THE TORONTO WORLD

ONE CENT MORNING PAPER.
No. 53 YONGE STREET, Toronto.

WARSHIPS IN THE LAKES.

Newspapers of the American lake cities are urging their Government to secure a revision of the treaty with Britain, which prohibits both countries from having warships on the great lakes. They suggest that this should be made one of the subjects for consideration at the coming conference between Canada and the United States. The proposal should be strenuously opposed by the Canadian representatives at the conference. It would be exceedingly advantageous to the United States, but not at all advantageous to Canada. It would oblige the Canadian people to enter upon a large expenditure for the building of warships, or else be at the mercy of American goodwill. At the present time, as pointed out the other day, the British Government is not obliged to spend one cent extra on account of Canada. The British fortifications in Canada and the British fleet in Canadian waters are certainly a great source of strength to Canada, but they are necessary for the protection of British commerce on the Atlantic. If it were necessary to keep warships in the great lakes, these warships would be maintained purely for the protection of Canada and they would not be available for use elsewhere. The British Government would have just grounds for asking the Canadian people to pay for them, unless Canada protested strongly against the abrogation of the agreement which keeps warships out of the lakes in time of peace.

It is true that the American newspapers are not asking for this change with a view to attacking the Canadian lake cities and laying waste to Ontario. The sole idea they have in mind is to enable the lake cities to share in the numerous contracts for building warships certain to be given out by their Government in the future. The lake cities do not expect to build great warships, but they think gambols drawing up the great lakes and the sea might be more than 14 feet of water might be constructed in the great lakes and run. But however friendly the Americans may be in their present intentions permanent peace could not be absolutely depended upon, and if war did break out, the Americans with a fleet of warships in the lakes at the start would have a great advantage over the British, who would have to bring warships up from the sea under the most unfavorable conditions.

If the two countries maintained rival fleets in the lakes their movements would be a constant theme for sensational newspaper correspondents and might tend to cause unpleasant feelings, for each nation would be always watching to see that the other did not overstep the bounds of moderation in the use of warships in the lakes.

SHORTCOMINGS IN SCHOOLS.

The World not long ago quoted from a statement of Dr. Bryce to show that many of the schoolrooms of Toronto are overcrowded, improperly heated, poorly lighted and badly ventilated. The Editor of The Canadian Journal of Medicine and Surgery gives figures showing the result of a minute examination of some of the city schoolrooms made by himself last winter. His investigations proved that the warm air supplied was insufficient in quantity and of too high a temperature so that cold air had to be introduced in an irregular fashion by open windows to supply the defects, and that even with the windows open the supply of fresh air was small as was proved by the large amount of carbonic acid gas in the air. When the windows were closed the temperature had to be opened, making the temperature irregular and allowing at the same time considerable waste of heat. In some of the rooms where the space allotted to each pupil was quite large enough, the ventilating appliances were so imperfect that fresh air was not supplied in sufficient quantities, and the apparatus for removing vitiated air was utterly inadequate. In the makeshift buildings, such as stores, and in the rooms in churches in which many of the school children are accommodated, it is inevitable that there should be deficient floor space and cubic air space, bad ventilation and heating, poor lighting, unsatisfactory conveniences, absence of playground and unsuitable locations, but even in some of the large and expensive schoolhouses the heating, lighting and ventilating appliances are inefficient. He shows that in the State of Massachusetts the requirements for heating, lighting and ventilating schoolrooms are based on scientific principles and are strictly enforced, the buildings being carefully inspected and submitted to scientific tests before they are accepted. Contractors are held down to the regulations imposed by the statutes, and are obliged to make alterations at their own expense if anything imperfect is discovered in the various appliances. The City of Toronto has spent hundreds of thousands on school buildings. If they are defective from a sanitary point of view, it is not because the trustees have been hampered for lack of funds, but because they have not been sufficiently impressed with the importance of schoolhouse sanitation.

COMMENTS ON THE WAR.

The New York Sun, which has led the American press in hostility to England for many years, is now disposed to be quite friendly to the British, but it takes pains to make it known that its present friendliness does not imply any acknowledgment that Britain is a great American power. Although The Sun sees the value of British friendship in the present crisis, it has not abandoned its idea of annexing Canada to the United States. But the British are firmly established in America, and must be regarded as an American power until they are driven out. They have nearly as great an area on the mainland of North America as the United States; they own the settled islands of North America—Newfoundland, Bermuda and Vancouver; and they have valuable possessions in both the West Indies and South America, where the United States as yet owns nothing. As regards area Britain is a greater American power than the United States; as regards population it is behind in numbers, but Japan is behind China in population, yet there is no doubt about Japan being a greater military power.

The basis for an Anglo-American alliance is an acknowledgment by the United States that Britain is an American power. So long as the Americans believe that the British are only making a temporary stay on this continent and that the Stars and Stripes are destined to wave over Canada they are likely to be troublesome neighbors.

While the Canadian Government is doing nothing about a Pacific cable, because Australia cannot be persuaded to pay a larger share of the cost of it than Canada, American newspapers are urging their Government to immediately lay a cable from America to Hawaii and the Philippines. They argue that it is a war necessity now, and that after the war is over it will be a commercial necessity to facilitate American control over the vast commerce of the Pacific. In the rivalry of trade those who are first in the field are usually the winners, and it looked a few years ago as if Canada might take the lead of the United States in the commerce of the Pacific, but if the American cable gets the cable to Hawaii, the Canadian province will be heavily handicapped. How, there is no doubt that there will eventually be plenty of business for two cables across the Pacific as there are a number crossing the Atlantic.

There is no doubt that the sympathies of the people of Spanish America are with the Spaniards in their struggle against the United States. There has long existed in Mexico, Central America and South America an intense dislike of Americans, and this feeling is now intensified by the fear that in gaining control over Cuba and Porto Rico the Americans will be placed in a position to dominate over the whole of Spanish America. Even in a war with a nation not akin to themselves they would probably be pleased to see the Americans defeated and in this way they naturally sympathize with men of their own race fighting in a hopeless cause against an overwhelming enemy. Even in Venezuela, where it might be supposed the whole people would feel grateful to Americans for interference on their behalf in the boundary controversy, the prospect of Cuban annexation to the United States is viewed with alarm by some of the people, and Dr. Pregonero, an influential journal of Caracas, concludes an article expressing sympathy for Spain with the following words: "Let others welcome this dark prospect as an aura of liberty for our Cuban brethren, let them prepare in this connection."

test of races to applaud if they will the discomfort if not the humiliation of our race."

It has generally been supposed that the supplies which were sent from the United States to Cuba for the relief of the reconcentrados were confiscated by the Spanish authorities for the use of the Spanish troops, but Chairman Stephen E. Barton of the Cuban Relief Committee announced that he has received authentic information from the Red Cross Society that such is not the case. On the contrary the Spanish commanders have allowed the supplies to be distributed to those for whom they were intended, wherever there was anyone with authority to conduct the work, and where there are no arrangements for distribution the supplies are awaiting the order of the Red Cross Society. If this report can be depended upon, and there seems to be no good reason to doubt it, it is decidedly creditable to the Spanish authorities in Cuba. In a time of siege when provisions are scarce it was not expected that the Spaniards, whose supposed cruelty to the reconcentrados was made the chief excuse for the war, would be so considerate.
