the catarrhal poison from the system and the nose and throat become clear of the excessive secretion of mucus, which causes the hawking, spitting and gagging, because the secretion is not supplied from healthy blood.

Two years ago, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets were unknown, but today have become so popular through positive merit, that druggists everywhere in the United States, Canada and Great Britain now sell them.

More Grand and More Central.

The New York Times, in a leading editorial last month, discussing the hotels, clubs and some public buildings, in relation to their unpopularity to the city's center, said: "The Grand Central Station has come, in the process of the years, to be both more 'Grand' and more 'Central' than when it was originally built."

Yes, Commodore Vanderbilt, the founder of the famous house, had a long head. When he projected the "Grand Central Station," he did not plan for a day, but for a long time ahead, for a century more or less, and his worthy successors, by enlarging and remodeling the building, have kept the station "grand" and up-to-date. The Times knows a good thing when it sees it. —From the Home Journal, New York.
