

Sunshine After the Storm.

"And when I was away, they came here, I suppose?" "No, I had a letter from my brother. He says the place is mortgaged beyond his power to redeem. And yet the mortgage is but a trifling comparison with the value of the estate. He asks me to buy the place or to lend him the money to pay the mortgage. He told me about his life and his family, and said some words about his brotherly feeling for me that made me feel very kindly."

"You see he wanted money. He never thought 'brotherly' of you until he died." "Never mind what caused the feeling. You know the Prodigal never thought of his father until he was hungry. I wrote to him and made a proposal, which yesterday he gladly accepted. It was, however, conditional upon your feelings."

"But I was not consulted. What have I to do with the proposal, father?" "I proposed that you pay them; visit, and that if you happened—mind, it is entirely in your own hands—that if you happened to fall in love with either your cousin James or Alphonse, and marry him, that then I would lift the mortgage—on condition that the house and one-half of the estate are settled on you and your children. You see, Bessie, I have been perfectly frank with you. I might have made up some plausible excuse and taken you there, and then forbidden you to fall in love with either of your cousins. That would have been sufficient to make you determine to marry one or the other, and thus you would have unknowingly carried out my desire. But I thought this was a mean, childish way of treating you. I resolved to tell you the truth, and ask you to carry out my plan, if it was pleasant to you."

"You did the best thing after all, father." "Of course. And, at any rate, you can go and see how things really are. A winter in the south will confirm your health, and you will gain and not lose by delaying your debut into New York society. Will you go to Texas, then, my dear?" "Are you going, father?" "I certainly intended to go; and then, yesterday, my manager asked me for a two or three week vacation. Both of us cannot be away at the same time. It would be ruinous to the business."

"And your manager's desires are of more importance than your own or even mine? If I were a man, I should hire a master and make myself comfortable as a servant!" "The poor fellow has never asked for a vacation before. He has been with me seven years. How would you have liked to say 'No' to his first request?" "I could say it very sweetly. I should be 'so sorry,' and tell him he could have a little longer at some other time."

No more Torture from Eczema.

Relief Quick and Certain When DR. BOVEL'S HERB AND GUM SALVE is used.

There is no form of itching skin disease which can defy the extraordinary curative powers of Dr. Bovel's Herb and Gum Salve.

This is a strong statement, and is only made after years of experience with the use of this preparation in the most horrible cases of eczema which you could imagine.

There are lots of cures to refer to, but what you want is actual trial in your own case, when you will soon realize that there is no disputing its wonderful healing powers.

Dear Sirs,—I feel it my duty to make you some endorsement of the excellent healing qualities of your Herb and Gum Salve, which I have used for eczema and skin eruptions.

"No, indeed! Mrs. Gonzales will be delighted to have your company. She is going to Galveston. Your uncle will meet you there."

"O-h-h-h!" "Oh, you go, Bessie?" "I will think about it, father."

"I intend to have the largest number of bridesmaids. They get so much delight out of a wedding. Even after it is all over they like to talk of the affair, and tell each other how the bride looked, and how her husband adorned her, and how her travelling-dress fitted. Indeed I am in favor of such weddings, Amber."

"Well, if you like to be stared at all right." "Yes, I like to be stared at; and even read about. I think every real woman likes to read about a wedding. We all feel a certain joy in a man—even if we do not know him—who repents and gets married. So, you see, I do not approve of your quiet country marriage, at all. And you are so good-natured, I must believe that it was the doctor's wish and not yours."

Organizing the Colonies

It is becoming increasingly imperative that some great statesmen should complete the work of organizing the Colonies.

"The British Colonies ought to be regarded as the branches of the greatest business firm in the world. This, however, is not recognized, and it is present the Colonies Office gives too much attention to the political aspect of things and too little to the business requirements of the Empire's commercial branches."

"We were there in July. They raise an English summer in their houses—like grapes. It is a fact."

"One cannot help grumbling a little about English weather. Climate in New York is arranged in such a satisfactory manner. I declare, all seasons are comfortable here. You can get roses any day in the year. It is only florists and a few market-gardeners who have to struggle against the course of nature. Society is all right."

"I have no heart to exert myself and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of getting to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden."

Indigestion & Dyspepsia. In all its forms can be cured. It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself and at times I care for nothing.

After suffering ten years Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. MARLTON, N.J.—I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given me new life. I suffered for ten years with serious female troubles, inflammation, ulceration, indigestion, nervousness, and could not sleep. Doctors gave me up, as they said my troubles were chronic. I was in despair, and did not care whether I lived or died, when I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so I began to take it, and am well again and relieved of all my suffering."
