MORE OR LESS SAD

A pathetic feature of the by-election campaign that will survive the tumult and the shouting is the sore grief of the Globe over the course pursued by Hon. C. W. Robinson and the Telegraph. The ex-premier and the morning journal have given the Globe much pain. They spoke very plainly about some things. The Globe chided them. The Globe was very near to tears over the woes of certain persons named by them. It was so unkind to name persons and say things about them. Good Mr. Hazen,— good Mr. Powell, sweet-souled Mr. McLeod, gentle Mr. Morrissy, or the Globe's loved and loving friend Mr. Maxwell would never dream of saying things about people — even about Dr. Pugsley. If they did, the Globe would, in the interests of the higher ethics rush to the defence of Dr Pugsley.

Of course it would.

THE FRENCH SYNDICATE

The treaty between Canada and France, which the Canadian parliament approved last year, was somewhat amended by the French chambers and must come again before the Canadian parliament at its next session. As amended, it was adopted by an almost unanimous vote in the French chambers. Discussing this treaty and the possible effect upon our trade with the United States the Shareholder says:—

"In the discussion in the French Chambers the minister of commerce pointed out that French commerce with Canada had risen from just over $2,500,000 in 1897 to more than $10,000,000 in 1909, thus showing that Canada's market was of great importance to France. Under the terms of the new treaty Canada will receive all the minimum rates of the French tariff, with the exception of the rate on cattle fattened for slaughter which will pay the general tariff. The provisions of the new treaty are more far reaching and beneficial than those of the agreement of 1893, and will, doubtless, result in a large increase in the trade between the two countries, as France wants much that we produce, and Canada wants much that France produces. At the same time, attention must be paid to the fact that the new United States tariff proposes to adopt a maximum and a minimum tariff similar to that in force in this country. This intention was unknown to the British and French plenipotentaries who framed the new treaty and it was unanticipated by the Canadian parliament, when the first draft of that treaty was adopted by it. In the consideration of the treaty as adopted by the French chambers the Canadian parliament will have to take into consideration the fact that its coming into force will place exports from Canada to the United States under the provisions of the maximum tariff, thus virtually excluding Canadian manufacturers and produce from that country. In that case imports into Canada from the United States will also come under our maximum tariff. As the imports from the United States into Canada largely exceed our exports to them our neighbors will find that they will lose more than they will gain. The French treaty should, and, we doubt not, will receive a fair trial both in Canada and France."

The city of St. Paul, Minn., set an example that might well be followed by other cities. It has a Consolidated Publicity Bureau, with offices of its own and a manager in charge, who sees to it that the world knows what is doing in St. Paul. For example, if any great convention is held in St. Paul, the Bureau sends news letters to the press of other cities, telling all about the arrangements for the meetings, the comfort of visitors, and giving all information likely to be of value or to attract attention. The Bureau also keeps the world informed concerning all matters that relate to St. Paul's progress and advantages, and it is done in a manner that appeals to the newspaper man who receives the copy and the reader who finds it in print. St. Paul believes in advertising itself, and therein it believes aright.

◈ ◈ ◈ ◈

It is very gratifying to learn that the export and import trade of Canada is almost up to the high water mark of 1907. The period of depression is passing away. The trade of the country for June was $9,500,000 greater than that for June of last year. The growth in exports has not been as large as could be wished, but we are approaching a season of bountiful harvest, and the conditions will steadily improve. Canada is prosperous, and the outlook most encouraging. The maritime provinces, with good crops, will share in this prosperity. At the present time the usual midsummer quietude prevails, but the indications are that business will be brisk in the autumn.

◈ ◈ ◈ ◈

The citizens of St. John will have an opportunity tomorrow evening to hear one of the most brilliant speakers of his time, discussing a subject of great importance to all the people of Canada. The reference is to Dr. Samson, who will speak in the new Y. M. C. A. hall on the Cartwright annuities plan. In another part of this paper will be found the comment of the Hamilton Spectator, a Conservative journal, on the Cartwright measure and Dr. Samson's address in that city.

◈ ◈ ◈ ◈

The military officers in St. John could do a good thing for the boys and for the militia of the future, if they would take note of possibilities presented on the Every Day Club playgrounds. No finer parade ground could be desired, and a drill sergeant who thought it worth while could probably get hundreds of boys to form up and learn marching movements and the simpler forms of militia drill. Why should not a cadet company or a cadet battalion be organised, to drill in the evenings on these playgrounds? The military officers of the city should interest themselves in this promising field for work among the boys.

◈ ◈ ◈ ◈

The movement to educate the people how best to cope with tuberculosis, and to establish a provincial sanitarium for patients is progressing fairly well, and gives promise of good results. Public interest needs to be aroused to the importance of this work, which is now engaging world-wide attention.

◈ ◈ ◈ ◈

Tourists who come from the United States find appetite and health returning when they breathe the delicious coolness of the St. John atmosphere in these July days.

THEY ARE IN VICTORIA

Delegates to International Council of Women are Now on the Pacific Coast

Eighty-five delegates to the International Council of Women, which recently concluded its sessions at Toronto, arrived in Victoria, B. C., July 12, and received a royal welcome. The visitors were conveyed in automobiles and buckboards around the city and shown the sights, and in the evening were the guests of Lieuteant Governor and Mrs. Dunsmuir at Government House, where addresses of welcome were delivered by Mayor Hall and Hon. F. J. Fulton, M.P.P., of British Columbia.

Before going to Victoria the delegates were the guests at Vancouver of the women's council of that city and were hospitably entertained by that body. Many of the ladies delivered interesting speeches in each city, which were listened to with careful attention by all who heard them.

Miss Mabel Peters, of this city, is one of the delegates from Canada.

HANGED FOR MURDER OF HIS SWEETHEART

Bodmin, Eng., July 20—Wm. Hampton, formerly of Ishpeming, Mich., was hanged at the Bodmin jail this morning for the murder of his sweetheart, Emily Tredres, at St. Erth on May 2 last. Miss Tredres had refused to have any more to do with Hampton, whereupon he caught the girl around the neck and suffocated her.

Hampton submitted quietly to being bound and walked firmly to the scaffold. He did not utter a word after leaving his cell. Death was instantaneous.

WRIGHTS THINK THEY CAN CROSS CHANNEL

Washington, D. C., July 20—The failure of Herbert Latham to cross the English Channel brought forth expressions of confidence from the Wright brothers that their machine can make a successful flight across that body of water.

Mr. Wright said the motor of Latham's aeroplane had rarely been known to run satisfactorily for more than five minutes at a time.

The cause of Latham's failure—the stopping of the motor while in mid-air, bears out the contention of the Wrights that the future aeroplane must depend upon the development of a motor.

Grant-Carvell

The rectory, Oak Bay, was the scene of a very pretty wedding at noon on Wednesday July 7th, when Murchie Grant of Canterbury was united in marriage to Miss Bessie Carvell of St. George. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. W. Blackall, rector of St. David. The bride looked very pretty in white silk and carried a bouquet of white carnations. "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden," was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Blackall. After a delightful dinner the bridal party left amid showers of rice and good wishes for St. George. On Thursday evening a reception was held at the home of the bride.

The presents were numerous and beautiful. Mr. and Mrs. Grant will be at home to their friends until the first of August, after which they will return to their home in Canterbury.

SHE CAME AND WENT

As a twig trembles, which a bird
Lights on to sing, then leaves unbent,
So is my memory thrilled and stirred—
I only know she came and went.

As clasps some lake, by gusts unriven,
The blue dome's measureless content,
So my soul held that a moment's heaven—
I only know she came and went.

An angel stood and met my gaze.
Through the low doorway of my tent;
The tent is struck the vision stays—
I only know she came and went.

Oh, when the room grows slowly dim
And life's last oil is nearly spent,
One gush of light these eyes will brim,
Only to think she came and went.

James Russell Lowell

A DAINTY THING.

(Toronto Telegram.)

Night, pitch your tent,
The Twelfth has went.

—From "Farewell to the Twelfth," a poem by E. P. Roden.

EVERYBODY HAPPY.

(Cleveland Leader.)

Mamma—Have you been taking your cough medicine, like a good boy?

Tommy—No, ma'am, I let Polly taste it, an' she liked it, so I traded to her for a orange.

IT DIDN'T PAY.

(Cleveland Leader.)

"If you" assume a more genial manner, you'd get along better in business."

"Rot! I tried it once, and everybody I met wanted to borrow money."

FRACTIONAL POSSIBILITIES.

(Washington Star.)

"Boys will be boys," said the patient citizen.

"I hope so," answered the practical man. "But unless the country insists on a safe and sane Fourth of July they are liable to be only portions of boys."

HEARD ON THE DOCKS.

(Chicago News.)

Stranger—What are you doing standing here on this lonely dock, little man?

Boy—Waiting fer de tide t' come in.

Stranger—The Tide?

Boy—No, de tied. Me sister an' her fellow went over to St. Joe to get married dis morning.

TIME SAVING.

(Washington Star.)

"So you think that pictures serve a more important purpose than literature?"

"Yes. Nearly everybody would rather send a post card than write a letter."

HIS NERVE.

(Chicago News.)

"Heard there was a rainmaker in these parts last week," remarked the lightning rod agent. "How did he make out?"

"H'm!" growled the farmer. "Instead of bringing rain he brought a hailstorm."

"Gracious! I guess the whole country was sore?"

"Well, we might have excused him, stranger, if he hadn't tried to spring such a pun on us."

"Pun!"

"Yes, when he saw the hailstones coming down he laughed and said that showed he was a 'hail fellow well met,' and then we ran him out of the community, be jinks!"

JOLLYING THE PARENTS.

(Buffalo News.)

"Why did you chuck that baby under the chin?" asked a man of his wife. "He is such an ugly little sinner."

"That is why I chucked him," said the woman. "I wanted to make his parents feel happy. I always pet the ugly babies. Pretty babies get so much coddling from strangers that their parents take it as a matter of course. It is the fathers and mothers of homely babies who appreciate attention. Didn't you notice how pleasant that couple looked? I don't suppose anybody ever petted their baby before except themselves. They'll think a lot more of the youngster after this."

RUSHING THEM OFF.

"What's Zeke Crosaby doing rushing down to the barn in such an excited state for?" drawled Hiram Hardapple.

"Why, Zeke heard that one of his seven daughters is going to elope tonight with a summer boarder in Zeke's auto," whispered the hired man.

"Do tell! And I suppose Zeke is running down to lock the machine up so they can't get it?"

"Oh, no! Zeke's running down to grease it up and put the motors in order so it won't break down and break up the elopement."

WHEN ITS DIFFERENT.

A pile of dishes
In the sink;
The carpets all
Upon the blink;
A pile of dirt
Behind the door;
Hat, coat and shoes
Upon the floor;
Newspapers scattered
'Round about;
The front lawn going
Up the spout;
It's not like this
Here every day—
Just now, you see,
My wife's away!

Advice for the Stay-at-Homes

Many families will not be able to take their usual summer trip this year, perhaps, owing to some extra expenditure during the winter for sickness. Whatever the reason may be, they are not looking forward to this enforced "stay-at-home" with pleasure. They seem to think that the only way to enjoy the hot summer months is in some six by nine room of a seaside or mountain resort, living in one's trunk, and having to be on dress parade three times a day, no matter whether the sun shines in the neighborhood of 100 degrees in the shade or not.

If these same people would spend as much time planning their stay-at-home period as they do in bemoaning the fact that they must stay at home, a great many of the discomforts could be avoided.

In the first place arrange your house or apartment so that it looks cool. Take up your carpets or rugs, and put away all hangings, and anything in the way of tablecovers or cushions of a woolen nature. A few linen covers over your furniture makes a room look several degrees cooler than it really is. If you have outside or inside shutters, keep them closed on the sunny side of the house during the day and open after sundown. If you have a vine-covered porch, live on it and by all means do your sewing there.

One of the most important things is to screen your house. This is not only necessary to your personal comfort, but as a matter of health. The most daintily served meal will be ruined by the presence of flies in your dining-room. Again, it is an established fact that flies carry diseases.

In order to keep your bare floors free from dust, make three or four bags of cotton flannel to put over your broom. Take your pattern from the straw part of the broom and cut out the bag accordingly, stitching up the sides. Have two drawstrings, one at the top and the other at the bottom. Slip this bag over your broom, draw the strings tight, and tie. Use these bagged brooms over your floor every few days. As soon as one becomes soiled have it laundried. By keeping several on hand, you can always have a clean one.

Keep some boxes of chloride of lime, or other disinfectant in your kitchen and bathroom and use very often. This will prevent any odors, and also the accumulation of grease in your kitchen sink.

A good deal of unnecessary labor on the part of a housekeeper can be saved by inserting an old broom handle or stick of a similar nature into the handle of your dust pan. This will obviate the extra exertion of stooping.

In preparing your closet for storing preserves, jellies, etc., this summer, first select a closet that is both dark and cool. If there are cracks in the door, and your closet is in the cellar, paste papers over the cracks in order that all light is excluded. If the closet chosen is in the bedroom or dining-room, tack a curtain of black cambric along the top shelf allowing it to hang down as far as the shelves extend. Melted parafine is an excellent air-tight cover for your preserves and jellies. When ready for use, this parafine can be easily broken and lifted out, and there will be no trace of mould underneath.

A little lemon juice squeezed into the drinking water will often quench the thirst in summer when water will not. Lemonade is also healthy and refreshing; and in order to prevent the lemons from becoming dry and hard place them in a jar or other vessel filled with water. Change the water on them every few days and the last lemons taken from the jar will be as soft and juicy as the first.

If you have a vine-covered porch do your sewing there.
