

ES
DORROW

Imperial Or-Final In-
ted.

Daily.)
list of May,
be control-
ment. Ac-
nouncement,
l authorities
the transfer
the forces
at that out-
the British red, possibly,
uses of main-
taken by the mentioned.

ceremony in action. In all carried out
was adopt-
change was being taken sible with the agency of the Victoria
that the new marked by the ing of the Can-
No. Nothing of fact most of
ed to in Ot-
rich necessa-
tion on the here. The
be that inaug-
and citi-
singing con-
tively, shortly
the Imperial
y.

The Imperial
anda, is in the week for
the transfer
perial ordn-
only that off-
fax. He came
is under-
tions received
ment.
reporter com-
the officers at formed that
at has already received from English, R. E., awaiting final
word
ought that he
of Connaught
activities had
it wouldn't be
action
is under-
d the transfer
y speedily as
ness.
reporter com-
the officers at
formed that
at has already received from English, R. E., awaiting final
word
ought that he
of Connaught
activities had
it wouldn't be
action
is under-
d the transfer
y speedily as
ness.

ated, howe
as will not
the 13th of May,
militia and an appropriate ased upon this
s, however,
adian regulars
y come be-
not improba-
depart before
for that event,
ty of there
of the commit-
entertainment
are in readiness
gements at a ney may fit in
the soldiery,
y mentioned in thirty and forty oned at Work er intention to service. In all have been ac-
sworn in at
y. Among the ish has decided
the Canadians,
however, now
no instructions
in at that re-
.

H. Barker, R.
of the work of
and Topaz, two ago in Vic-
government for bmarine mines
ng at Turpel's
with all other
n with the de-
ill be taken over
seems to have their service in
at the cables,
removed from nalt harbor.

Y ILL.
ed With Paraly-
.
G. Brough, gen-
nion Bank at
usly ill at Dursquare. He ago with a para-
side complete
not spoken for
at faint hopes
at is very poorly

needs
FOR
TO R MILLING
NY
St., Victoria.

THE FOG ALARM
ON TRIAL

ERECTING ENGINEER
NOW IN VICTORIA

Will Be Installed Within Two Months—Egg Island Gets Electric Light.

(From Friday's Daily.)
John Montgomery, erecting engineer of fog alarms for the Dominion, is in the city on official business. The Federal government is determining the adequate facilities for providing in foggy weather shall be provided for this coast, and has at present under consideration a series of ten fog alarms at different points, one of which has been erected, and the erection of two more is the object of Mr. Montgomery's present visit. He will first inspect that already installed on Leonard Island, at the entrance of Chequoctong Sound, and afterwards the erection of two more at Egg and Trial Islands.

The Leonard Island alarm, which is scheduled for five second blasts, with twenty-five second intervals, has proved of great assistance to navigation, but some minor troubles have arisen which it is Mr. Montgomery's intention to have removed. He will leave on the Queen City about May 15, returning about a fortnight later. Immediately upon his reaching Victoria he will proceed on D. G. S. Quadra to Egg Island, an important station in Queen Charlotte Sound, and the point of junction of the outer and inner routes to the northern coast, and Alaska. The alarm at this point will be of the most modern construction, a gasoline engine furnishing the motive power. It has been decided that this will sound a blast for seven seconds each minute. A unique feature of this alarm will be the installation of an electric plant, run by the same engine as the alarm, which will be used to illuminate the various rooms on the lighthouse. The light, which is a revolving one of six large lamps, will continue to burn coal oil.

The most important news to Victoria, however, is the fact that not only the light at Trial Island will be erected, but the fog alarm will be in working order by July 1st at the latest. The machinery for the latter has been delivered, and will be delivered here not later than the beginning of June. Several radical departures have been made in the construction of the machinery, and all useless parts eliminated. It is the most up-to-date pattern, and represents the fruits of all previous experience in this line. The actual signal to be delivered at Trial Island has not yet been decided upon. Mr. Montgomery will continue his tour of inspection immediately on his return from Egg Island completing same by the date mentioned.

Although after work at Trial Island is finished Mr. Montgomery will return for Halifax, there to install an alarm there he will return in the fall when further work of this character will be done on this coast. Details of this work are not yet decided upon, and cannot be until the next session of the 1906-07 have passed the Dominion parliament.

JOURNALISTS TO TOUR WEST.
Another Excursion Is Being Arranged
By Secretary of Immigration Association.

Theodore M. Knappen, secretary of the Western Canadian Immigration Association, with headquarters in Minneapolis, arrived in town yesterday in order to make preliminary arrangements for the holding of an excursion into Western Canada of prominent United States journalists," says Friday's Montreal Herald.

FISH RIVER CAMP.
Lively Times in Copper-Gold Camp
Tributary to Revelstoke-Lumbering Active.

Among the visitors at present in the city is E. J. Carter, proprietor of the Campalls hotel, at the end of the north-east arm of Arrow lake, and the gateway to the Fish River mining camp. He reports both mining and lumbering in that section particularly active. Since the purchase by the Bowman Lumber Company of the mills at Comaplix and Revelstoke from Senator Bostock and associates, the production has rapidly increased. At Comaplix the old mill has been torn down and another with a capacity of 150,000 feet erected. This has caused quite a boom in the town, and many residences have recently been erected.

At Goldfields and Camborne the mines are in active operation. The Eva, Oyster-Criterion and Silver Dollar have each a large force of men at work, while the Goldfield mines will soon be in operation after repairs necessary through the recent fire. Many prospectors are in the district and several properties in the eastern portion are being given preliminary development. The outlook for this year is the brightest in the history of the camp, and it is expected that the output from the three stamp mills will be largely in excess of that of 1905.

BATHING RESORTS
FOR THE SUMMER
PROPOSAL MADE BY PROMINENT CITIZEN
Salt Water Baths Near C. P. R. Hotel
Suggested—Fine Beach at Tramway Company's Park.

As briefly mentioned in another column the question of summer bathing resorts was discussed at a meeting of the civic committee meeting of the Victoria Development and Tourist Association Thursday. The chairman, Dr. Carter, rather interesting suggestion during the debate, upon which no action was taken, but which may, if it should be considered practical, be taken up seriously in the future. It is proposed that salt water baths be established upon the city's portion of the reclaimed James Bay flats at the rear of the new C. P. R. hotel.

The proposition can be made effective if the problem that presents itself for solution. Dr. Carter thinks that the water could be obtained from the open sea by placing a windmill somewhere on Dallas road. By this means he contends the water could be pumped to a reservoir placed at a spot of considerable altitude, near Beacon hill, which might be connected with the baths by a system of pipes. This would be a most desirable arrangement, thus permitting its renewal continuously. His idea is to drain the water after use into the harbor.

It was this proposal that induced the committee to instruct Secretary Cuthbert to communicate with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy in order to ascertain whether the C. P. R. intended constructing any baths in connection with the new hotel. If his reply is in the negative, it is just possible that Dr. Carter's proposition will receive further consideration. Everyone present, it should be stated, did not favor the project. Some thought it was impracticable, and others expressed the opinion that it was upon too elaborate a scale, and would involve too great an expenditure. It might, however, lead to other simpler suggestions, having the same object in view.

For the forthcoming summer the Gorge, without a doubt, will be the centre of attraction for all those fond of bathing. For some weeks the tramway company have been engaged in fitting up their park at that resort. As is generally known, it has a frontage on the water for some distance. Last year it was unpleasant to sit in swimming because of the muddy bottom. But the conditions will be different this year. A splendid sand beach is being constructed by the use of scow loads of gravel and sand excavated from the neighborhood of Fraserford beach. The undertaking is now well on towards completion, and the beach should be ready for use in a fortnight's time at the outside.

THE BEAUTIFYING OF VICTORIA CITY
BEFORE MEMBERS OF
THE CIVIC COMMITTEE

Of Local Tourist and Development Association—Many Matters Will Be Investigated.

An enthusiastic meeting of the civic committee of the Victoria Development & Tourist Association was held at the rooms, Fort street, Thursday, when a number of matters of importance were discussed. The improvement of the numerous beautiful scenic drives in the vicinity of Victoria, the boulevarding of the principal thoroughfares, the placing of seats for the convenience of visitors upon the grounds surrounding the parliament buildings, and numerous other questions of interest were debated. Dr. Carter, the chairman, presided, and there was a large attendance.

After the opening of the proceedings the chairman made a number of suggestions which were followed by numerous others from members. With respect to the improvement of the leading drives it was agreed that it was a necessary work, and should be undertaken with the least possible delay in order that they would be in first-class condition during the summer months. A committee of six was appointed to make investigations. Members of the Automobile Club will be asked to assist in this as they would be among those to derive the most benefit from the campaign it is proposed to inaugurate. In fact it is understood that they will be invited to take the committee to those sections which in their estimation most require repairing.

There was a long discussion on boulevarding. It was decided that the most satisfactory method to be provided for this growing cause and no more fitting occasion could present itself of permanently memorializing the grand work Dr. Robson has rendered to his city as the pioneer missionary to British Columbia, and also to the religious life of this province at large.

The meeting was a very representative gathering of the members and laymen of the Victoria Methodist church. The meeting was called to order by Rev. R. Newton Powell, Mrs. Malkin, in the kindest way welcomed those present, and most heartily commending the practical thought and care of the meeting. J. D. Mathers was appointed chairman, and Rev. R. Newton Powell, secretary. Prospective plans were laid before the meeting, and the proposed scheme outlined by the secretary.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted. Moved by W. Shannon, second by T. Cunningham: "That the meeting be called to order by Rev. R. Newton Powell, Mrs. Malkin, in the kindest way welcomed those present, and most heartily commending the practical thought and care of the meeting. J. D. Mathers was appointed chairman, and Rev. R. Newton Powell, secretary. Prospective plans were laid before the meeting, and the proposed scheme outlined by the secretary.

Additional Information to That Given in Yesterday's Times.
(From Friday's Gazette.)
This week's Provincial Gazette in addition to the notices mentioned yesterday notes the following appointments: John Donald Chalmers, of Stony Creek, Cariboo district, and Andrew John Colquhoun, of Shoal Bay, Comox district, M. E., to be justices of the peace in and for the province of British Columbia. McCullen, of Fernie, to be government agent and collector of revenue tax in and for the Fernie electoral district, from the 1st of May, 1906.

A J. C. Shaw, M. A.; David Wilson, B. A.; to be examiners to act with the superintendent of education at the examination of public school teachers for 1906.

A MEMORIAL CHURCH
TO REV. DR. ROBSON

A proposal has been made to erect a Methodist church at Epworth, B. C., in recognition of the valuable services which Dr. Robson has rendered to the province in his work as British Columbia, The Vancouver News-Advertiser referring to the proposal says: "A meeting to further a scheme that will prove of the greatest possible interest to the Methodist church throughout this province was held at the home of Mrs. Malkin, 1272 Barclay street, on Tuesday. The business for which the meeting was called was to consider the matter of erecting a 'Robson Memorial church' at Epworth, B. C. The suggestion arises out of the fact that this is Dr. E. Robson's jubilee year of ministerial life. At this point on the outskirts of the city was one of the last pieces of missionary work of the doctor inaugurated.

"It is a matter of necessity that church accommodation should be provided for this growing cause and no more fitting occasion could present itself of permanently memorializing the grand work Dr. Robson has rendered to his city as the pioneer missionary to British Columbia, and also to the religious life of this province at large.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted. Moved by W. Shannon, second by T. Cunningham: "That the meeting be called to order by Rev. R. Newton Powell, Mrs. Malkin, in the kindest way welcomed those present, and most heartily commending the practical thought and care of the meeting. J. D. Mathers was appointed chairman, and Rev. R. Newton Powell, secretary. Prospective plans were laid before the meeting, and the proposed scheme outlined by the secretary.

LUMBER AND STONE
FOR SAN FRANCISCO
Local Mill Will Sell Large Amount of Material—Building Stone Available.

The earthquake at San Francisco and consequent destruction of property will mean the expenditure of an enormous amount in the purchase of lumber, bricks and stone for rebuilding the city. But while the needs for brick can be met locally the stricken city will have to look to outside points for lumber and stone. A large part of this will come from British Columbia, particularly the latter.

Lumber has already been negotiated for in the vicinity of Victoria. It is stated, on the most reliable authority, that all the available stock of the Victoria Lumber & Manufacturing Company, at Chemainus, will be shipped at the earliest possible moment to the Golden Gate. Other Victoria mills will probably be approached on the same question, but it is doubtful if any orders can be met as they are all working to their full capacity.

THE BEACON ROCK
AT LAST ARRIVES

THE BELATED VESSEL
REACHED PORT TO-DAY

Ship Was Almost Eleven Months Coming From Liverpool—Damaged Off the Horn.
(From Friday's Daily.)
With supplies which should have reached Victoria some time previous to Christmas, the ship Beacon Rock, Capt. Wilson, arrived in the Royal Roads this morning, after a voyage lasting almost eleven months. The trip of the Beacon Rock is a remarkable one. With cargo consigned to Victoria, Vancouver, Seattle and Tacoma, the ship set sail from Liverpool on the 31st of May last. She reached a point in the Pacific 75 west, when a terrible gale overtook her, and for forty days the ship battled against the worst weather. The high winds were piercingly cold. Ice formed on the rigging until the vessel resembled some craft that came by way of the Arctic. Most of men were frost bitten, and two from their experience in this manner suffered a great deal. When the ship put back to Port Stanley in the Falkland Islands they had to be placed under a doctor's care and be treated for some time.

The Beacon Rock went through a trying ordeal. Her forecastle was stove in; her masts and stanchions were broken; her tressel trees of the lower masts carried away; sails were blown to ribbons, and other damage was sustained involving more details than Capt. Wilson cared or had time to mention when seen by a Times representative this afternoon.

CIVIL SITTING.
List of Cases to Come Up For Trial Next Week.
At the sitting of the Supreme court, which opens on Tuesday, it is expected that Mr. Justice Duff will preside. It is for the hearing of civil causes, and the following list of cases is set down for trial: Richards v. Williams—W. J. Taylor, K. C., for plaintiff; J. P. Wall, for the defendant.

ODDFELLOWS CELEBRATE.
Members of Order Spend Enjoyable Time at Their Hall Last Evening.
The eighty-seventh anniversary of the introduction of Oddfellowship on the continent of America was celebrated Thursday by members of the order and their friends at the hall, Douglas street. Bro. W. H. Cullen, D. G. M., occupied the chair, and in his opening address referred to the growth of the order during the history of it on this continent. He also pointed out the advantages to be derived from Oddfellowship.

THE DEWEY ENTERS CANAL.
Port Said, Egypt, April 27.—The United States dry dock Dewey, on her way to the Philippines in tow, entered the Suez canal to-day.

IMPORTANT DEAL.
C. P. R. Reported to Have Purchased Land on Esquimalt Harbor.

(From Friday's Daily.)
For some time there has been a report in circulation that the C. P. R. Company was seeking property on the Esquimalt harbor. The purposes for which the land was required has been reported to be for coal bunkers and a terminal pier. It has been found very difficult to get any confirmation of this or to find out the land which was involved in the deal.

YOUTH IS TREATED
LIKE MALEFACTOR
ENGLISHMAN SHOWN
EXTREME SEVERITY
Herbert McCall Has Harsh Experience
at the Hands of the United States Immigration Officials.

Herbert McCall, a young Englishman of 25, with a record of eight years' faithful service with the London Gas Company, was taken into custody by three months ago determined to seek his fortune in America. A friend had preceded him, and found employment with the Pacific Coast Milk Company, at Kent, Wash. This friend wrote McCall at the prairie capital saying: "If you come here I believe I can get you a job," and this phrase was the head and front of the offense with which McCall has been convicted, that "trying to meet a technical one against the immigration laws of the United States."

MERCHANTS' INDIGNANT
At Action of Provincial Government in Forwarding Relief Appropriation in Cash.
Many Victorian merchants are indignant over the action of the provincial government in forwarding their application for the assistance of residents of San Francisco, rendered destitute as a result of the recent earthquake and fire, to the authorities in California. They contend that the object could just as easily, and perhaps more effectively, be attained by expending the money in supplies in Victoria, Vancouver and at other British Columbia points. Before the steamer Telus left for the south Premier McBride, left for the south Premier McBride, and had time to have given instructions for the purchase of the government's contribution. The goods, business men point out, would have been available at cost prices. It left less of an opportunity to profit that aggravates them, but the fact that the government should have overlooked such a chance to have kept the money within British Columbia and at the same time have extended relief to those in distress that would have been more acceptable than the cash donation.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY.
No Attempt Made to Start Reconstruction Work.
Palo Alto, Cal., April 27.—No attempt is being made to begin the work of repair and reconstruction necessary on the Stanford university buildings torn down by the earthquake.

THE BEATING OF THE HEART ENTAILS THE KNOWN AS ONE HORSE POWER.

FREDERICK WARDE GIVES LECTURE AND DRAMATIC RECITAL

Famous Shakespearean Actor Charms
His Audiences at Both Appearances Friday.

The audience which greeted Frederick Warde in the Victoria theatre on Friday afternoon was not a large one, but lovers of literature were given a veritable treat in the address delivered. For about an hour and a half Mr. Warde discoursed on Shakespeare, on his life and on his art. When he had finished and made his exit the audience reluctantly withdrew. There was not a dull moment in the whole address.

After years of study of the works of William Shakespeare—a study which has fitted him for the pre-eminent position which he occupies as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare illustrating the characteristics of the author's art. These were gems and proved all too few to satisfy the audience as an interpreter of the characters of the great dramatist on the stage—it was to be expected that he would show a ripe judgment relative to the author's writings. But in addition to this Mr. Warde has a charming manner himself on the lecturing stage. He has a happy manner of presenting his ideas in a convincing way and at the same time reminding all mankind that the lecture proper was relieved by short selections from Shakespeare