HUNTING GAZELLES FROM AUTOMOBILES

Fast Driving Over Stony Moroccan Desert To Get Within Range.

LONDON, July 30.—The Morocco correspondent of the Times sends a thrilling description of hunting gazelles by automobile.

There are four of us: Hadjo Thami Glawi, the Basha of Marrakesh; Kaid Hamout, of the Atlas; Sellat, Kaid of Rahamma, and your correspondent.

Time to start. There is a car for each of us four sportsmen, and at the invitation of my hosts, I take my seat beside the chauffeur, with two beautifully dressed black slaves in the back seat in attendance. The kaid enters his car, and we start out.

The cultivated lands are quickly left behind, and the great plain of Rahamma lies stretching away before us, with the snow-peaks of the Atlas bounding its southern horizon.

Kaid Ayadi gives the signal, and the four cars spread out—a few hundred yards apart—and proceed at a slower pace, about fifteen miles an hour. The ground is stone-strewn and rough, and careful steering is necessary. There are boulders of every shape and size, loosely strewn over the plain, and the channeled water by water, insignificant enough in themselves, but highly damaging to motor cars if not skilfully manoeuvred. Our chauffeurs, three Frenchmen and an Algerian, are skilful drivers and accustomed to this sort of the "Great Kaid's Game."

Suddenly one of the slaves in my car cries out, and away ahead of me I see a herd of gazelle bounding over the plain. My car is on the extreme left of the line, and our object is to head off the herd from the more stony ground and turn them to the right, where the plain is more level. Edging away slowly, we make a wide curve, and quicken its pace, rolling from side to side and bumping. Seizing every opportunity of a level yard, we speed forward, only to have to slow down again to manipulate some awkward spot. The gazelle are out of range for it is only with a shotgun loaded with solid bullet or buckshot that they can be got. To shoot with a rifle out of a car going at from 40 to 50 miles an hour over rough ground is too much to ask or to expect. There are less stony now, and we are making headway.

The three cars on my right keep a little in the rear, in order to facilitate my turning movement, but they too are making good pace at times, for a few minutes, we are traveling at over forty miles an hour, and once or twice some little watercourse or some extra stony patch gives them their chance, and they increase the distance again. At length our course seems clear, and the car bounds forward. The race is splendid, but rather terrifying. Half standing, half kneeling on the seat, I wait to get my chance of a shot, but suddenly the car swerves in a way that nearly throws me out—and stops. A yard or two ahead is a deep watercourse, a meter wide perhaps, and half a meter deep and full of boulders, an impassable barrier—or rather a barrier the passing of which necessitates a detour for a practical passage, and allows the escape of the gazelle, whose course to follow we are not sure of. A few minutes later we see them appear on the outline of a low hill, bounding the horizon.

It was not long before fresh herds were put up, but always breaking away to the left they succeeded in reaching the low stony slopes that form the northern boundary of the Rahamma plain. At a signal from Kaid Ayadi, we turn southward to seek more advantageous ground, and emerging from the stony area, we can see across the plain at a pace of thirty miles an hour. Gaze, however, is scarcer here—though a goodly number of them are seen, brought down by a charge of buckshot. At length, however, a herd of a dozen gazelle is spied in the open, and at an increased speed the cars rush forward. The speedometer of my car marks forty miles an hour, but we are not gaining on the gazelle, who appear easily to keep their distance of four or five hundred yards ahead of us. At another signal, we increase the pace to fifty miles an hour. The plain is level, but there are stones and little undulations and the exhilaration is intense.

Four Killed, One Taken Alive.
It is wonderful driving on the part of the chauffeurs, and the cars sway from side to side, and rise and fall, like boats on a rough sea. We are closing upon the herd now, and it looks as though it were my car that will be the first to come up with them, but suddenly they break aside to the right, and pass down the line of advancing cars.

The Basha of Marrakesh's like figure is clearly visible as he stands in his swaying car. The gazelle pass him, and with right and left he brings down two beautiful shooting. The kaid Hamout's car is the next, and he too shoots his two gazelle. Once more the herd swerves, and passing between the cars, breaks back to the rear and is allowed to escape without further molestation—only but one, a young doe, who, paralyzed with fear, stands motionless, and is easily caught alive and unhurt, to be carefully conveyed back to Marrakesh to become a pet in the Basha's house.

It may be argued that this class of hunting is not sport, that the gazelle have no chance of escape, but it is not so. The risk is great, an accident may occur at any moment, and the stony ground of the plain gives the gazelle a good chance. Of the many herds we saw the four gazelle shot and the one taken alive were our whole bag, though we covered over one hundred miles of distance on the plain alone, without an attempt on our part to reach Marrakesh. The handling of the cars requires the greatest skill, and the shooting is by no means easy. To hit a running gazelle from a motor car traveling at the rate of fifty miles an hour over rough ground needs no little skill.

DISCLOSURES MAY

top of an uprooted tree had been rolled over the crude grave, totally concealing it.

It is understood here that the search party held a post-mortem on information furnished them by Charles Helmer, a younger brother of accused, who is working on a farm in Elgin County near Sparta, purchased by his mother from the murdered man. This boy is about 16 years of age and is under surveillance by the police, who regard him as a material witness against his brother.

Body Badly Decomposed.
According to the manner in which the aged man met his death is unknown, the authorities here believe it was by choking or assault. No marks of violence can be seen on the decomposed body.

It was impossible to discern the report of the post-mortem will not be made public until the inquest next Friday.

Undoubtedly Helmer made a statement when taken into custody as the crown attorney asked this was a fact tonight replied: "All prisoners make statements. Draw your own conclusions," but refused to discuss this point further. Both accused and Learne have been sent out to work for district farmers, and when the time did not keep an engagement of the district farmers, the inquest was postponed. His diary with no entry after July 11 last found on the farm stretched across the road, and it was viewed near Sparta, and a search party was sent out to find the body. At 5:30 a. m., Thursday, and the police at Simcoe notified.

Learne, who died about 1912, and Lorenzo Helmer, father of the prisoner, died about the same time. His widow and Learne later became acquainted and she purchased the farm near Sparta from him and formed an agreement with him to share the property.

Shelley's name is on the list of the Walsingham Township voters' list, but Learne's is not.

Oldest of Seven.

Accused is the eldest boy of a family of seven, having two sisters. The coroner issued a certificate of burial for the body after the inquest on Thursday, and this will likely be carried out away from the scene of the crime, which it was found, as the dead man had no relatives known in the district.

Learne was well nourished and weighed about 170 pounds, while the youth charged with the murder is of slighter build, clean shaven and weighs about 150 pounds. A date for a preliminary hearing for the latter has not been set, and it is expected that the murder charge he will be tried at Simcoe at the autumn assizes in October.

A Sinister Connection.

A peculiar feature of the case is the fact that the body was found in a one-half mile of the spot where the remains of Christian Schoup were found for the murder of the young woman, who was killed in 1909, when Emerson Shelley was hanged at Simcoe in December, 1915. In fact, the bodies were found in the same place, an advertiser reporter discovered that the Helmer farm was decided to be the same as the farm where the prisoner, in 1901 by Emma J. Shelley, widow, and mother of the condemned murderer, were living.

Believe the age of the miller was robbery. Shelley was charged in 1909 with the murder of Michael Hall, but the town of Simcoe is little concerned over the arrest today, because of the fact that the authorities have kept their action dark. Both Learne and Shelley were hanged here, and great surprise has manifested itself at the accusation preferred against the young Norfolk County farmer.

Crown's Statement.

Regarding the circumstances surrounding the murder, the Crown Attorney, R. R. Slaght, K. C., made the following statement at the inquest at Simcoe last night:

"All crown cases are to a certain extent while investigation is pending, subject to the withholding of certain facts which the crown deems unwise to give out for publication. There is not very much at present with which to enlighten you."

"An old man of about 70 years of age, James A. Learne, widower, who has been a married man for many years, living on a farm in North Walsingham Township, Norfolk County, for some long time, was charged with the murder of a young woman, who lives near Sparta, by which he was to live on the property and yield a share of the produce to Mrs. Helmer, the owner. So far as I know, the old man had no immediate connections in this country."

Worked Farm by Agreement.

"A son of the Helmer, Lorne, a married man and a returned soldier, according to my information, lived on the Helmer farm through some arrangement with Learne. I do not know yet whether any serious disagreement had developed between Learne and the old man or between Mrs. Helmer and Learne, but about the 13th or 14th of July, Lorne Helmer disappeared. It was reported that he had been working out on neighboring farms and had agreed to go to a farmer near his place of residence, but he did not appear, and inquiries were made to ascertain the reason. This farm is fifteen miles from Simcoe."

"Some days after it was brought to my attention that the old man had disappeared from the community, but there were no very grave suspicions of foul play at the time, as it was customary for him to go to other farms for short visits without notice. However, a prominent man in the vicinity, who had been conversing with the old man throughout the community, was thought that he had either been killed or had been taken away with. There was talk of a search for him. I approved, although I had no authority, to indicate that the body was somewhat erratic and eccentric. I thought that he would turn up in a few days, but I encouraged the inquiries."

Suspensions of Murder.

"On Wednesday evening about 11 o'clock information was brought to me which indicated that the old man had been murdered. I instructed my informants, who were police officers, to organize an immediate search with a view, if possible, to recover the body, because whether or not he had been murdered, it was important to find the body as soon as possible. Yesterday morning a search party went out shortly after daybreak. In the meantime, had communicated with the Ontario Department of Police, as my suspicions were thoroughly aroused and the facts were too grave to allow any delay whatever. About 8 in the morning it was reported to me that the body had been discovered in a small woods on lot 19, concession 7, North Walsingham, which adjoins lot 20, where the body had lived. It was found on a lot controlled by the Helmers. I directed Coroner Dr. Fran Medvey of Simcoe to hold an inquest at once, and proceeded with him to the scene, where a jury was empaneled. I also directed that the body had not been fully uncovered in a secluded place near the boundary line of the Helmer property. Although the neighbors were able to recognize it, the body was completely exhumed. This spot was within a mile of the last known murder committed in this county, that of 1915, committed by a young lad named Shelley, who was later hanged. That community has not borne an enviable reputation in the county. I have had a number of

OPPOSITION TO APPLICATION FOR RATE INCREASE

Toronto Trade Board Will Buck Railway's Second Request.

TORONTO, July 30.—In addition to the thirty per cent increase in rates which the Canadian Railway Association has already applied for, and which application will come before the Dominion Railway Board on August 10, a supplementary application is being made which, if sanctioned, would mean an increase of $60,000,000 in the revenue of the railways or a total of $120,000,000 inclusive of the original application, according to one estimate. The Toronto Board of Trade puts the total at $140,000,000.

The new application differs from the first one in that it provides for an increase in baggage charges, sleeping-car rates and in the transportation of milk, besides an increase in passenger rates. It will be opposed on the ground that the railway companies have not furnished schedules of the new rates nor given satisfactory evidence that the increase is necessitated by the award of the United States Railway Board.

KNITTING FACTORY BEGINS OPERATIONS AT DURHAM

Durham Mills, Limited, commenced operations in their local factory this week, the former Lenahan store. They are using only the upper floor at present, and have seventeen operators now busy at machines in the manufacture of boys' overalls. The high school board after some provoking delays and disappointments have at last completed the recruiting staff for the coming term. The staff consists of C. H. Henderson, B. A., Coldwater, principal; Miss J. Weir, B. A., and Mrs. L. Horne, the two latter former teachers; Miss Margaret McDonald, of Almonte, assistant.

Fred Smith, formerly of Durham, but now of Eyebrow, Sask., was married in Winnipeg, on Tuesday, July 27, to Miss Margaret Petty, also of Durham, but who has taught school near Meaford.

MAYFLOWER SAILS AGAIN FROM BRITAIN

Anglo-American Society Renacts Departure of Pilgrims.

Southampton, Eng., July 30.—Scenes attending the departure 300 years ago of that little band of adventurers known to history as the Pilgrim Fathers were reenacted today in a pageant inaugurating a four days' celebration of the tercentenary of the sailing of the Mayflower. The pageant was preceded by a luncheon tendered by the Anglo-American Society, including prominent persons in American and British official circles, and headed by various Anglo-American societies.

Southampton, desirous of reminding the world of her proud claim to fame as the original port of embarkation of the founders of the American commonwealth, is vying with Plymouth in commemorating the event.

By staging today's pageant, which is entitled "The Pilgrim's Choice," the ancient quayside near the west gate, through which the Pilgrims left because no roadway existed, and garb the performers in Puritanical dress, an attempt was made to have the reproduction as faithful as possible to the intervening centuries as a veritable monument to the Pilgrim voyagers.

Outstanding events of American history, including the Boston Tea Party, Lincoln making his famous "Gettysburg" and American intervention in the recent world war, were depicted during Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday's programs of the celebration.
