It is not the wish or purpose of The World to pander to the vicious or rake up social sores and ulcers that had better be left untold in the public prints; but a case porters yesterday that should receive conideration from the police or the well-wishers of society at large. It is no great secret to many people in Toronto who are on the streets every day and have an opportunity of learning such things that there are in this city not a few, probably 20 or 30. girls of very tender years who are actually leading an abandoned life. As a case in point a World reporter can furnish this one. Yesterday afternoon two furnish this one. Yesterday afternoon two girls, certainly not ove 12 years of age, were standing near St. James cathedral. A middle aged man, who afterwards said he came from Elora on an extursion, was passing along the street, when he was accosted by one of the girls. The latter entered into a rather "fast" conversation with the stranger, and after ten minutes' talk asked him if he would not treat them to beer. The man said that no one would sell them lignor. The girls then assured him that The man said that no one would sell them liquor. The girls then assured him that they could get all he wanted to pay for and indicated a place on York. The next proposition they made was for the stranger to rent a room in a place they represented to be a house of assignation on the same street, and they assured him that they would have a good time. Both offers were refused by the stranger. This is but one of these painful cases that have happened lately, and is positively correct in ever particular.

THE CHICORA ROW.

O'Neill and Hurst Convicted in the Polic

Yesterday afternoon the adjourned charge against James O'Neill and John Hurst for creating a row on the steamer Chicora on July129 was resumed before Justices Baxter and Love. Mr. Bigelow appeared for the captain of the Chicora, and Messrs. Murphy & Murdoch defended. The trial lasted four hours. A large amount of evidence was taken, which was of a very contradictory nature. The presiting magistrates retired at 4 o'elock and passed sentence at 4.15. Mr. Baxter spoke at length and referred to the safeguard that the law threw around the captain of a vessel in maintaining order. There was no doubt in his mind that there was a riot on board. He was there himself and witnessed part of it. He said that the boat was filled by over 700 citizens, over half of whom were ladies 700 citizens, over half of whom were ladies and children. The lives of the latter were opardized in the event of a general row arting and the safety of the vessel was at sake. People who went out on a holiday were not to be inflicted with rowdyism and dan-ger. He and his brother magistrate had weighed the evidence carefully and both weighed the evidence carefully and both were of the same opinion. Conviction was the only course open to them. O'Neill was fined $50 without costs or 30 days in jail, and Hurst $40 without costs or 20 days.

Mr. Murphy gave notice of appeal. A counter charge was also entrred against the mate of the boat by John Morrison, which will be tried before the magistrate when he returns.

Literary Work and the Use of Tobacco From the London Times.

In respense to the circular recently out by Mr. Arthur Reade, who has been collecting information as to the literary men in regard to stimulants, the Abbe Molgno gives an interesting record of his experiences The letter appearing in his paper, Les Mondes, states that he has published 150 volumes, small and great: that he scarcely ever leaves his work table, and never takes of headache or brain weariness. Snuff taking he sometimes practised, Snuff taking he sometimes practised, but he vigorously condemns it. He has learned twelve foreign lauguages by a method of his own, and with regard to acquirements in philology and chronology he says: "I was one of the most extraordinary personalities of my time, and Francois Arago sometimes laughingly threatened to have me burnt as a sorcerer." On one occasion, me burnt as a sorcerer." On one oceasi when in Munich for a few weeks, and spe ing his evenings with Bavarian savauts, who each smoked four or five eigars and drank two or three pots of beer daily—Steinheil, the most illustrious, boasted of smoking 6006 most illustrious, boasted of smoking 6000 cigars a year—the abbe came to smoke three or four cigars a day. He had also anew taken to snuff, so that, when preparing his calculus of variations, a very difficult mathematical work, he would empty his snuff box, which held 25 grammes, in a day. But one day he was surprised to find himself painfully unable to recall the meaning of foreign words or to remember dates with which he had been familiar.

Thereupon he formed a heroic resolution and since Aug. 31, 1863, when he smoked three cigars and took 25 centimes' worth of snuff, he has up to the 25th of June, of snuff, he has up to the 25th of June, 1882, touched neither. This was for him a complete resurrection, not only of memory but of general health and well-being; he has had indefinite capacity of work, unconscious digestion, perfect assimilation of food. For one reason or another, Friday from time immemorial, was reckoned an unlucky day among nearly all the various branches of the Aryan family of nations, embracing the Aryan family of nations, embracing the Greek, Latin. Celtic, Teutonic and Slavonic races, or, in other words, the an-cestors of pretty nearly all the present population of Europe. This was the case long before any of these races were chris-tianized. The Romans classed Friday in the nefasti dies, on which the courts were forbidden to sit; and it was one of the forbidden to sit; and it was one of the unlucky days of that sort on which wor-ship of the gods, or, at least, religious feasts, were never celebrated. After the introduction of christianity the day became still more obnoxious to the people because it was held that Christ expire because it was held that Christ expired on the cross on Friday, April 3, 33 A.D. It seems that in very early times in the history of English jurisprudence it became a common practice in selecting s day for the execution of criminals to choose Friday. This practice was transplanted to the courts of this country in colonial times, and has been generally though not invariably, observed ever since not only in the cated people that they cannot be induced to set sail on a voyage, start on any kind of a jourdey, or commence any new enterprise on that day of the week. The same superstition prevails among the Hindoos.

From the London World. It is not very long since that I alluded to the heavy betting of certain jockeys and mentioned an instance in which a prominent Newmarket light weight laid £300 to £200 on the winner of a match. Even such a transaction, however, which is perfectly indefensible, sinks into insignificance compared with the recent enormous win-nings of Charles Archer, Lord Ellesmere's private trainer, who is reported to have won £20,000 over Wallenstein for the Manchester cup, £4000 over Highland Chief for the Exeter stakes at Newmarket, and £10,000 over Lowland Chief for the Stewards' cup at Goodwood.

Mr. D. P. Etue, Kansas, City, Mo., one I had leisure, also, in that brief space, to judge from the size of the arm extended to my bed, that its owner was better formed for activity than strength; and by his grizzled beard, that he was rather old than grizzled beard, that he was rather old than young.

I therefore sprang from my bed, and darting through the purdor of the inner door, seized him py the cummerbund just as he was passing the outer entrance. (The tents in India have double flies; the outen khanaut, or wall, forming a verandah, of some four feet wide, round the inner pavilion.) The fellow's blanket, however, gave away for he had held it lossely about hin, and before I could recover my hold upon him, he had made good his escape through the outer purdor, but dropping in his hasty exit the much esteemed dressing case.

I was so close upon his that the bheel (robber) could not recover the prize; and jumping over the tent ropes, which doubtless the rogue calculated would trip me up, he ran towards the road.

I was in such a furry, that forgetting my hare feet. I gave chase verification.
