> Love Making in Chicago. (From the Chicago Tribune.)

"I am very rich, my darling." she said softly, punctuating her sentences with soft, warm kisses. "Already I have $100,000 worth of four per cents registered in my name, and when the leaves are turning red in the golden October days, and the fields are laughing in the rich abundance of a bountiful harvest, I shall cut off the coupons. And when papa dies he will leave me nearly $200,000 more. Yes, my sweetheart, I am a very happy girl," and a fair young he id nestled confidingly on the shoulder of the strong-limbed, hazel-eyed young man to whom this avowal was made. He looked tenderly down at the brown tresses and the invisible net that bound them to the fair forehead. Gently lifting the beautiful face to his, he pressed a passionate kiss on the full, red lips that seemed only made for osculation.

Turning his head away, Herbert Ainsleigh appeared for a moment to be wrapped in thought. Then kissing Miriam with a rich, warm, two-for-a-quarter kiss, he said:

"I touched up old Yaller with the quirt, and sailed over toward the antelope, thinkin' I'd stir him up a little."

"Yes, Herbert, in the rich, hazy, sensuous days of Indian summer, when the low note of the farmer's boy meeking the loss cow is heard as he sits on the vine-embowered stile and blasphemes until the firefly leaves for a cooler spot. You must take all ruy money, Herbert; it must be yours to do as you will with it; to attain the glorious fame that awaits you; for I know that my love's name will some day be known through the length and breath of the land. Surely, you have an ambition?"

"I have," said Herbert, kissing her while she caught her breath.

"And you will not let any false pride stand in the way of using my money to attain the height you fain would reach?"

"No, darring, I will not. You say you have $100,000 in four per cents. To-morror I will act, and in less than a day my name will be as familiar throughout the world as that of England's proad queen."
