

DEATH CALLS GREAT COMPOSER

Edward MacDowell Passes Away
at New York After a Year's Illness.

New York, Jan. 23.—Edward Alexander MacDowell, who has been recognized as America's foremost composer, died at the Westminster Hotel at 8 o'clock tonight. He was forty-six years of age.

Death was due to a nervous affection. In the spring of 1905, and while still in his prime, Mr. MacDowell suffered a nervous collapse, from which he failed to recover. For the past year his intimate associates realized that the end was not far off. During the last few days hope of ultimate recovery was abandoned, and today those in attendance announced that death was momentarily expected.

Mr. MacDowell, who was destined to be known as a composer and pianist not only in his own, but in foreign lands, was born in this city, Dec. 18, 1861.

He studied at Paris and at Frankfurt-on-Main, and taught the piano at Darmstadt Conservatory and at Wiesbaden. When he returned to the United States in 1888 and took up his home in Boston he was already famous as a composer of orchestral piano and vocal music. In 1896 he became professor of music at Columbia University, continuing these duties until 1904. In 1897-98 he was president of the American Society of Musicians and Composers.

MacDowell's place among modern composers, of course, has not yet been definitely fixed, but the best critical opinion not only in America, but in Europe, assigns him a high standing. His best orchestral compositions are frequently heard in European concert halls. His piano concert is played by many of the world's leading pianists, while his piano writings are generally esteemed for their originality and true musical worth. The same thing may be said of many of his songs.

A movement for the raising of a MacDowell memorial fund has been in progress for some time, and several thousand dollars have been raised by subscription and by the giving of "MacDowell" concerts by various musical organizations in different parts of the country.

The chief aim of the promoters, leading musicians and patrons of musical art was to insure the comfort of the composer in his helplessness following his breakdown, and that of his family. Secondly, it was proposed to establish at the MacDowell Home at Peterboro a home for musicians, as a memorial to the composer. On June last a MacDowell benefit was given at Salle-ard, in Paris.

QUIET REIGNS IN RUSSIAN

(Third Anniversary of "Red Sunday" Passes Without Demonstrations.)

St. Petersburg, Jan. 23.—The third anniversary of "Red Sunday," January 22, 1905, has passed quietly. There were no demonstrations, and the day attracted little general attention. Even the one day strike of the workmen was not observed this year, the least of the socialist organizations deciding instead to ask the workmen to contribute each a day's wages to a fund for the relief of the unemployed.

The Rech today publishes a story giving some hitherto unknown details of the happenings of three years ago. This includes a statement that Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky, the then premier, urged the Gapon delegation be received; he was opposed, however, by Finance Minister Kokovtsov and M. Muraviev, the then minister of justice, whereupon he decided to prevent the demonstration at all costs.

BUT ONE SALVATION ARMY

American Organization Denied Right to Use the Name.

New York, Jan. 23.—The right of the Salvation Army of the United States, of which General William Booth is the head, to the exclusive use of that order or any similar name, was denied today by Justice Newburger in the supreme court.

Justice Newburger's decision was on an application made by the Salvation Army of the United States for an injunction to restrain the American Salvation Army, headed by James W. Duffin, from using that name.

Counsel of the applicant in arguing for the injunction declared that the application was made on the ground that the Duffin organization had brought discredit on the Salvation Army of the United States.

CAN'T GET CHILDREN FOR ADOPTION

Toronto, Jan. 23.—There are from a thousand to fifteen hundred orphan children in Toronto institutions, and some of these places are preparing to erect new buildings in order to provide increased accommodation. At the same time 67 Ontario children's aid societies received applications from childless parents, who are awaiting to adopt children, but the societies are unable to supply their needs. Mr. J. J. Kelso, superintendent of children's aid societies, discussing the matter, said he could not see why the Toronto institutions do not allow some of the children under their care to be adopted, and thus relieve themselves of heavy charges for maintenance, and obviate the need of expensive extensions of buildings.

REVOLT PLOTTER RUN TO EARTH

Corsican Who Managed Haytien Revolution Caught "With the Goods."

Washington, Jan. 23.—Startling developments in the plot to overthrow the Government of President Nord in Hayti have followed the investigations of the secret service agents in New York in connection with the arrest of Jose M. Giordani, on the charge of counterfeiting Haytien money.

The officers say they have ascertained that the prisoner was the agent of a formidable conspiracy, whose operations probably would have extended beyond the limits of Hayti into Santo Domingo, and even into Cuba, had the revolution in Hayti been a success, and the agents in New York remained unmoored. It was found, among other things, the secret service operatives declare, that certain persons in Hayti, mostly Frenchmen and Corsicans, and one of them a brother of Giordani, were active agents of the alleged conspirators, and were designated in the papers found among Giordani's effects by numbers.

Warned by Magoon.

Six or seven months ago, when the United States Government was advised by Provisional Governor Magoon that a party of malcontents were trying to stir up a rebellion in Cuba, it was discovered that Giordani was connected with them. At that time it developed that he had represented Gen. Firman, during the Haytien uprising, in 1902. Firman, then, as now, was the head of the revolutionary party. About that time Giordani came to New York, and ever since the secret service officials have had him under close surveillance.

It was not long before it was discovered that Giordani had stored in a Brooklyn warehouse sixteen cases, containing 2,000 Remington rifles in fine condition. Close watch was kept on these cases, and on Jan. 4, by Giordani's direction, they were loaded on a truck and hauled to the American-Hamburg steamship pier, whence the steamer Graciosa was to sail on Jan. 8 for Haytien and other West Indian ports. The cases were marked "structural iron," and the fictitious name of G. Meriam & Co. was given as the consignee. Gonaives, Hayti, was given as the destination, but the shipper's name was withheld.

Rifles and Ammunition.

There was subsequently added to the consignment 25 barrels marked "cement." The officials had become convinced that Giordani was engaged in some enterprise, and the steamship company was notified not to receive the cases of "structural iron," the barrels of "cement," and some boxes, and upon learning of this action Giordani had them hauled away to another warehouse. By that time the secret service had secured sufficient evidence to warrant them in opening all the cases, boxes and barrels.

The first contained the 2,000 rifles, the barrels of counterfeit Haytien currency. Giordani's arrest followed, and in his apartment was found a large number of letters from Gen. Firman elsewhere, and other papers and documents of importance. It was discovered that the money was part of that made in 1892 to finance the revolution in that year. It is stated that the plans of the revolutionists were to have the arms, ammunition and money arrive at Gonaives at a certain time, when they were to be taken possession of by a revolutionary force, which was expected to capture the town. The last part of the programme was carried out, but the vigilance of the secret service officers frustrated their plan as to the arrival of the arms and money, and it is believed that their action will result in a speedy collapse of the revolution.

Giordani is said to be a Corsican by birth, and at one time he was consul for Costa Rica at Santo Domingo. His hearing will take place in New York on Jan. 29.

GREAT MISSION CONVENTION

An International Gathering at Pittsburgh to Discuss Evangelization.

Pittsburg, Jan. 23.—Plans have been completed for the first international convention under the direction of the young people's missionary movement of the United States and Canada. The convention will open in the Exposition Music Hall, March 10, and will last three days. It will be one of the largest religious gatherings in the history of the country.

The purpose of the meetings are to bring together the leaders of the home and foreign executive boards of the United States and Canada, for helpful association and conference, to consider the pressing need for an immediate advance movement in the mission fields at home and abroad, to realize the success of the present campaign of missionary education, and the necessity of a more thorough and far-reaching educational movement by the members and church clubs, and the Sunday schools and churches in North America, and to pray and resolve to enter with greater consecration upon the campaign of missionary education among the 17,000,000 young men and women of the United States and Canada.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—H. Gordon Brown, a captain of the Victoria Rifles, shot and killed himself in the military institute this morning. He was well known in military circles, and was confidential clerk for Col. Whitehead. His brother, Fitzjames Brown, is a well-known real estate man. No causes has been assigned for the suicide as yet, but it is stated that Captain Brown had been in poor health for some time. He was 27 years of age.

THE KILLING OF BEAVER.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—A new phase regarding the Quebec game laws arose this morning in Hull in connection with the prosecution of the Revillon. Company, of Montreal, for having four sun beaver skins illegally in its possession. The defense stated it would fight the case on the ground that the Indians from whom the skins were purchased had the right by an old treaty with the Dominion to kill and dispose of beaver, and that therefore the Quebec law was ultra vires as applied to Indians.
