WE regret to learn that Mr. Owen Murphy, aged 26, son of Mr. Felix Murphy, of Freetown, was drowned in a lake near Rat Portage, Manitoba, about three weeks ago. The deceased young man went to the Northwest last fall, and was doing very well there when the sad accident happened. He was well known in Freetown and vicinity, whose residents deeply sympathize with his family in their misfortune. Up to this, although search has been made by his Island friends living in the district, the body of young Murphy has not been found. Another son of Mr. Murphy-James-died of small-pox in Express Train was nearing O'Leary Station, a team driven by a Mr. McDougall, and in which were his wife and grand-daughter, attempted to cross in front of the engine. The engine driver, perceiving that an acci dent was inevitable, reversed the engine and wagon was smashed to pieces, Mrs. Mc-Dougall and the child were caught upon the applied brakes, but without effect. The cow-catcher, and the man thrown violently to the ground. Mrs. McDougall received such injuries that she died within an hour; such injuries that she died within an hour; her husband lay unconscious for some time, but is not seriously hurt, and the little girl was rescued from a terrible death, at the very last moment as she was about to roll off the cow-catcher, by Driver Armour whose bravery is highly to be commended. The verdict of the Coroner's inquest was to the offect that deceased met her death by imprudently attempting to cross the track in front of the engine, and that the Railway officials were entirely free from blame.
