How richly glows the water's breast Before us, tringed with evening hacs, While, facing thus the crimson west, The boat her stiver course pursues, And see how dark the backward stream, A little moinent past so smiling; And still, perhaps, with faithless glean Some other loiterers beguiling.

Such views the youthful soul allure, But, heedless of the following gloom, He dreams thin colors shall endure. Till peace go with him to the tomb. And let him purse his fond deceit, And what if he must die in sorrow,

STATIONERY IN PABLIAMENT .--- A. membor of the House-correspondent of L'Ere Nouvelle-states that a great economy has been introduced this year in the halls of Legislation by a diminution in the former extravagant supply of stationery. For the last two years each member was in the receipt of a box of assorted stationery, worth $ 50, which for 202 members, makes a total of $10,100. This year the members have received each a parcel of writing materials, worth only about $5, and which is said to contain as much as any man may require for a six months' consumption. The say. when called for. ing thus effected amounts to over $8,000. Many such apparently small items of economy will, when added, realize a large sum - Montreal Poper.

It has for some time past been evident that there existed westward of London, C. W., an association of robbers and thieves, istence of this company in Essex, and steps fur without success. Suspicion was directviet him.

The draft has been peacefully concluded in New York. A second riot, however, has only been prevented by the presence of an overpawering force of soldiery. The city has been one vast camp, the regiments be ing under arms in the squares, and every precaution taken to quell a riot. Even the streets on the side of North and East Rivers were threatened by gunboats and steam tugs carrying cannon, which passed regularly up and down the river. New Yer! has required the exercise of greater vigilence than Vicksburg after its fall.

----A French paper tells a story of a farmer who had a pig so fat that it could scarcely move, and was almost always asleep. Be ing wakened one night by the squealing of the animal, he went to the sty, and found that rats had eaten into its fat sides to the depth of four inches, so that it was necessary to kill it immediately.
