

UNIONIST CHOSEN FOR EAST ALGOMA

Geo. B. Nicholson Unanimous Candidate of Conservatives and Liberals.

Special to The Toronto World.
Sudbury, Oct. 25.—The union convention at Massey this afternoon, attended by 150 Conservatives and Liberals from every section of the riding, George B. Nicholson, of Chateaufort, was unanimously chosen as the unionist candidate for East Algoma. No other name was submitted to the convention. His nomination was moved by D. O. Payette, of Chateaufort, a life-long French-Canadian Liberal, seconded by Dr. Brown, of Blind River, and also J. D. McAdam, of Chateaufort, representing organized labor. A delegation of five women from Blind River, who, among them, have men on the Canadian lines, occupied seats on the platform, and one of their number, Mrs. Brooks, of Blind River, was elected vice-president of the union organization.

The meeting was very enthusiastic throughout, the only untoward incident being caused by Sam Marks, a former paid organizer in the district, who admitted he had been absent from the constituency for the past 18 months, and had only returned in the past two days. His complaint was that the meeting had not been sufficiently advertised, and proposed a two weeks' holiday. Speakers from every section of the riding took issue with Mr. Marks, the most outspoken being those who until the present had been in the hands of the unionist. The meeting closed candidly and unreservedly that the best of luck attend the unionist candidate in the riding again. Major Smyth is slated for the senate.

It was stated on authority by speakers at the meeting that W. H. Hara, of Sorey, who has had the Liberal nomination for two years, had quit the contest. Mr. Hara had been invited to the convention, but did not accept. No official announcement of his retirement has been made. He has been campaigning for the riding for the past two months. East Algoma is now actively engaged in the campaign for the riding. The riding is now in the hands of the unionist. The riding is now in the hands of the unionist. The riding is now in the hands of the unionist.

TWO CANADIANS WIN MUCH-SOUGHT MEDALS

Ptes. G. Powley and W. G. Cameron Do Excellent Service.
Canadian Associated Press Cable.
London, Oct. 25.—Canadian Private G. Powley has received the Military Medal. He and his brother were working a machine gun. His brother was killed, but he tenaciously continued working the gun.

Private W. G. Cameron of the Canadians has also received a Military Medal. During a bombing flight, with two others he cleared 75 yards of trench and five ditches. This raid was in retaliation for a German raid the night previous. Cameron also carried a wounded comrade to safety.

WAR SUMMARY

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

THE French, continuing their action against the bend of the German line, northeast of Soissons, where it swings from west to due north, made an advance yesterday to the Aisne-Oise Canal. They reached a point eight miles distant from Laon. Their offensive has already created considerable confusion in the minds of the German leaders, as discovered from the contradictory orders issued to German soldiers. Two thousand more prisoners and about a score of cannon fell into French hands. These additional captures bring the French total to more than 12,000 prisoners and 120 guns, with several hundred trench-mortars and machine guns. The French in this latest assault captured the village and forest of Pinon, the village of Pargy-Pilain, and the farms of St. Martin and Lachapelle St. Borne.

This new action shows that the allies have acquired the power of rapidly organizing attacks and of rapidly prosecuting an advantage. Usually the British fight a single action for the possession of some ridge or hill and then, after the usual enemy reaction, they pause a few days to prepare for another. The French, on the contrary, have made three advances in succession on the same front in three days. The fact that they have done this so successfully without enemy counter-attacks disclosing their intention of fighting more aggressively than usual. From various quarters hints have come of preparations for a German retreat from the region under assault. By thus getting in motion, the French bid fair to make any German retreat an extremely perilous operation. The enemy, it appears, from news sent out from Copenhagen, has begun preparation of the German public mind for a new retrograde. This education began after the initial French success.

The British opened their campaign of aerial reprisals against Germany by two long distance raids in the coal-mining region of the River Saar, northeast of Luxembourg, yesterday. At least two squadrons flew over Saarbrücken and its neighborhood and bombarded the German factories, railway stations and junctions. Their flying-machines, including some naval aircraft, made many direct hits, causing many explosions. The Burbach Works, a steel plant, formed the target for one squadron. The German anti-aircraft defences were strong and the machines encountered a strong head wind with rain on their way back. Consequently, it may be inferred, some are missing. On the battlefield in Belgium, the cannonading was the principal proceeding. The British carried out some trench raids between Reux and Gavrelle, south of the Scarpe, and the Germans attempted raids east of Leos, and along the La Bassee Canal.

Excepting in the region of Tolme, where the Germans have made use of two bridgeheads to throw across the upper Isonzo, the Italians conceded the enemy no gains whatsoever in his offensive. Where the Germans, in a fog, did advance was not where the Italians had made their previous big gains, but rather some distance to the north. They have probably provided a strong line of defence in the rear for any such interruption. Rome reports that Cadorna's soldiers repulsed strong enemy attacks from Monte Rombo to the Bainsizza Plateau and also on the old Carso line. The Germans make assertions of large gains against these positions, together with 10,000 prisoners. The enemy is vague in his details. For example, he claims the making of big progress, but unlike the French, British, or Italians, he does not tell what he captured, or the depth and breadth of his penetration.

The German higher command has apparently abandoned the notion of invading Russia, at least for the present, as seen from the German retreat west of Riga. It is quite probable, however, that the Russians have forced this retirement on the enemy by mustering a superior army on the field. The reported coming of Japanese troops may have materialized, the enemy, it seems, is also on the lookout for an allied naval demonstration in the Baltic Sea. This accounts for his lack of initiative with his fleet after the first success against the Russian islands.
