PADDLING UP
BAY OF FUNDY

New Yorker and His Wife on a Long Canoeing Trip.

A Portland, Me., despatch to the Boston Journal of yesterday is as follows:—Early this morning Henry Wace Wood of the New York Yacht Club, and the wife, paddled away from here, where they have been since last Friday night, in the sixteen-foot canoe, in which they are making a cruise from Gloucester, Mass., to the Bay of Fundy.

"They were sent off with a one-gun salute, fired by Junior Brown of the Portland Yacht Club. But that is nothing to the salutes that they have received all along the coast. Old sea captains have been amazed at the spectacle of the little canoe dancing over the waves in gales that sent even fishing schooners to cover, while the summer colonies have lionized them throughout the trip. The New Yorkers expect to make Boothbay Bay tonight, and from there they will proceed by easy stages to their destination.

"Their canoe is painted a bright green, and is appropriately called the Patsy Green. It weighs but ninety pounds, and carries 175 pounds of baggage.
