Willard and

Dempsey At Work

Toledo, June 4.—Jess Willard increased his boxing to four rounds today, knocking out sparring partner, and after the incident attempted to explain to newspaper experts that the victim slipped, striking his head on the floor of the ring.

Walter Monahan, who is in Willard's camp on a thorough from the army, boxed with the champion for the first time in several months, and hit the canvas in a dizzy condition after boxing two minutes. Monahan, although out of condition, set a furious pace for Willard, and Jess out a left jab and missed, following it with a short straight right hand punch to the peak of his chin and Monahan tumbled into a heap.

Jack Hempel, who boxed the first two rounds with Willard; Ray O. Archer, business manager of the champion and others scrambled into the ring, picked Monahan up, balled his head in water and allowed him to take a long rest before going another easy round with the title holder. It was clean knockout despite Willard's explanations.

Willard opened his workout by pulling his weights loose with some powerful tugs, and then boxed four rounds and finished with some shadow boxing and wrestling. He left the canvas enclosed arena with his skin glowing with perspiration.

Admission was charged to watch the champion go through his pace today and a capacity crowd was in attendance.

Jack Dempsey, the challenger, spent another idle day. He came into the city this morning for a run over the hands of an expert, and in the afternoon swam and romped around his camp.

Free Boxing

Competition

West End Improvement League Arranging for Good Programme to Take Place on Queen Square on the Evening of June 18.

The West End Improvement League have decided to hold a free boxing competition on the evening of Wednesday, June 18th, at which the contestants must be amateur.

There will be no admission fee and it is the intention to have the bouts start about seven o'clock. Marquis of Queensbury will govern the bouts which will be open to all bona fide amateurs whether belonging to any club in the city or unattached.

The league has been promised entrance to the city hall for the purpose of the competition and it is expected the Y. M. C. A. will send representatives and others will not doubt take advantage of the chance to show their skill and win a prize. The classes to be contested are: Bantam, feather, light, welter and middle weight. All contestants to be sent in to J. Fred Belyas, West St. John, and the committee in charge of the competition are leaving no stone unturned to give the citizens a good programme of the many art of self defence.

Grand Parade

Won The Derby

World's Greatest Sporting Event at Epsom Downs Yesterday—Betting Was 33 to 1 Against the Winner—13 Horses Started.

London, June 4.—Grand Parade won the Derby at Epsom Downs today. Buchanan was second and Paper Money third. Thirteen horses ran.

The betting was 33 to 1 against Grand Parade; seven to one against Buchanan; seven to one against Paper Money; also six to five on Panther, 100 to 1 against All Alone, 25 to 1 against Tangiers; 40 to 1 against Milton, 100 to 1 against White Heat, 100 to 1 against Sir Douglas, Corianus and Romer Bay, and fifty to one against Naples.

Derby day, the world's greatest popular sporting event, returned after leaving a blank on the British calendar for four years. The people of London, and if they it were, did not read the newspapers, because with the early morning the population began a progress toward Epsom Downs comparable with the migration of the tribes of Israel.

"This isn't a crowd! It is a nation," said a French writer of Derby Day. It today's victory Derby, as it is called, reaches the high water mark, there were two hundred thousand within sight of the race track. The people travelled in trains, busses, horse-drawn, delivery wagons, donkey carts, on horse-back, afoot and as a sign of the new era, by airplane. Aviators looked one hundred passengers for Epsom Downs, although the machines are forbidden to fly within two miles of the course.

"Thousands camped last night near the race course in tents and eaters had stored tons of provisions there, their supplies including more than one hundred thousand bottles of beer."

The spectacle at the race course lacked nothing of the pre-war color today, and had a strong time of khaki. King George, Queen Mary, with the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary drove from the station in handcars. All the familiar figures from the Earl of Lonsdale, the Duke of Beaufort, Lord Curzon, and the Duke of Devonshire, wearing his silk hat, to bookmakers from all parts of the kingdom were present.

INCREASED PRODUCTION WITH

KEENER COMPETITION CURE

FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

Manager of Halifax Shipyard Outlines to Industrial Commission His Views on Remedies for the Unrest Among Laborers—Critiques Municipalities and Governments for Not Legislating in the Working Man's Interest.

Halifax, N. S., June 4.—Increase the production of the necessities of life so competition in marketing will ensue, and with a drop in the prices of commodities, was the cure for the high cost of living outlined to the Industrial Relations Committee at its session here this afternoon by J. E. McClurg, manager of the Halifax Ship Yard.

He said that the government could help by encouraging manufacturers to get production at a minimum rate. He contended that they got more from the workers five years ago than today, while he should give a better day's work for a better day's pay. Mr. McClurg analyzed the labor situation in his own line of business very carefully, explaining what steps his company had taken to meet its needs.

He explained that one of the reasons for unrest in Halifax was the housing situation, which had been reported abnormal by the explosion. He stated that, in order to keep skilled men, the company had contemplated the erection of houses to the value of $500,000. The company had an acre of land. The best prices quoted for improved land within walking distance of its plant was $4,000 an acre, and the street car line, which Mr. McClurg described as "the rottenest in America," $2,500. An attempt to establish the men across the river from Halifax was abandoned because the cost of a special ferry was prohibitive. He said that the Halifax Relief Commission had put up the price of houses by its expensive method of buying material for city trades.

Mr. McClurg said the government should provide the workers with a more rational education. He contended that this argument was because the working man on life, due to a one-sided education through correspondence schools. He knew of a case where a man had become a positive economic fiend, or pervers, by studying too much alone one line.

He was convinced that the cause of unrest from outside was a black sheep and should be wiped out. He then gave a description of a welfare scheme which he hoped to introduce into the company's plant, whereby a council would be formed of the men and officials. Then men would be allowed to ballot for their own representatives to meet and draw up its own constitution. He preferred letting the men do this to handing them a constitution already prepared.

Mr. McClurg, in connection with the question of profits of the men, said that he thought that the higher paid men on his staff were now content to work only five days a week, making in this time enough to keep them for seven.

Commissioner Moore began to examine the witness on his statement that the working man of today did not produce as much as five years ago, but Mr. McClurg didn't want to be quizzed. Mr. Moore asked if the witness had any direct evidence that the men today produced less or the fishermen caught less fish. Mr. McClurg said he was speaking of his own business, and the commissioner accepted the modification.

F. B. Bligh, ex-Mayor of Halifax, said the government must get out of the building of an export trade. It should first see that its household was fed. He issued a warning that if labor unions, instead of taking care of their slogan "increased wages," took "the reduction in the cost of living" it would secure the support of a large body of middle class people. He was convinced that the cost of a pound was enough for bread, and the government could set it at that. If a baker contended he could not make a profit at that figure he could get out of business. Others would take his place, but he would not drop his business. Elaborate refrigeration machinery had been adopted to transport fish to Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto, and this had the effect of increasing the cost of this commodity in the Maritime Provinces. Things were cheap in New Zealand because there had been no exporting during the war.

Chairman Mathers pointed out that we must have expanding markets to buy Canada's war surplus.

C. P. Dane, representing the Halifax branch of the Federation of Labor, prophesied a provincial-wide strike if day wages were not raised. He said a demand had been on the government for legislation, which had been backed by a number of mass meetings. The government had only appointed a commission to inquire.
