

PROSPECTUS OF THE "British American Presbyterian."

The want of a journal devoted to the interests of the British American Presbyterian Church...

Referring to be judged by what we are able to accomplish...

The "British American Presbyterian" will contain full reports on the present state of the Church...

The prospectus for the year 1872, already published, should be warmly and persistently maintained...

It is our wish to produce a paper which will be useful to the variety of parties...

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

We are indebted to our brethren of the Press for many kind notices...

The enterprise will no doubt meet with a hearty support...

It is a good looking sheet, and we anticipate for it a large and increasing circulation...

We cordially welcome this new paper, and hope for its long and successful career...

The paper is very readable, and contains a large amount of interesting matter...

It is a handsome paper, and, if the promise of the prospectus be fulfilled, it will become a useful and popular religious journal...

The initial number presents a very favorable appearance, and its contents display ability and high ability...

It represents a bold appearance, and we trust will be warmly received...
