TOPICS OF TO-DAY.

Dr. Gilmour, M.P.P., has been again chosen to contest West York for the Local Legislature.

A friend of ours, whose evidence can be relied on, says "la grippe" makes one feel as though he were wearing a mist skull that is too tight across the forehead and that pinches behind the ears.

A bill is to be introduced in the Legislature of New Jersey, providing that persons may have their wills probated before they die. With such a law a man might appear in his own behalf, establish his sanity and all that sort of thing, and contestants would be likely to be backward about telling him that he must do with his own property.

At a largely attended meeting of the Association of North Brant, held at St. George on Thursday, was moved by Gavin Fleming, ex-M.P., seconded by Mayor Walker, that "this association desires to record its full confidence in the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier as leader of the Liberal Opposition in the House of Commons, and its hearty approval of the policy advocated by him of unrestricted reciprocity with the United States, believing that the largest possible freedom of commercial intercourse between the two countries would be to the advantage of the great majority of the people of the Dominion."

At the cemetery gate the road crosses the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad tracks, and as the carriage was passing over the track a passenger train struck and demolished it. "Fearful Weather." QUEENSTOWN, Jan. 24.—The steamer City of Berlin arrived from New York to-day. She reports fearful weather on the voyage, and on Jan. 19, in latitude 47 degrees north longitude 47 degrees west, she saw a field of ice extending northward beyond view. LONDON, Jan. 24.—Captain Darling of the steamer Erin, at Bremen, from New Orleans, which reported sighting and bringing alongside a life boat supposed to belong to the steamer Erin, says that the crew, etc., which were taken from the boat were lashed fast to it and had not been used. There was a hole in the bottom of the boat. Capt. Darling thinks, from the appearance of the boat, it has been washed from its fastenings. The officials of the National Line, to which the Erin belongs, state that all the small boats belonged to the Erin were marked "Erin, Liverpool," while the boat seen by the Creole was marked "Erin, London."

Taffy for Bismarck. LONDON, Jan. 24.—The Times says: The Samoan treaty bears a handsome testimony to Prince Bismarck's reasonableness. That is much more than we could have expected from him. That he quietly consented to the prohibition of arms and alcohol and to the land clauses was probably due to British influence. Their insertion in such a treaty is a remarkable event in the history of the relations of civilized with semi-civilized races.

The Standard gives the treaty a doubtful approval. It says: While it is good oratorically, it is likely that difficulties will arise. In any case provision for revision and the friendly terms upon which the treaty stands promises well for an honest working contract.

Sayings and Doings of the Dominion House.

A Lively Scene Over Mr. McMullen's Motion for a Return of Certain Expenditures.

(Special to ADVERTISER.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 24.—The bankers will meet here to-day to organize and arrange for to-morrow's interview with the Minister of Finance respecting the proposed change in the Banking Act. They express themselves as opposed to an adoption of the American banking system.

The arrivals include Messrs. Andrew Thompson, president of the Quebec Bank; A. Gaboriau, president of the Banque Nationale, Quebec; Wolferstan Thomas, general manager of the Molsons Bank, Montreal; D. C. Coulson, cashier of the Bank of Toronto; D. R. Wilkie, cashier of the Imperial Bank; B. E. Walker, general manager of the Bank of Commerce; R. R. Grindley, president of the Bank of N. A., Montreal; and J. Turnbull, cashier of the Bank of Hamilton.

The chief interest this morning has centered in the Tory caucus, which was in session for an hour and a half in the old press-room west of the chamber. It is impossible at this early writing to be sure of what was done, but undoubtedly the flour duties, the McCarthy Bill, and Orange incorporation were discussed.

Messrs. A. Boyle, of Dunville, and C. W. Wilson, of St. John, N. B., are around the House this morning for the first time.

Business of the House.

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—In the Commons to-day Mr. Casgrain moved the first reading of the bill respecting the independence of Parliament. In explanation, he said it gave to the position of a member of Parliament the status of an oath, as required in nearly every office under the Crown. The position of a member of Parliament was one of great trust and responsibility, and the bill was an additional security for the performance of that trust. The bill made it a misdemeanor for anyone to offer a bribe to a member for promoting or impeding a measure before the House. An oath will be taken in writing and recorded that the member has not received or agreed to receive any consideration to do or not to do anything in relation to his official duties.

To Sir John Macdonald, Mr. Casgrain said that there were no penalties attached by the bill except that breach of the oath would follow the ordinary course of law, but he would later on suggest that if a newly-elected member refused to take the oath he should not be permitted to take his seat until the question had been decided by the House. The bill was read a first time.

In reply to Mr. Gordon, the Premier said no application had been made to the Government for a repeal of the Chinese Act.

In reply to Sir Richard Cartwright, the Minister of Railways said the earnings of the Intercolonial Railway for the half year ending Jan. 1, 1890, were $1,582,897, and the working expenses $1,834,046. For the half year ending Jan. 1, 1889, the earnings were $1,648,381, and the working expenses $1,880,451.

Mr. McMullen moved for a return giving the names of each Minister of the Crown, High Commissioner, or other foreign plenipotentiary, from Confederation to June 30, 1889, and the amount of money drawn by each under the various heads.

Mr. McMullen explained that the Government of Canada sent to foreign countries, Mr. Taylor rose and moved an amendment, a motion half a column long, for a return of a score of entirely absurd things.

Sir John Macdonald said there was no necessity for the motion and he would move an amendment of the debate.

Mr. Laurier regretted the course taken by the Premier in giving assistance to a move that was simply frivolous and a lowering of the dignity of the House. (Hear, hear.) If Mr. McMullen's motion was objected to, why not debate it in a fair manner instead of attempting to throw ridicule on it?

Sir John Macdonald—It is ridiculous. Mr. Laurier, well, the First Minister did not seem to think so at first. They had commissioner after commissioner sent to one country and another, and moving the adjournment of the debate was not in the best interests of the House or compatible with its dignity.

Sir John Macdonald (continuing)—I am last judge of that. Mr. Laurier insisted that Sir John should withdraw his motion and that Mr. Taylor should withdraw his amendment. The Premier offered to accept the proposition if Mr. McMullen would withdraw the original motion. Mr. Laurier would make no such compromise. Sir Richard Cartwright intervened. Mr. McMullen pointed out that he tolerated, dignified language, that he sought this information in order to place the facts before his constituents and the country, and that if his motion were defective he would amend it. Finally the Premier yielded to Mr. Taylor's firmness, withdrew the motion to adjourn and suggested that Mr. Taylor should withdraw the amendment. Then Mr. Laurier declared that the Opposition would not be outdone in generosity and at his suggestion Mr. McMullen withdrew his introduction in a modified form.

Mr. Hesson moved for a return giving the names of all chartered banks in Canada that have suspended payment, gone into liquidation, become insolvent since Confederation. He complained that Canadian banks are so discredited in the United States that practically all their bills are at a discount among the Americans. His remedy was the establishment of a national currency, taking from the banks the power to issue notes.

Mr. Casey offered a few remarks, but reserved further comment until the Government brought down their Bank Bill. The motion carried and the House adjourned.
